ENTERS VOLCANO AND GETS BODIES OF MAN AND GIRL

85-Pound Jap Effects Perilous Recovery.

BY CLIFFORD GESSLER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

HILO, Hawaii, June 12.—One of the strangest rescues ever attempted was effected successfully today when Rikan Konishi, a Japanese weighing 85 pounds, took the bodies of a despairing lover and the sweetheart he killed from the troubled kingdom of the fire goddess Pele in the smoking crater of the volcano Halemaumau.

Natives of the island have been fearful of the wrath of Pele since June 2, when Sylvester Nunes, a youth of 20, kidnaped Margaret Enos, 17, after she spurned him, drove her to the brink of the pit at the point of a pistol, shot her, and, clasping her body, jumped into the volcano. The goddess, according to Hawaiian legend, lives in the pit.

Demand Removal of Bodies.

The superstitious insisted she became angry at having two lifeless mortals in her fiery domain, pointing to the recent tidal waves as evidence of her displeasure. They sought to have the bodies recovered from a ledge 800 feet below the brink of the 1,200 foot pit, and Konishi volunteered to make the descent.

He reached the rim from the pit shortly after 5 o'clock this evening with both bodies wrapped in canvas. The entire operation took about eight hours, throughout which Konishi displayed the calm courage of his Japanese ancestors.

Lighting a cigaret, Konishi entered a cage he had constructed at 9 o'clock this morning. He sat on a low stool with his head almost hitting the roof, while paraphernalia was packed all around him. He protected himself as best he could against the gaseous fumes of the crater and tied himself with a slipknot to guard against falling out. He also had a telephone contact with his brother-in-law, who remained on the crater's rim.

Phones Directions.

Konishi phoned directions for raising or lowering the cage, which was manipulated by a winch. As the descent started rocks were dislodged and thundered down as he swung out over the 1,200 foot chasm and descended slowly until he reached Talus slope, 800 feet down, where the bodies lay.

While in midair once the rope fouled and Konishi signaled for a stop. He climbed out of his cage and adjusted the guide line while dangling perilously in midair as spectators watched breathlessly through telescopes. Later he ordered a halt for five minutes in midair and took movies of the crater.

Landing about thirty feet from the nearest body, that of the young girl, the midget Japanese wrapped it in canvas. He then walked on loose rocks, holding on to a guide rope, to the body of Nunes, which he prepared in like manner.

Takes Time Out to Eat.

This done, he calmly sat on a rock and ate his lunch—probably the most weird meal ever consumed—in the maw of one of the world's largest semi-active volcanoes, with sulphur fumes coiling around him and treacherous loose rocks all about, ready to hurtle down upon him at the slightest disturbance.

The bodies were too heavy for the slight rescuer to move, so he attached them to ropes from the cage. He ordered the cage raised until both were dangling together. He then had it lowered until they lay upon a ledge, side by side. He secured them to the bottom of his conveyance, unfurled a white flag to signal success, took a drink of water, and sat calmly in the cage as it made its ascent.

In another hour it had reached the rim. Konishi, who is a contractor, will collect $1,000 for his work.

Story of Romance.

The tragedy had its inception when Nunes, a Portuguese, wished to take the young high school student in marriage. She declined to consider matrimony. He brooded over the matter for two days, then suddenly appeared at the girl's home, held her sister off with a pistol, and forced Margaret to accompany him. He threatened to kill both if the sister attempted to follow.

Taking Margaret to the volcano, where sweethearts are in the habit of keeping trysts, it is presumed he again made his protestations of love and asked her to marry him. She evidently refused, for evidence indicates he shot her and, clasping her in his arms, leaped into the fiery pit.

"HANG YOUR CLOTHES ON A HICKORY LIMB, BUT DON'T GO NEAR THE WATER!"

SCIENTISTS UNEARTH MIZPAH, CITY FAMED IN BIBLICAL HISTORY

Kansas City, Mo., June 12.—(AP)—Confirmation of evidence that a city being excavated near Jerusalem is that of "the famous Mizpah of Benjamin" has been reported here by Dr. William F. Bade, leader of an archaeological expedition.

Dr. Bade, head of the Pacific School of Religion at Berkeley, Cal., said confirmation was obtained through the discovery of the private seal of an officer in King Zedekiah's army at the time when Jerusalem was taken by Nebuchadnezzar. It had been undisturbed for 25 centuries.

Dr. Bade reported to J. C. Nichols of the William Rockhill Nelson trust, which is coöperating in the excavations, that the seal, belonging to Jaazaniah, who is mentioned in the Old Testament, was found in a tomb of the west necropolis of Tell-en-Nasheb.

In the second Book of Kings, 25:23, and in parallel passages in Jeremiah, Jaazaniah is mentioned as one of four officers who joined Cedaliah, new governor, at Mizpah after previously having fled Jerusalem at the approach of Nebuchadnezzar.

Rochester, N. Y., June 12.—(AP)—Mrs. Catherine T. Wheelwright, mother of Eamon de Valera, president of the Irish Free State, died at her home here today.

Mrs. Wheelwright had lived quietly in Rochester since she married Charles E. Wheelwright shortly before the turn of the century. De Valera was her only son, by a former marriage to Vivian de Valera, a young Spanish sculptor and musician, whom she met in New York shortly after she came to this country from her home in County Limerick, Ireland.

She married Wheelwright after sending Eamon to relatives in Ireland, following the death of her first husband. The Irish political leader last visited his mother in December, 1927.

Find Kreuger Secrets in 150 Sacks of Waste Paper

STOCKHOLM, Sweden, June 12.—(AP)—More than 150 sacks of waste paper ready to be sent from the private offices of Ivar Kreuger at the time of the financier's suicide were seized by the police today and proved of great aid in tracking down the "match king's" operations. The sacks had more than 1,900 personal Kreuger telegrams in them. Had the suicide been a few days later the waste paper would have been converted into new paper at a mill.

Wets Invade Dry Rally and Heckle Cannon

BY WALTER FITZMAURICE.

Seven young men, overzealous in the anti-prohibition cause, heckled Bishop James Cannon Jr. as the Virginia churchman was addressing the loyalty convention of ultra drys yesterday at the Third Presbyterian church, Ashland and Ogden avenues. The wet leader was ejected.

After the session the young men set up a demonstration in the street as the church emptied. Street urchins joined them in taunting the drys until a police squad arrived and dispersed the hecklers. The evening session was held without interference.

Church Nearly Filled.

Due to pulpit appeals by sympathetic pastors to their own flocks, a throng of 450, three times the number at previous sessions, nearly filled the church to hear Bishop Cannon. The obstreperous seven marched in as the session opened. One or two of the intruders wore American Legion buttons.

Arthur M. Barnhart, head of the Illinois conference supporting prohibition and chairman of the meeting, touched off the heckling when he declared that the drys, in trying to lease a vacant store near the Chicago Stadium from which to distribute literature, had been threatened with a bomb. The policeman on the beat had counseled the store owner against signing the lease, he said.

"Baloney," said the leader of the hecklers.

Distribute Pledge Cards.

He was silent until Dr. George B. Safford, superintendent of the Illinois Anti-Saloon league, sent the ushers up the aisles with pledge cards, pencils, and blank checks to gather "ammunition for your generals in this crucial fight for our noble cause." Then the heckler said:

"Making a touch, eh? A bunch of racketeers taking money from a bunch of saps."

The hecklers saved most of their ammunition for Bishop Cannon. The clergyman, veteran of many a battle in the courts, in congress and within his own church, began discussing the issues of the impending election, but soon dropped that topic to sail into Al Smith, J. J. Raskob, "the Tammany Tiger and the bull necked, big bellied brewers" who had persecuted him.

The audience was applauding when the heckler got to his feet.

Tries to Go On.

The bishop's powerful voice went on, but his listeners went into action. An elderly man, his face convulsed with anger, wheeled the heckler around.

"Sit down and shut up, or get out," he commanded.

The heckler's six supporters demanded that he be allowed to speak. The heckler asked for a word with the pastor of the church, the Rev. A. R. Hickman. The pastor faced him.

"This is a house of worship," the pastor said. "You can't break up a religious service this way. It's against the law."

The heckler agreed to withdraw. Bishop Cannon, who had managed to retain the attention of the greater part of his audience during the disturbance, finished his address with a demand that both the Republican and Democratic national conventions refrain from any expression on the liquor question, "leaving the issue to be settled in the election of senators, congressmen, state legislatures, or constitutional conventions."

Defend the Bishop.

As the bishop finished the heckling broke out again, this time outside the church. The drys, men and women, joined in and defended the bishop as "one of the noblest men that ever lived." Then the police squad arrived.

With the turmoil ended the women walked two blocks north to the First Congregational church where an organist played several hymns. Then the women were asked to bow in silent prayer that President Hoover might stand firm for a prohibition platform.

MEMBERS VOTE FOR SUBMISSION OF REPEALER AS UPRISING GROWS

Ogden Mills Named on Resolutions Committee.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

New York's delegation to the Republican national convention—almost a hundred strong—opened the battle on prohibition last night by unanimously voting for a plank calling on congress to submit repeal of the 18th amendment to the states for ratification in conventions. The action was taken in the caucus of the delegation in the Congress hotel, and there was no debate over the repeal proposal.

Ogden L. Mills, secretary of the treasury, was picked without opposition as New York member of the committee on resolutions of the Republican convention which opens tomorrow. W. Kingsland Macy, chairman of the party in New York state, was made chairman of the delegation.

The New York Plank.

The repeal proposal which the New York delegates placed in the hands of Mr. Mills for advancement in the resolutions committee, which builds the national platform, was as follows:

Resolved, It is the sense of the New York delegation that the 18th amendment to the federal constitution be resubmitted to the people of the United States in the following manner:

That the congress of the United States propose the repeal of the said amendment with the provision that the several states pass upon said question by conventions duly called. And it is the sense of the New York delegation that we further recommend that the delegates to the several state conventions be chosen at special elections and not at general elections.

Although the platform makers are all in a fog as to President Hoover's stand, and nobody has appeared on the scene as yet with a definite pronouncement as to what the White House wants, the general conjecture was that the plank which Mr. Mills is to advance on instructions of the 97 New York delegates is perhaps not at variance with administration views.

Straight Repeal Proposed.

The New York plank practically does what the Indiana Republicans did in knocking off two prongs of the three horned plank calling for action to determine whether the 18th amendment should be "retained, repealed or modified," which was prepared at Washington last week at the Garfield-Moses conference. The New Yorkers make it a straight repeal proposal.

One construction was that Secretary Mills, close adviser of the President, would hardly have taken the repeal instructions without raising his voice if they were regarded as in direct conflict with any Hoover views.

However, some of the administration leaders continued their drive to keep the platform utterance to a statement for resubmission on a three point proposal—retain, repeal or modify—which bone dry Indiana and the wets regard as a straddle. Out of it all grew a conjecture voiced in the corridors that the President will take whatever sort of a plank the convention adopts.

Drys Admit It's a Fight.

The drys meanwhile denounced any plank contemplating repeal or change of the 18th amendment. Dr. Scott McBride of the Anti-Saloon league at a night session of the "loyalty" convention of drys in the Third Presbyterian church, Ashland and Ogden avenues, said:

"This is no pillow fight. It's a knock down and drag out fight. They can't repeal the 18th amendment in any convention or with any platform. They need a two-thirds vote in congress and then the states must ratify.

"We will not stand for any resubmission scheme. That would be the first step towards repeal."

Meanwhile the arriving gladiators, wet, dampish, moist, and dry, gave an air of belligerency to the approaching battle. James R. Garfield of Ohio, chairman designate of the resolutions committee, reached the scene saying he has no plank with White House indorsement and does not expect to present a plank labeled Hoover.

Garfield Is Hush-Hush.

Garfield indicated that he knows the President's views, but he is keeping them a secret for the present, which did not relieve any of the tension around the Congress hotel.

Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, president of Columbia university, a New York delegate, plans to offer a repeal proposal which would place the party on record for adherence to state rights in the matter. As soon as he stepped from the train Dr. Butler began as-

Wets to Rally Tonight for Repeal Plank

Today's Wet Parade

6 p. m.—Decorated automobiles will assemble in east and west streets north of Ohio street.

6:30 p. m.—Parade will move south in Michigan avenue to 16th street, where it will be reviewed by officials sponsoring organizations.

8 p. m.—Mass meeting for repeal in the Coliseum, to be addressed by Mayor Cermak, Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, Matthew Woll, Mrs. Charles H. Sabin, and others.

A motor parade of 1,500 gaily bedecked automobiles and floats will be held early this evening in Michigan avenue by the Crusaders and the Republican Citizens Committee Against Prohibition. The intention is to show the delegates to the Republican national convention the solidity of the demand for direct repeal of the 18th amendment.

The paraders will assemble at 6 o'clock in the streets east and west of Michigan avenue between Ohio street and Chicago avenue, in readiness to swing into Michigan avenue at a prearranged signal.

Parade to Coliseum.

The head of the column will start southward at 6:30 p. m. and will proceed to the Coliseum, where at 8 p. m. a public massmeeting will be held.

The massmeeting will be addressed by Mayor Cermak, Mrs. Charles H. Sabin, national chairman of the Women's Organization for Prohibition Reform; Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, president of Columbia university; Matthew Woll, vice president of the American Federation of Labor, and Capt. Fred G. Clark, national commander of the Crusaders. Raymond Pitcairn, vice chairman of the Republican Citizens' Committee Against Prohibition, will preside.

Both the sponsoring organizations have warned the Republicans that unless a repeal plank is offered large campaign contributions will be withheld.

Fifty floats portraying the effects of prohibition will appear in the parade today. Several will depict "before and after" themes. One of these will be a representation of two jails, an empty one bearing the legend, "What Prohibition Promised," and one jammed to the bars with prisoners and labeled, "This Is What It Got Us."

Rise of Prohibition Gangster.

The rise of the prohibition era gangster will be shown. Fat men typical of gangsters will ride in the largest limousines and little gangsters will follow as bodyguards in small cars.

Brig. Gen. John V. Clinnin will be grand marshal of the march. Capt. Clark will review the parade as it passes and will have as an honorary escort the mayor, members of the city council, Senators J. Hamilton Lewis and Otis F. Glenn, Congressman Fred A. Britten and other notables. The reviewing stand will be at 16th street and Michigan avenue.

Follow Up Air-Water Fête.

This demonstration will be a followup of an air and water carnival held yesterday afternoon by the same organizations on Navy pier and on the surrounding waters of Lake Michigan. Following a parade of boats two miles long, aviators led by Maj. R. W. Schroeder and representing all the local airports gave a series of maneuvers.

The climax of their part of the show was the tossing of a dummy representing "Old Man Prohibition" from a plane. It sank in the lake. Following this the thousands who attended the rally heard speakers, including Mayor Cermak and Capt. Clerk, tell of the evils of the dry laws.

Exhibition of Sentiment.

Yesterday's fête was arranged by the Crusaders, of which Col. Ira L. Reeves is regional manager. The water parade was in charge of Com. Eugene McDonald, who gave the starting signal with a gun fired on his yacht, Mizpah. Among his guests were the mayor, Rear Admiral Crosley, commander at Great Lakes; Melvin Traylor, president of the First National bank; and Vincent Bendix.

Hoover Forces Try to Placate "Anti-Straddlers."

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.

In an endeavor to head off a stampede of the Republican national convention to a platform declaring for repeal of the eighteenth amendment all the influence of the Hoover administration was mustered yesterday in favor of a noncommittal resubmission of the prohibition question to the states.

With the dry leaders accusing him of double crossing them President Hoover became their only hope of stemming the tide of sentiment favoring a commitment of the party to unqualified repeal.

Hoover May Speak Out.

According to his spokesmen on the scene, the President will go to great lengths to prevent the incorporation of a repeal declaration in the platform. If after a counting of noses in the delegations and in the resolutions committee, it appears that there is danger of a stampede to repeal, the President will be urged to come out in a public statement against such action.

One of the White House spokesmen was also authority for the view that if the platform adopted should be too wet to suit the President, Mr. Hoover will not hesitate to declare his divergence therefrom either in a statement at the close of the convention, in the manner of Al Smith at Houston—only the other way around—or in his acceptance speech a month later.

Small Comfort for Drys.

All of which comforted neither the extreme drys such as Bishop James Cannon Jr., the Rev. E. C. Dinwiddie, and the Rev. E. H. Cherrington, nor the extreme wets such as former Senator James Wadsworth of New York and Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, president of Columbia university. It merely confirmed the reports that Mr. Hoover has receded from his former antagonism to modification of the eighteenth amendment and is now in favor of some sort of resubmission of the irrepressible issue to the people.

The drys were extremely bitter in their comments on the disclosure of the President's present attitude. They quoted him as saying to them no longer than three months ago that he never, never would desert them. They not only denounced him for treachery to their cause, but they blamed him for the impetus given the repeal movement by the evidence of his weakening.

No Third Party Threat.

Still, there were no threats in dry quarters of the formation of a third party or organization of any other sort of bolt from the Republican ticket in consequence of the adoption of a platform which it is realized will declare for resubmission, if not repeal.

The fact is that the drys, deserted by the Rockefellers and other big contributors, are without the funds necessary to the foundation of a third party and are further weakened by the impending secession of a number of conservative dry organizations which are prepared to accept a resubmission plank.

The fortunes of the drys had reached so low an ebb by last night that the plans to carry the fight to the floor of the convention in a minority report from the resolutions committee proposing a dry plank, had virtually been abandoned.

Admit Futility of Fight.

It was recognized that the fight would be futile and, moreover, since the self-effacement of Senator William E. Borah [radical Rep., Idaho] from the situation, there is no outstanding dry member of the convention capable of making a respectable fight. The Rev. Mr. Dinwiddie, a generalissimo of the amalgamated dry organizations, is planning to state the dry case to the resolutions committee and let it go at that.

James R. Garfield of Ohio, chairman designate of the resolutions committee, arrived during the day and in a hotel room overlooking the lake front where his father was nominated for President in 1880, began conferring with numerous leaders on the framing of the prohibition and other platform planks.

The first new development Mr. Garfield encountered was a demand for revision of the tentative resubmission plank framed by Senator George H. Moses of New Hampshire and tentatively approved by the President. Objection was voiced by several party chieftains of the wet persuasion to the phraseology committing the party to the submission of the question of retention as well as modification or repeal of the 18th amendment.

An amendment modifying or repealing the prohibition amendment is understandable, they argued, but an amendment proposing its retention is nonsense. Retention would automatically be accomplished if the people were to reject an amendment proposing modification or repeal.

A Change Is Proposed.

Hence they proposed that the word "retention," which was a concession to the drys, be omitted and that the drys be placated by the addition of a commitment to the incorporation in the constitution of the Webb-Kenyon act prohibiting the shipment of liquor into dry states.

As thus modified, the Moses draft reads:

"The Republican party is the party of the constitution and we stand for its complete observance and also for the strict enforcement of all laws.

"We abhor the saloon and are unalterably opposed to its return.

"We recognize, however, the honest different of opinion regarding the 18th amendment and we recognize the right of the people, who ordained the constitution, to pass upon any portion of that instrument.

"We favor prompt submission by congress of modification or repeal of the 18th amendment to the people of the several states, acting through conventions called for that sole purpose in accordance with the provisions of article V.

"The amendment submitted shall protect dry territory from the importation of intoxicating liquor."

Wets to Bring in Report.

The prevailing opinion at Republican headquarters in the Congress hotel is that the resolutions committee will produce a more or less noncommittal resubmission plank and that the question of repeal will come before the convention in the form of a minority report brought in by the extreme wets.

Almost as much at sea as the drys are the wets when it comes to selection of a spokesman to lead the fight for repeal on the floor of the convention. If not led by Dr. Butler, the repeal fight will be made by Senator Hiram Bingham of Connecticut.

"Unless the platform declares unequivocally for repeal, I shall make a minority report to the convention advocating repeal," Senator Bingham said last night.

Dr. Butler arrived claiming that 640 members of 21 delegations are already committed to a repeal plank.

"If this convention," said Dr. Butler, "stops short of declaring for repeal and the Democrats should declare for repeal, the nomination of this convention will not be worth the paper it is written on. Resubmission is a fake word and everybody who mouths it knows it is a fake word. Senator Borah says it is a hypocritical word and on that one proposition Mr. Borah and I are in absolute agreement."

Snell to Avoid Wet Issue.

Representative Bertrand Snell of New York, who is to be permanent chairman of the convention, said that he will not touch on prohibition in his speech. He was not greatly concerned over the phrasing of the prohibition plank, but expressed the hope that it would not be such as to alienate the support of the drys.

Secretary of the Treasury Ogden Mills brought an armful of documents to be used as ammunition in defense of the monetary plank he will submit.

"There will be no tampering with the gold standard in the platform," he stoutly asseverated. "There will be no sop to silver."

The latter dictum was resented by the western silverites, whose minimum platform demand is a plank declaring for an international conference to stabilize the price of silver.

Hoover Spokesmen All Over.

By nightfall the hotels and clubs in the purlieus of Republican headquarters were fairly infested with spokesman for the President. Walter Newton, the Presidents political secretary, wa sat the Chicago club holding secret confab with a succession of groups.

Lawrence Richey, who is reputed to be the only secretary to whom Mr. Hoover tells his inmost thoughts, was at the Congress camping at this end of a telephone wire to the White House. Now here, now there, moving softly and mysteriously was Ray Benjamin of California, described as the eyes and ears of the President.

In addition to these spokesmen, there were Secretary Mills, Postmaster General Walter F. Brown and Ernest L. Jahncke, assistant secretary of the navy.

May Not Press Contests.

Out of the whispering gallery of the Hoover high command there emanated late at night the dank, dark, mysterious intimation that perhaps after all Postmaster General Brown will not press the contests of the anti-Tolbert delegatin from South Carolina and the anti-Howard delegation from Mississippi before the credentials committee of the convention.

In fact, it appeared that the Mississippi contest has been thrown overboard because in that one the administration hasn't a leg to stand on and the South Carolina contest is now being viewed with apprehension. If the credentials committee should seat the Tolbert delegation and be upheld by the convention, it would be a repudication of the President by the party's court of highest appeal. Hence Mr. Brown is being adjured from on high to curb his gluttony for punishment.

Conflicting Reports on Curtis.

Also from the Hoover high command came conflicting reports of the administration attitude toward the plot to circumvent the renomination of Vice President Charles Curtis. According to one of the spokesmen, the administration will go the limit for the renaming of Mr. Curtis for a multitude of reasons.

One is that Mr. Hoover is committed to the renomination of Mr. Curtis; another that Mr. Curtis, who is a political dry, will be an asset with the drys if the platform goes wet; and still another that the name of Mr. Curtis on the ticket will help to hold wobbly Kansas in the Republican column. In addition, it is reasoned, according to this administration interpreter, that if the convention were to run amuck and throw Charley Curtis to the wolves, there is no telling who might be nominated—perhaps somebody very distasteful to Mr. Hoover. An indication of support for this line of reasoning came last night when Secretary Mills declared himself for the renomination of Curtis.

According to another no less authoritative channel of presidential thought, however, the administration will be for the renomination of Mr. Curtis only nominally. It will make no fight to put him over and thereby incur the danger of humiliation and all sorts of complications if the convention should run away and name another.

Dawes Favorite of Curtis Foes.

Among those opposed to the renomination of the Vice President, Gen. Charles G. Dawes continued the favorite for the place. Nobody knew whether he would accept if nominated, but the disposition to name him anyway was general among the insurgents, most of whom are of the persuasion that it is imperative to give the President a running mate capable of rousing some enthusiasm in the electorate.

Secretary of War Patrick J. Hurley ccntinued the second choice to Dawes. Then there were a number of others who were put forward by their admirers, among them being Gen. James G. Harbord and National Committeeman Charles Dewey Hilles of New York and former Gov. A. T. Fuller of Massachusetts.

NOTES OF G. O. P. CONVENTION

Col. Lafayette B. Gleason of New York, secretary of the convention, went to his room in the Stevens hotel immediately on his arrival to exercise his larynx after the rigors of the journey. The colonel distains microphones and prefers to amplify his cadences with a pair of lungs which have wrought havoc to many a vest button.

W. J. Mahon, United States district attorney at Cleveland, said he is visiting the convention merely to hear Col. Gleason attack the roll call. The colonel's measured intonations are more inspiring, said Mr. Mahon, than a pipe organ. Between conventions Col. Gleason defends his title as the backgammon champion of the University club of New York.

Haberdashers along Michigan avenue feature ties in state colors. National Committeeman Joseph W. Tolbert of South Carolina, who has won the soubriquet of "Tie-less Joe," looked and turned away, snorting, "I still have to find a reason for wearing a tie." Friends say Tolbert goes tieless so he can thunder from campaign platforms, "My collar is as empty as a Democrat's promises."

Among the conventioneers who watched the Crusaders' airplane demonstration on the lake front was E. C. Yellowley, former prohibition administrator of Chicago and now supervisor of alcohol permits here. He remarked, "They look high and dry to me."

Everett Sanders, sergeant at arms of the convention and formerly secretary to President Coolidge, chartered an American Airways plane to take him to Terre Haute on receiving news of the death of his brother-in-law in that city. He left at noon and returned in the evening, piloted by Robert J. Rentz, Chicago terminal manager.

Former Federal Judge Kenesaw Mountain Landis, the czar of baseball, visited the national committee headquarters to find a committeeman to throw out a ball for the White Sox-Boston game. None was willing to surrender hard won seats in the lobby.

The State street decorations will be officially dedicated in front of the Palmer house at 4 o'clock this afternoon. Mayor Cermak and Edward N. Hurley, chairman of the Chicago citizens committee, will speak. Republicans are betting on Secretary of Wark Patrick J. Hurley to arrive for the ceremony to offset the Democratic oratory.

Gold courtesy cards are to be presented to delegates and alternates today by Mayor Cermak. In addition to giving the recipient a souvenir the cards will be honored at the Washington Park Jockey club, the White Sox ball park, until Thursday, the Palos, Edgewater, and Northwestern golf courses, and many loop theaters.

The Rev. E. C. Dinwiddie, leader of the dry board of strategy, was taken aback yesterday afternoon as he stepped from the elevator at the national committee headquarters. His hand was seized by Francis Clay Hurley of Oregon, chairman of the National Liberal alliance. Photographers volleyed speed flashes. When things were explained to the dry leader he cheerfully posed for several Hector and Achilles photographs with the wet representative.

The Board of Trade band, the official band of the convention, gave its first serenade to delegates in the flag day parade. As the band blared down Michigan avenue, a delegate said, "If they can't wake up this convention nothing will."

State delegations to the Republican national convention came in from all parts of the country yesterday.

A special New York Central train brought in the largest delegation yesterday, 200 men and women from New York state. This group included F. Trubee Davison, assistant secretary of war; Cyrus Durey, collector of internal revenue of Albany; Philip Elting, collector of the port of New York, and former Congressman William H. Hill. The New Yorkers established headquarters at the Hotel Sherman.

A section of the Manhattan Limited of the Pennsylvania railway brought more than 100 delegates and others from Connecticut. Their headquarters are at the Congress hotel. A special car on the Pennsylvania carried a delegation from Roanoke, Va. A group of Pennsylvanians, headed by M. G. Leslie, Allegheny county Republican, arrived on the Mercantile Express. The main Pennsylvania delegation and also California's will come in today.

The Rhode Island delegation, comprising 35 persons, arrived during the day. Delegates from New Jersey also appeared in advance of the main party from that state.

Put Finishing Touches on Vast Area.

The rebuilding of the vast interior of the Chicago Stadium, 1800 West Madison street, neared completion yesterday at the hands of 400 workmen while the first few thousands of a curious public filed through the balconies to watch. The building will be turned over to the Republican national committee today, ready for the opening of the convention tomorrow at 11 a. m.

Suspended from the high ceiling are 2,100 American flags, hung in perfect symmetry. Four miles of red, white and blue bunting circle the walls. A large portrait of George Washington, surmounted by an eagle, faces the speakers' stand. The coats of arms of each state and territory are hung on the walls. Two electric clocks, five feet high and four feet wide, are at the ends of the long hall.

Air to Be Cleansed.

Four 60 horsepower fans, each equipped with an air washer, will force 125,000 cubic feet of air into the building each minute as exhaust fans withdraw stale air. Sixty-five water coolers will serve the thirsty.

The Illinois Bell Telephone company has installed 425 extra telephones in the building and in conjunction with the American Telephone and Telegraph company, fifteen teletype machines. The postoffice department has established a branch for the delivery and receipt of mail. The telegraph companies have provided for the sending of 450,500 words an hour. There are thirty-eight washrooms, each with a porter or maid in attendance.

3,000 Can Eat at Once.

At the twelve concession stands 3,000 persons will be able to eat at once, in addition to those seated in the grill and cafeteria. Five hospital rooms, with four beds in each, are located in the building, one with complete operating equipment. Fifty booths with 110 tables have been built for newspapermen and six dark rooms are available to photographers.

Police Commissioner Allman announced yesterday that a district station in charge of a captain will be located in the Stadium. Five hundred policemen, fifty in plain clothes, will be detailed inside the structure in four zones covering the main floor, mezzanine, first and second balconies. Each zone will be commanded by a lieutenant.

GOV. BRUCKER.

Advance guards among the Republican convention delegates from Wisconsin and Michigan yesterday asserted that they were primarily interested in a platform promise to reduce national governmental expenditures.

It was indicated that there would be a split of Wisconsin delegates on the prohibition question, their state convention having taken no action. Some of the delegates are dry and others wet in their personal opinions.

Michigan's state convention, on the other hand, adopted a plank calling for the re-submission of the 18th amendment. The state's delegates are pledged to Hoover, also, while there are both Hooverites and anti-Hooverites among the Wisconsin group.

NOMINATOR OF HOOVER IN 1928 FOR DRY TEST

Aboard California Republican Special at Grand Island, Neb., June 12. —(AP)—A statement favoring submission of the prohibition question to the people was made today by John L. McNab, California delegate to the national Republican convention, who nominated Herbert Hoover for the presidency in 1928.

It was the first pronouncement by McNab, prominent San Francisco attorney, on prohibition since the adoption of the 18th amendment. He made clear that he is "a personal dry" and emphasized that he had not received a single word from the President on the subject.

"The issue confronting both political parties is one that is broader and larger than prohibition itself," said McNab's statement. "It is the issue of popular and democratic government. It is not a question of whether we are wet or dry, but whether the great body of American electors shall be denied the inherent right to express itself on a vital economic and moral question.

"It is broader than that. It involves the right of the elector to vote on a question of amending the constitution of the United States. That right is so elemental no party can deny it and hope to survive."

LADY LOBBYISTS ARRIVE TO WORRY POOR OLD G. O. P.

It May Be with a Smile or with Stern Command.

By GENEVIEVE FORBES HERRICK.

The feminine lobbyists have arrived. They have unpacked their trunks, put on their prettiest frocks, and settled down to worry the Republicans who are themselves worrying about their party's platform.

MRS. CHARLES H. SABIN.

More rights for women; no more fights for men; repeal of the eighteenth amendment; enforcement of the eighteenth amendment; peace abroad; economy at home. These are a few of the planks which the women want to nail down in the G. O. P. platform. But make no mistake. These planks are not all things to all women. There is no woman's bloc. The woman who wants repeal may not care a flat of her powder puff about international peace; and the woman who's working for the world court will decline to discuss the prohibition question.

All Earnest and Eager.

Nor is there any general technique of feminine lobbying. One gal wants to hammer her plank into the platform; another prefers to use the sticky putty of the soft spoken word. But all seem earnest and eager, from the beauteous lady who smiles at the political boss with a "you great big wonderful man" smile, to her more militant sister who says it with statistics.

The "wet women" [well, that's what they call themselves] are over at the Blackstone under the leadership of Mrs. Charles H. Sabin, the former Republican committeewoman from New York, who gave up her job several years ago because she couldn't go along with the Republican prohibition idea. She says now that the G. O. P. women are swimming around from dry-to-moist-to-wet in such overwhelming numbers that they must be regarded as a great factor in the coming election.

That Isn't So, Says Mrs. Yost.

But Mrs. Ellis A. Yost, sister-in-law to "Hurry-Up Yost," the football coach, director of the women's division of the Republican national committee, refuses to admit any such triple play. Republican women, she maintained yesterday, are much more interested in organizing than they are in thinking about prohibition.

In other words, although they are not her words, the G. O. P. women are interested in Hoover, not hootch.

"I have found that the women are really more steadfast in a concentrated march than the men are," Mrs. Yost said. "They are not so easily led away from the main issue. The women have one objective. That is to reelect Mr. Hoover."

The dry women have their lobby. Mrs. Henry W. Peabody, one of the Boston "Peabodys" who migrated from Massachusetts when it got too moist for her to Florida, which, she says, she finds more arid. And Mrs. Ella Boole of the W. C. T. U.

Equal Rights Women.

The women who want the right to hold any kind of tough job a man holds, that is, the National Woman's party, yesterday set up their lobby headquarters in the Congress hotel. Curiously enough, the leader of this feminist delegation is the very feminine Muna Lee, dark eyed poet from Porto Rico. For the duration of the conventions she has laid aside the pencil with which she writes odes and is writing a platform plank beseeching both parties to give to the women the Susan B. Anthony 20th amendment, guaranteeing equal rights to women.

The National League of Women Voters is also at the Congress, waging a bipartisan campaign to have its three planks incorporated in the two platforms. The planks call for government economy; economy, that is, of extravagance, but expenditure of the necessary; for unemployment relief, and for international coöperation.

Which brings us down to the fifth lobby, that for permanent peace. Jeanette Rankin, first woman to go to the United States house of representatives, is in charge of the delegation composed of representatives from various peace programs.

No Feminine Farmers.

A sixth lobby, the feminine farmers, who caused such a flurry four years ago at Kansas City by their denunciation of Andrew Mellon, haven't yet put in their appearance and probably will not do so.

While the feminine lobbyists are buttonholing politicians and issuing statements, the women delegates are having a beautiful time going to tea parties.

But the "woman angle" to this convention is not all whipped cream and flowers; not if the women delegates can have their way. They want to work.

There's a Unitarian minister, the Rev. Margaret B. Barnard of Massachusetts; and there's a lady lumberman, Mrs. Anna W. Webster of New York. There's a New York alderman and a New Mexico business woman.

But there are a lot of women delegates whose claim to fame seems to rest on the fact that they are "wife of this governor"; "daughter of that judge." Just to reassure you that it's still pretty much a man's world at this convention.

ILLNESS KEEPS GARNER IN BED; SEES FEW FRIENDS

Washington, D. C., June 12.—(AP)—Still suffering from an acute bronchial infection, but somewhat improved, Speaker Garner today spent the day in bed.

His physician, Dr. George Calver, directed that he get all the rest possible. Some of the 62 year old Texan's close friends were admitted to his hotel rooms for short discussions of important relief legislation, but the speaker saw no one else.

It was indicated that unless his condition improved more rapidly than it had since he was forced to leave his office Saturday, he might have to remain away from the capitol tomorrow.

FINAL PROGRAM FOR VISITORS AT 1933 FAIR TODAY

The final program of the three day entertainment for delegates and guests at the Republican national convention will be held today at the World's Fair grounds. Boat races and naval reserve drills will take place at 6:30 p. m., followed by a parade of yachts in a christening ceremony of the exposition lagoons. A twilight concert will be given by the Mundy choristers, jubilee singers. After a smoke screen demonstration by the United States army air service the program will close with fireworks.

Three Suspects Identified in Several Robberies

Three men under arrest at the detective bureau have been identified as the perpetrators of several robberies. They are Bernard Roznowski, 24 years old, 4505 Clifton avenue; William Brode, 25 years old, 330 South Washtenaw avenue, and Le Roy Harrison, 26 years old, address unknown. Roznowski and Harrison were pointed out as the men who robbed the T. B. Ward Loan company, 8 South Dearborn street, of $1,100 on May 24. Brode, it is alleged, aided Roznowski in robbing the New England Collapsible Tube company of $1,125 a few days later.

BODY TAKEN FROM WATER.

The body of Carl Lundberg, 33 years old, 7926 Burnham avenue, who was drowned on Memorial day when the eatboat in which he had gone for a sail off South Chicago was capsized, was recovered yesterday by Jackson park coast guards.

Traffic in Panama Canal Slow; Drop Lock Shift

PANAMA CITY, June 12.—(AP)—The removal of one of the four lock shifts on the Panama canal, continuing sixteen hour daily operation, but limiting two way traffic to eight hours instead of the present full time, was ordered today. It was explained that full time status would be resumed when the daily average traffic amounted to eighteen ships. The average is now twelve and decreasing.

Volcano Erupts After Sharp Quake in Mexico

The "Conservative" Writers Tell Him So.

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.

It may be that only the wrong-minded element hangs around the hotel lobbies, waiting for opportunities to violate the law and, therefore, that which I am about to report may not be a fair account. But, at any rate, for the first time at any national convention since the war there is an enthusiastic belief at this one that prohibition will come to an end, by the repeal of the eighteenth amendment if not otherwise, before the next set of conventions are held in 1936.

All that is necessary is to drive carefully, avoid drafts and watch the diet to live to see the day when it will be possible again to buy under free, open conditions in all the wet communities of the United States not mere 2.75 beer nor racket beer, brewed in old tanneries and sold in a green condition, but old fashioned beer, wearing the high collar, and Scotch highballs and rye high balls and gin rickeys and fizzes and champagne and all such drinks as American tourists hurl into themselves in Paris and Cuba and on the boats.

Wait Won't Be Long.

Standing around the hotel lobbies and hearing this belief expressed with such conviction and with such apparent authority as the Republicans go through the nonsense preliminary to their renomination of Mr. Hoover, there is a great temptation to clap hands for the waiter and order casually, "Boy, six old fashioneds, two Tom Collinses and a cigar for the gentleman here." But that would be premature. One must wait, but the wait will not be long now.

Now I do not think the people who do most of the hanging around in the hotel lobbies are members of the wrong minded element with nothing better to do than wait for opportunities to violate the law. In fact it is not necessary to wait around for opportunities to violate the law anywhere in this country any more. Opportunity not only knocks but practically kicks down the door, especially at national conventions, whether of political parties or salesmen or the Sons and Daughters of I Will Arise.

The people who do the most persistent ground and lofty lobby hanging-around at a national political conventions are the Washington correspondents of the newspapers and press associations and, barring their annual shenanigans at the Gridiron dinner and the White House Correspondents' dinner they conduct themselves with great restraint and take themselves and their responsibilities very seriously.

Take Business Seriously.

Some of them think that some of the others take themselves much too seriously, but there is bound to be a little of that feeling among any group of people who are working together all the time. Not that some of them do not take themselves too seriously. But that kind come only one or two at a time and they usually become spokesmen and apologists to interpret the President's mind and go off to live with him in his summer camp and call him "Chief" instead of "Mr. President," which is a great honor. After that they are not much good. They call them fair haired boys.

In most cases the President turns on them for some trivial thing after he has used them up or they begin to get in his hair and they go the rest of the way through life feeling quite hurt. We have the same types in the sport writing business, known as the Dempsey-lovers, the Tunney-lovers and so forth. Some of the Tunney-lovers have felt quite hurt, too.

As a group the Washington correspondents are a conservative lot. A horse track correspondent will give you a tip on a race and tell you it cannot lose when he knows it is only a guess, and a prize fight correspondent will tell you that Schmeling will knock Sharkey's ears off, or vice versa. But a Washington correspondent does not go in for sweeping statements and he certainly will not tell you something merely because he knows you would like to hear it.

Recalls Kansas City.

Four years ago in Kansas City when the Republicans were nominating Mr. Hoover for the first time and the porters were bringing up, not trays, but crates to carry out the empties from the rooms of the statesmen, including of course some of the dry statesmen, and again in Houston where the Democrats nominated Al Smith as a wet, the Washington correspondents insisted that the end of prohibition was not in sight.

"But look," you might argue, "all these Republicans rolling around the joint soused to the eyes," or, in Houston, "look at those Democrats from Mississippi and Texas and all such dry states drinking white mule out of Mason jars and spilling it in their ears."

And the Washington correspondents would answer very patiently that all this didn't mean a thing. The Anti-Saloon league and the Methodist board were still too strong and, anyway, the dry south would not go for Smith.

You should not judge the Washington correspondents entirely by the non-committal character of their stuff. It is news to say that this has happened or that is going to happen, but most of the time in Washington nothing happens and there is no immediate prospect that anything ever will happen. Furthermore, they have not the same freedom to tell you what sort of fellow that President really is, personally, that a prizefight correspondent has to tell you what sort of person Sharkey really is, personally.

Mr. Hoover is touchy and inclined to squeal if a man writes something about him that he happens not to like. One correspondent wrote that the moratorium was likely to redound to his political benefit and he went crying to the correspondent's employer, who told him, in effect, not to be a baby. But not all publishers are as loyal to their men and that is why the Washington correspondents are not as frank in print as they might be.

Until a short time ago the Washington men were, if not exactly pessimistic about the repeal of prohibition, then any way brutally frank about the futility of expecting anything from Hoover. So when they predict during the intensive lobby hanging-around just now that prohibition will go during the next four years, you will understand that they are not merely trying to make you happy.

The Anti-Saloon league is practically down and out. Rich manufacturers of the Big Shot era, who used to give money to keep liquor out of the hands of their employés so that they would work faster and better, not only have no money to give now but naturally favor anything that will tend to reduce their taxes. And they have no work for their hands to do faster and better. Theirs seems to have been a bankroll morality after all and it is the cynical suggestion of the Washington correspondents that even Mr. Rockefeller was a prohibitionist when times were up but let go when it developed that the treasury would have to go out and simply grab money from industry unless some new source of revenue were found.

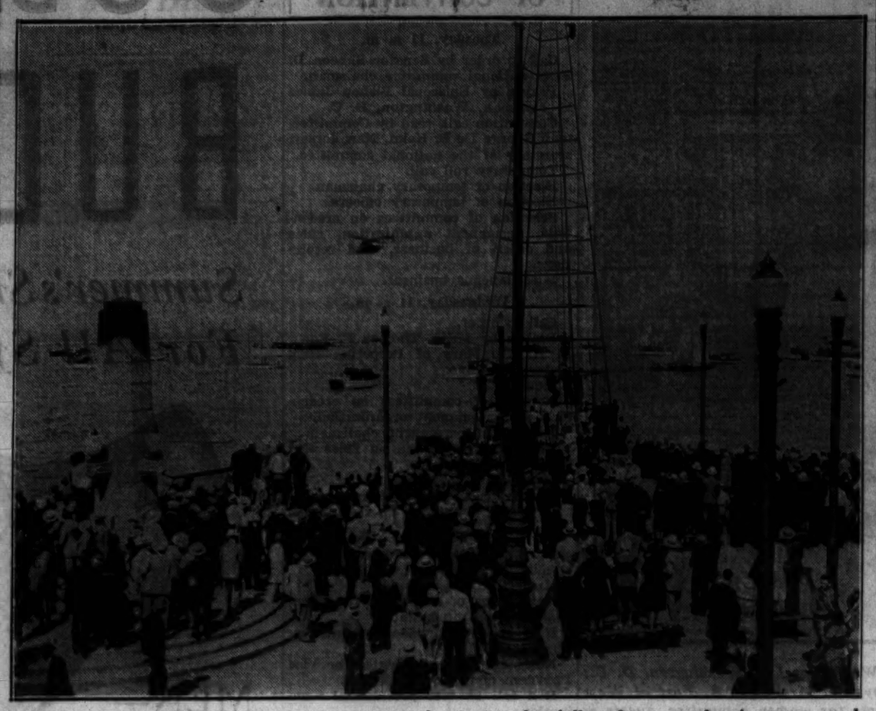
The Dry Meeting.

The elderly ladies who used to infest Washington reminding congress that they represented fifteen million or twenty-six million American wives and mothers in favor of prohibition encountered a lot of younger and more attractive ladies claiming to represent even more millions of wives and mothers opposed to the law. There was a grand preconvention rally of the drys and the attendance was 138, mostly elderly ladies and superannuated preachers [without churches], who have been comfortably engaged in the prohibition business for years just as you might be engaged in the brick business or the grocery business. They gathered to sound the tocsin for the salvation of American youth, but the average age of the youths present was about 60.

And yet this is undoubtedly the least alcoholic national convention since the war. The facilities for lawlessness are not as handy as those of New York, but handy nevertheless, the quality has been standardized at from fairly rotten to fairly good for years and of course there is no longer any petty meddling and hip slapping such as troubled the delegates at Cleveland.

The Washington correspondents state that Mr. Hoover has no known principles as to prohibition but will turn as wet as he must to be elected again. They promise me that a few years hence the U. S. A. again will be that happy land where sloe gin rickeys grow on the trees and highballs roll on the ground. I hope and trust that the Washington correspondents would not fool me.

Demand Dry Law Repeal from Air and on Water



Scene from Navy pier yesterday when one hundred yachts followed one another in water parade planned as demonstration for the repeal of the 18th amendment, while scores of airplanes flew overhead to participate in the same demand. HERE ARE DIRECTIONS FOR REACHING THE STADIUM FROM LOOP

STREET CARS—Madison street cars go to the Stadium doors. They enter the loop eastbound in Madison street, turn south in Dearborn street, and proceed west in Monroe street to Clinton street, in which they return to Madison street, westbound.

ELEVATED TRAINS—Take Humboldt Park or Logan Square "L" train to Madison and Paulina streets, one block east of Stadium, or Lake street train to Lake street transfer and ride south to Madison and Paulina streets. All of these trains travel completely around the loop, on the inner track.

MOTOR BUSES—Route 31 buses go south on Michigan avenue from the link bridge, and west on Washington boulevard. Get off at Wood street and walk one block south Stadium. Route 26 buses go west from Michigan avenue on Jackson boulevard. Get off at Wood street and walk three blocks north. Transfer from north and south side routes to westbound buses on Michigan avenue.

AUTOMOBILES—Drive west on Washington street and boulevard to Wood or Lincoln street and turn one block south, or west on Jackson boulevard and three blocks north on Wood or Lincoln street.

TAXICABS—The standard rate of large taxicab companies is 25 cents for the first quarter mile and 10 cents for each half mile thereafter. Many of the private taxicabs charge the higher rates permitted by city ordinance, which are a maximum of 40 cents for the first half mile and 10 cents per quarter mile thereafter. A schedule of rates must be posted inside the cab.

No street cars will be allowed to stop in front of the Steadium, the eastbound cars stopping at Lincoln street and the westbound at Wood street. All automobile traffic on Monroe street from Monroe street to the entrance will be forbidden. Parking space east of the building will hold 600 cars, and there are other lots in the vicinity.

Pacific Rotary Convention Opens in Honolulu Today

NEW YORK GOES SOLIDLY WET IN STATE CAUCUS

All Delegates Vote for Submission of Repeal.

sailing any idea of a "straddle." He was joined by Pierre S. du Pont of Wilmington, Del., chairman of the consolidated wet groups.

Dr. Butler denounced the three prong "Garfield-Moses" plank. He called it "an absurdity got up to confuse the issue."

He added: "It is a hypocritical, meaningless, childish suggestion, a straddle."

Dr. Butler gave out a copy of the plank he will shoot into the convention tomorrow. It is the plank which brought the letter to Butler in which John D. Rockefeller Jr., former angel of the Anti-Saloon league, came out for repeal of prohibition.

Butler's Plank Outlined.

In brief, it reaffirms the doctrine of the right of each state to control its own domestic institutions, as set forth in the platforms on which Abraham Lincoln ran in 1860 and James G. Blaine in 1884. Then it asks congress to submit repeal of the 18th amendment to the states for ratification in conventions. It pledges the party to use its influence to get the states to adopt measures for control of the liquor traffic that will promote temperance and abolish the saloon. It says the 18th amendment should be obeyed so long as it remains on the books.

Unless a plank contains the essentials set forth in the Butler proposal, the head of Columbia university said he will take the floor for his plank as he did at Kansas City four years ago, and will demand a roll call of states, which was not had in Kansas City.

"Delegates from 21 states have already given me assurance they will join in the demand," he said.

Platform Makers at Sea.

Meanwhile among the potential platform makers an air of bewilderment grew among the administration men, which increased as reports of growing wetness came from arriving delegations.

Damp, moist, and dry platform carpenters urged that prohibition be kept out of the keynote speech of Senator L. J. Dickinson of Iowa. The idea of "Hell Raising" Dick was to leave the liquor matter entirely to the resolutions committee, as the overshadowing issue.

Fear was manifest among some of the administration platformers that to bring prohibition into the keynote might touch off the dynamite in the convention. They spoke of the possibilities of a wet demonstration among delegates and spectators that might start the convention off as a runaway later on when the prohibition plank came up.

Bertrand H. Snell of New York, who is slated for permanent chairman, said upon arrival that he would not discuss prohibition in his speech. All through there was a manifest desire to keep the prohibition issue corked up in the convention until it hits the resolutions committee, which will probably start its hearings about 4 o'clock tomorrow afternoon.

Garfield "Brings No Plank."

Mr. Garfield upon his arrival said "no plank is in existence on prohibition" embodying the idea of President Hoover or other party leaders at Washington with whom he has conferred.

He said he has discussed prohibition with the President, but declined to divulge the Hoover attitude because "the President must talk for himself." Mr. Garfield, pinned down by interviewers, proved evasive and sidestepped with an agility that led to comments in the corridors about the "artful dodger."

"The reason I went to Washington for conferences," he said, "is that many of the men there are leaders in their states, but it is impossible for them to be here. I conferred with them on all subjects. There was no agreement on any of the planks of the platform."

Prepare Tax Cut Demand.

Reduction of governmental expenditures, which is the subject matter of a plank that is running second in interest to prohibition, is to be urged before the resolutions committee by several groups. Among them is the Midwest Manufacturers' Association, Inc., embracing the states of Illinois, Michigan, Indiana, Ohio, Wisconsin, Iowa, Oklahoma, Missouri, Nebraska and Kansas.

Samuel Hastings, its president, and also president of the Illinois Manufacturers' association, will present to the platform committee a resolution asking the following:

1. A plank "definitely and unequivocally committing the legislative and administrative representatives of the party to the policy of drastic reduction in governmental expenditures in conformity with the impaired income of the American taxpayers."

2. A plank "committing the party to the policy of making an immediate and thorough inquiry into the functions of the various governmental units with the object of eliminating activities which are not definitely necessary to the maintenance of the essential functions of the federal government as contemplated by the federal constitution."

Battle Over Farm Relief.

A battle over an agricultural plank is in the brew. The American Farm Bureau federation, the Grange and the Farmers' union have a joint conference set for today to complete arguments they intend to present to the convention resolutions committee. The group takes the ground that the federal farm act has proved inadequate and needs strengthening.

SIX REPEAL GROUPS ADOPT PLANK FOR G. O. P. CONVENTION

The United Repeal council, composed of representatives of the six leading organizations battling for prohibition repeal, at a meeting last night in the Hotel Sherman adopted a plank which will be presented to the Republican convention with a demand that it be incorporated in the party platform. The proposed plank reads:

"We, the representatives of the Republican party, believe that the 18th amendment should be repealed. We therefore urge the congress immediately to propose an amendment to the constitution repealing the 18th amendment, to become effective when ratified by conventions of the people in three-fourths of the states, in accordance with the provisions of article 5 of the constitution; and we pledge the best efforts of the Republican party to the accomplishment of such ratification."

The plank was drawn up by a committee composed of W. W. Montgomery, counsel for the United Repeal council; James W. Wadsworth and Henry H. Curran of the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment; Mrs. Charles H. Sabin of the Women's Organization for National Prohibition Reform, and Ralph M. Shaw of the Voluntary Committee of Lawyers.

The other organizations represented were the Crusaders, the American Hotel association and the Republican Citizen's Committee Against Prohibition. Among those who attended the meetings were Pierre S. du Pont, J. Russell Forgan, Senator Hiram Bingham of Connecticut, Senator Henry B. Joy of Michigan, Mrs. Leslie Wheeler, Mrs. William H. Mitchell, Mrs. Archibald Roosevelt, Col. Ira Reeves, Joseph H. Choate, and Clemens Horst, the latter representing the California grape industry.

DRY DEFECTIONS KEEP HOOVER ON ANXIOUS SEAT

President Keeping Tab on Chicago Trend.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., June 12.—[Special.]—The wet landslide of the last week that has swept five nationally known drys from the prohibition moorings and set the stage for a new Republican party stand on prohibition, was the object of intensive study at the White House today.

Although White House officials remained mum on President Hoover's attitude, it was learned that he was kept in the closest touch with the wet and dry fight during the day by members of the cabinet still in Washington and by members of his official family in Chicago for the convention. Both the long distance telephone and the telegraph were called into play to keep the President's convention news up to date.

Fears Wringing Wets.

According to officials in close touch with the White House, the President has shown particular interest in learning the attitude of the rank and file of the delegates now reaching Chicago from all sections of the country. Although dry members of his official family have assured him that the big mass of Republican delegates will be satisfied with a straight resubmission plank, the President was represented as still apprehensive that the wringing wets may yet overturn his program for holding he Republican party in line for merely a plank promising the people a vote on the question of repealing the 18th amendment.

Further talk of possible replacement of Vice President Curtis was inspired today by the appearance at the White House of Charles G. Dawes of Chicago and Secretary of War Patrick J. Hurley, both mentioned as possible running mates for the President.

Mr. Dawes, together with Mrs. Dawes, and Assistant Secretary of the Treasury James H. Douglas and Mrs. Douglas were luncheon guests. Mr. Hurley dropped in during the afternoon to report to the President on the bonus army situation and developments at Chicago.

Deny Political Significance.

Both Mr. Dawes and Mr. Hurley denied that there was any political significance to their visit. The fact, however, that both have been mentioned for the vice presidency and that both have been discussed as prospective campaign managers for the Republican ticket this fall, aroused considerable speculation as to whether some new strategy was in the making.

Although the White House is backing Vice President Curtis for renomination, officials here do not deny that President Hoover would welcome Brig. Gen. Dawes as the second man for the ticket if he could be persuaded to run and the convention revolted against the renomination of Curtis because of the Vice President's age.

Another high official states that the President certainly would like nothing better than to have Mr. Dawes as his campaign manager. This man added quickly, however, that Mr. Dawes has taken so many jobs at the request of the President that it is unlikely he will be pressed to take the chairmanship of the Republican national committee. It was learned in this connection that continued pressure to persuade Mr. Dawes to stay on in Washington as president of the Reconstruction Finance corporation thus far has proved unavailing.

In event Mr. Dawes was not available for the vice presidency and a new man had to be found, Secretary Hurley might be the man favored by the President. Secretary Hurley's continued presence in Washington after he had planned to go to Chicago has served to add strength to the rumors he might be in line for promotion.

MARINE SHOOTS HAWAIIAN AFTER ASKING FOR RIDE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

HONOLULU, June 12. — Another shooting by a navy man stirred Honolulu today. Henry Hollinger, despite three bullet wounds, drove his automobile into Honolulu from Aiea, ten miles away, bringing with him his assailant.

Hollinger told the police that the man came to his home at Aiea and asked to be driven to Pearl Harbor. Hollinger said he invited the stranger to stay for supper and then started with him for the naval base. Suddenly, he said, the passenger drew a revolver and shot him in the leg, thigh and abdomen. Hollinger wrested the gun from his attacker and sped into Honolulu.

Fatal Shooting of Boy Is Laid to Accident

Capt. William Kennedy of the Brighton Park police said yesterday that he believed Stanley Bladis, 13 years old, 3214 West 38th street, whose body was taken from the drainage canal at Lockport Saturday with a bullet in the head, had been accidentally shot by a playmate while hunting rats in a city dump beside the canal near his home. Capt. Kennedy questioned playmates of the boy, who had been missing from home since May 29, in an effort to find who shot him.

VISITING WOMEN BEGIN SOCIAL ROUNDS TODAY

Many Events Scheduled for G. O. P. Delegates.

BY KATHLEEN M'LAUGHLIN.

Off the floor and out of the record—there's a portentous part of convention proceedings that all but eclipses, for the feminine faction, roll calls, credentials and candidates. Women delegates and alternates to the current Republican muster begin today to sample the generous social program that has been provided by Chicago. Old or young, wet or dry, distinguished or obscure, all have been remembered.

MRS. G. R. DEAN.

Of today's functions, primary importance belongs to the luncheon conference in the Balloon room at the Congress hotel, given by the Illinois Republican Women's club. Mrs. George R. Dean, president, will preside. Speakers will include Mrs. Ruth McCormick Simms, formerly of Chicago, and Mrs. Ellis A. Yost, active head of the women's division of the party. Illinois organization matters will be discussed.

Luncheon at Casino.

Simultaneously, the Lake Shore League of Women Voters will be sponsorning a luncheon at the Casino, at which the national president, Miss Belle Sherwin of Cleveland and Washington, will be a guest of honor. Miss Marguerite Wells of Minneapolis, heading the delegation scheduled to submit the league's three planks to the resolutions committee, will be the main speaker. All members are invited.

Also concurrently a "loyalty" luncheon in the Naval armory in Grant park will climax the convocation here of proponents of the eighteenth amendment, with a generous proportion of women in attendance. Presidents of organizations affiliated with the Women's National Committee for Law Enforcement will be introduced. Mrs. Jessie W. Nicholson of Chevy Chase, Md., president of the National Woman's Democratic Law Enforcement league, will give the principal address. Miss Jane Addams and A. A. Stagg will be on the program.

Two teas are in prospect for this afternoon. Mrs. Bina West Miller of Port Huron, national committeewoman from Michigan, will be hostess to the entire Michigan delegation at 501 Drake Towers. Mrs. Frank J. Conrad is chairman of a committee of the Hamilton club women who will entertain women delegates and alternates at the club. Similar teas will be held at the club tomorrow and Wednesday.

Hundreds of women will participate tonight in the anti-prohibition mass-meeting at the Coliseum, where Mrs. Charles H. Sabin, founder and head of the Women's Organization for National Prohibition Reform, will be one of the speakers.

A housewarming tea tomorrow afternoon at the new headquarters of the Illinois League of Women Voters, 225 North Michigan, is open to the Republican women visitors. A similar event is planned on June 27 for the Democrats.

Big Dinner Tomorrow.

Tomorrow night brings the major affair on the Republican list—the joint dinner of the Woman's National Republican club and the Hamilton club at the Stevens hotel. Secretary of War Patrick J. Hurley will deliver the only address of the evening. Afterward there will be a reception in the lounge, with groups from each state gathering under their separate banners.

Distinguished women here for the G. O. P. deliberations will be guests Wednesday afternoon of the Woman's University club for a tea at 185 North Wabash avenue. An auto tour of the city is planned for the same hours for the women delegates and alternates by the Hamilton club committee, starting from the Congress hotel.

Mrs. Mabel C. Reinecke will be hostess Wednesday night for the dinner the Chicago Woman's club is giving for the Republican visitors at the clubhouse at 72 East 11th street.

POLICE CLING TO SUICIDE OF MAID AS LINDY CLEW

But Fail to Report Any Progress in Case.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, June 12.—[Special.]—New Jersey police refused tonight to admit their case against Violet Sharpe, the Morrow waitress who committed suicide after long questioning, had collapsed. Col. A. Norman Schwarzkopf and his aids said they would continue to hold Ernest Brinkert, the Westchester county taxi driver, despite mounting evidence that he had no connection with the kidnaping of Charles A. Lindbergh Jr.

"It is all a matter of opinion," was Col. Schwarzkopf's answer to questioners seeking an explanation of the sensational happenings of the last three days which included a suicide, the seizure of Brinkert and the apparent collapse of the new lead when Ernie Miller, a callow youth, came forward with a story that he and not Brinkert was the companion of Miss Sharpe on a party the night of the kidnaping.

Protest at Police Methods.

Meanwhile New Jersey officials were beginning to receive protests regarding the methods employed by the police in subjecting apparently innocent persons to severe grillings. The police have been criticized from the beginning regarding their work on the Lindbergh case and the Sharpe girl's suicide is considered by some of the critics to be "just another example of blundering."

Mrs. Dwight W. Morrow, according to those close to the family, feels that Miss Sharpe should not have been accorded the treatment she received and is confident the girl was innocent of any guilty knowledge or action in the kidnaping. Efforts to reach members of the Morrow or Lindbergh families for an interview failed early tonight. The Lindberghs could not be located and Mrs. Morrow was reported en route to her daughter's school for commencement.

Flaws in Maid's Story.

The questions which since March 1 have been answered by Col. Schwarzkopf over the teletype were still being signed by him tonight, but a number of them were put to Inspector Harry Walsh of Jersey City who has played a major part in the Sharpe and Brinkert developments. It was Walsh who questioned Miss Sharpe during the greater part of her ordeal.

Walsh was asked, in view of his many questions to the girl concerning the "peanut grill" where she said she went on the night of the kidnaping with "Ernie" what he had found out about the café, who owned it and whether the girl's description fitted the place?

The ownership, he said, had not yet been determined, although the police first learned about the place from Miss Sharpe two months ago.

Denies Harsh Questioning.

Inspector Walsh, after saying all official announcements must be made through Trenton headquarters, gave a brief statement. He answered the statements of Miss Sharpe's sister who was questioned in England and others that the police questioning has upset the waitress' mind.

"The woman was never questioned except in the Morrow or Lindbergh home," he said. "She was questioned only three times and on one of those occasions Col. Lindbergh was present himself.

"The questioning was conducted with gentle persuasion and the full questions and answers made public speak for themselves. No duress was exercised at any time and the woman was never in a police headquarters."

In the morning bulletin Col. Schwarzkopf said the story of a missing ladder on the Claud W. Moody place in Mamaroneck, N. Y., where Brinkert quit work as butler on March 1, was still being checked.

Brinkert, the police said, was being held on his "own volition."

Ernie Miller, the Jersey youth who entered the case yesterday and supported Brinkert's alibi that he knew nothing about the case, was interviewed at his home this afternoon.

Miller is a callow country boy with dirty blond hair which he slicks back on his head. He did not appear interested one way or another in being brought into the case.

Eau Claire, Wis., June 12.—[Special.]—A frightened horse, carrying a 9 year old boy rider, jumped in front of an automobile near Elmwood tonight. WILL HAYS.

Who They Are

Four past commanders of the G. O. P. army were seen yesterday at the Congress hotel, the convention headquarters of the Republican national committee.

Frank H. Hitchcock, a delegate at large from Arizona, who has been here several days, antedates the others in national service. He was chairman of the national committee in 1908 and 1909. Charles D. Hilles, who is to head the New York state delegation, was national chairman from 1912 to 1916. Will Hays, a delegate from Indiana, the present czar of the movies, was national chairman from 1918 to 1921. And Dr. Hubert Work of Colorado headed the committee in 1928 and 1929.

Three out of the four have held the office of postmaster general, Hays under President Harding, Hitchcock under Taft, and Dr. Work under Coolidge. Later Dr. Work became secretary of the interior.

Another important leader in a former campaign seen about the same time was C. Bascom Slemp who, as secretary to President Coolidge, played an important rôle in the pre-election days of 1924. He was formerly national committeeman from Virginia.

GASTON MEANS CASE ON SWINDLING CHARGE TO REACH JURY TODAY

Washington, D. C., June 12.—(AP)—Another chapter in the checkered career of Gaston B. Means, former department of justice investigator, may be written tomorrow by a jury in the District of Columbia Supreme court which will hear final arguments in his trial on charges of swindling Mrs. Evalyn Walsh McLean of $104,000 in an alleged plan to return the kidnaped Lindbergh baby.

The burly detective's defense rested its case without placing a single witness on the stand. Justice James M. Proctor will dispose of motions on the instructions to be given to the jury, after which the prosecution and defense will be given two and one-half hours each to present their arguments.

Three counts of the indictment remain against Means. They charge embezzlement of $100,000, the amount turned over to Means for ransom money, larceny of the amount, and larceny of the expense money.

If convicted on the embezzlement count, the maximum penalty possible is ten years' imprisonment; the maximum penalties possible on the larceny counts are, for each, ten years' imprisonment and $1,000 fine.

ITALIAN FLYER WILL TRY TO SET NEW SPEED MARK

[Copyright: 1932: By the New York Times.]

DESENZANO, Italy, June 12.—Weather permitting, an attempt to beat the world's air speed record, now held for England by Flight Lieut. George H. Stainforth, with a speed of 407.5 miles an hour, will be made on Lake Garda tomorrow. The Italians hope to better the record by 15 to 20 miles.

The machine to be used is a Macchi 72 seaplane, powered with two Fiat engines, each developing about 1,500 horse power. The engines drive two propellers revolving in opposite directions. Lieut. Neri, Italy's leading speed pilot, will be at the controls.

ILLINOIS G. O. P. VOTE TONIGHT ON COMMITTEEMAN

Signs Indicate Bitter Fight with Four in Race.

BY PARKE BROWN.

All advance signs yesterday indicated that the caucus of the Illinois delegation to the Republican convention will be a knock down and drag out fight.

The 72 delegates with 61 votes will meet in the state's convention headquarters at the Hotel Stevens at 8 o'clock tonight, and unless there is some effective buttonholing before that time or some deal made between two or more of the four candidates for national committeeman the filling of that one office alone may be a protracted battle marked with some bitterness.

Four Still in Field.

Up to a late hour last night the four candidates were still in the field—Frank L. Smith of Dwight, Gov. Emmerson, Roy O. West, the incumbent, and George F. Harding. None claimed a majority, which is 31 votes.

The two candidates who now most nearly approach that majority—Smith and Emmerson—were both on the job. It was said that each is trying to add the required number of votes, but had made no progress because no considerable number of delegates appeared at the Congress, where Smith registered during the day, or at the Stevens, where the governor has been.

Due at Headquarters Today.

The Illinois delegates who will cast Illinois' votes on the convention floor are scheduled to appear at the Stevens headquarters today to obtain their credentials and tickets from Committeeman West and Mrs. Bertha Baur, the committeewoman. It is predicted that most of the buttonholing will be done at that time.

Settlement of the election of a chairman of the delegation and of its member on the committee on resolutions—by far the most important of the six committees of the convention on which each state has a representative—will await election of the committeeman.

The delegates feel that the Illinois man who will help draft the platform must be a whole hearted battler for repeal. Mentioned in this connection are George F. Barrett of Chicago and Cornelius J. (Tip) Doyle of Springfield, former state chairman.

POLAND TO CUT HIGH SALARIES OF BUSINESS CHIEFS

[Copyright: 1932: By the New York Times.]

WARSAW, June 12.—The Polish government today took drastic steps to control and reduce high executives' salaries in private enterprises, including industry, commerce, banking and insurance. The decree declares salaries should respond to an enterprise's paying capacity, earning power, employés' wages and state employment.

The courts are empowered to fix salaries according to the business situation. The decree in general invalidates contracts.

The step is said to have been necessitated by the fact that excessive executive earnings were draining enterprises of capital while workers' and minor officials' wages were falling and unemployment was growing.

HOOVER'S STAND FOR MORE CUTS BRINGS ATTACK

Some Believe Sales Tax May Be Revived.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., June 12.—[Special.]—President Hoover's call of last night for new legislative help in filling a gap of between 150 million and 200 million dollars in the 1933 budget, today brought forth severe criticism of the White House economy stand from Democratic ranks. It also served to inspire a swarm of predictions from senate and house leaders that congress will not adjourn before the latter part of June or the middle of July.

With one or two exceptions Republican and Democratic leaders joined in asserting that the budget should be balanced through further cuts in expenditures rather than by the lavying of additional taxes. Senator James Watson [Rep., Ind.], majority leader, came out flatly against additional taxes, saying that the appropriations bills should be overhauled to obtain the needed savings.

More Taxes Opposed.

Acting Chairman Charles R. Crisp [Dem., Ga.] of the house ways and means committee said he did not intend to call his committee together to search for new taxes. He asserted that the budget should be balanced through economies effected by cutting appropriations, abolishing surplus boards like the farm board, and by federal pay cuts.

Representative Henry T. Rainey [Dem., Ill.], majority leader of the house, was one of the few who suggested additional taxes as a means of making 1933 revenues balance 1933 expenditures. He suggested a manufacturers' sales tax.

In some quarters, the prediction was made today that the need for additional budget balancing funds will serve to revive the sales tax, notwithstanding the fact the billion dollar tax bill already has been enacted into law. There were no indications, however, of any active movement, either on the part of the administration or congress, to add economies to the economy bill or to effect new slashes in the supply bills carrying the funds for financing the various government departments and the huge group of independent establishments, like the farm board, which have grown up in recent years.

Hoover Blamed by Byrns.

Democrats today, for the most part, joined in condemning President Hoover's economy policies. Representative Joseph T. Byrns [Dem., Tenn.], chairman of the house appropriations committee, asserted that the President himself was largely to blame for the big expenditures arranged for 1933 which now threaten to unbalance the budget. He asserted that as the President has sent the budget estimates for the various departments to congress, it was now up to him to call his cabinet and other department heads together and work out a constructive program for cutting expenditures.

"President Hoover sent the appropriation bills to congress last December," said Chairman Byrns. "The house has trimmed them 162 million dollars thus far. If they are to be trimmed further, President Hoover should call his cabinet members together, work out a plan for additional slashes and send this new information to congress.

Furlough Method Assailed.

"Every time congress attempts to effect a saving the White House wants it done another way. The senate economy committee and the house economy committee wanted a straight pay cut. The senate committee voted a pay cut for federal employes which would have saved 121 millions."

BAINS' ATTACK ON INDICTMENTS IN COURT TODAY

Quick Trial Seen if Judge Upholds True Bills.

Arguments on the validity of the indictments against John Bain, south park commissioner and former head of twelve banks, his two sons and three other defendants, will be heard today by Judge John M. O'Connor of the Appellate court, who has been chosen to hear the case without a jury. The judge was transferred temporarily to the Criminal court especially to hear the Bain case.

Indications yesterday were that if Judge O'Connor allows the indictments to stand the actual trial will be under way by the end of the week.

Hope for Quick Decision.

The defense has signified its intention of waiving a jury and allowing the judge alone to determine if there were any criminal acts in connection with the operation of the Bain banks. Under this arrangement it is hoped to complete the entire trial within two weeks.

Special Assistant State's Attorney Edwin J. Raber said that the prosecution will proceed with the general conspiracy indictment, which names all of the six defendants. Beside Bain they are his two sons, John H. and Robert Bain; W. Merle Fisher, his son-in-law; Frank Mulholland, a south side real estate dealer, and Dr. Walter Buhlig, Bain's personal physician and a director of the bank.

Agree on Loop Courtroom.

As a matter of convenience for the witnesses and the attornueys the trial will be held in one of the county building courtrooms rather than in the criminal court building on the southwest side. The prosecution has voluminous record evidence, which it would be difficult to cart to the criminal court building.

State's Attorney Swanson expressed himself as pleased with the progress now being made by the courts in the handling of bank cases.

NEED OF NATION IS LEADERSHIP, HORNER ASSERTS

Judge Makes Address at Flag Day Exercises.

Judge Henry Horner, Democratic nominee for governor, declared the nation's greatest need is for true leaders in an address at the Flag day exercises of the Chicago Elks lodge in Grant park yesterday. The exercises were held following a parade of members of the lodge, veterans and patriotic societies through the loop and down Michigan avenue to the park.

"What we need in this nation is not new lights, but clearer vision to see the old lights; not new paths, but new strength to walk in the old paths; not newer duties, but newer inspiration to fulfill those that are plain before us," Judge Horner declared.

No Conflict with Patriotism.

"It does not conflict with the patriotic theme of this day for us to demand that governments cease to be a burden, that old-fashioned simplicity and economy be reëstablished in every part of our nation as a living symbol of patriotism. Patriotism is not confined to wars.

"What we need most is to summon our courage again, to find leaders who will march under this flag with an unswerving devotion to the ideals it represents. We shall then again see clearly our way ahead."

Judge Horner said that some of the purposes of civilization itself are being challenged in the present state of unrest, that there is even the suggestion that we relinquish our theme of popular government.

Will Not Admit Failure.

"The one hundred twenty millions who live in this country are too loyal to their flag, too grateful as heirs of Washington and Lincoln, too jealous of their own best interests, too thoughtful of their posterity to admit that popular government has failed," he said. "The people of this country have not failed. But they are feeling that their leadership has failed. The times call for leadership that represents honor and unselfishness."

Judge Horner's address was the main talk of the exercises, which started with a presidential salute of twenty-one guns and included the ritualistic service of the Elks and an address on the history of the flag by Albert J. Horan. Twelve American Legion posts marched in the parade with other groups of veterans. The occasion was the 155th birthday of the American flag.

Orders Arrest of Ablins on Slot Machine Charges

Capt. John Horan, commanding the central district police, yesterday ordered the arrest of Dave [Cock-eyed Mulligan] Ablin, and his brother, Samuel, after he had been informed that they were installing slot machines in loop garages. Two men arrested Saturday for possessing the machines will be arraigned today in the South State street court. They are Louis Shugall, arrested in the South Loop Motor Ramp garage, 318 Federal street, and John Hunter, arrested in the North Loop Motor Ramp garage, 70 West Lake street.

1,500 SOLDIERS WILL MOVE INTO LOOP WEDNESDAY

Fifteen hundred infantrymen, cavalrymen and artillerymen will move from Fort Sheridan on Wednesday into the heart of the city to a camp beside Soldiers' field, where they will remain throughout the George Washington bicentennial military tournament, to be held from June 24 to July 4. They are all from regular army units in the sixth corps area.

The troop movement from Fort Sheridan will start early Wednesday morning, according to the officers in charge. The infantry will travel in two detachments, one by way of the North Shore line and the other over the Chicago and North Western railroad. Both detachments, with bands at the heads of the columns, will march through the loop shortly before noon from the stations to Soldiers' field.

Others Will March.

The cavalry and artillery units will march the thirty miles from the fort to Soldiers' field, taking separate routes. Both will leave the fort at 6 a. m., and arrive in the loop about five hours later.

The cavalry and artillery units will halt for 10 minutes in every hour to rest the horses. At Soldiers' field the 1,500 Fort Sheridan men will join more than 100 troops from Jefferson barracks, Mo., who are already encamped here. The entire force will conduct daily rehearsals of maneuvers to be staged in the tournament.

100 Planes to Take Part.

The day before the tournament starts the ground force will be augmented by more than 100 army air corps planes, which will operate from Curtiss-Reynolds airport, in Glenview. Two hundred pilots, observers and mechanics will accompany the air force.

Thirty-five leaders of foreign groups in Chicago will be the guests of Maj. Gen. Frank Parker, commander of the sixth corps area, who is in charge of the tournament, at a dinner in the La Salle hotel tonight when plans for participation in the tournament by foreign groups will be discussed.

DEFENSE COUNCIL ASKS 48 GROUPS TO BE MEMBERS

Adequate U. S. Army Is Objective.

Forty-eight organizations with a total membership of 108,943 have been invited to join the Illinois National Defense council, formed recently by eight military and naval groups for the purpose of bringing pressure upon congress to enforce the national defense act of 1920. Lieut. Col. W. R. Matheny, vice chairman of the council announced yesterday.

COL. W. R. MATHENY.

Invitations to the forty-eight organizations are being mailed by Col. Diller S. Myers, secretary of the council, for the chairman, Ivan A. Elliott, commander of the Illinois Department of the American Legion. With the membership of the eight groups that originally formed the council, which is 114,662, the forty-eight other organizations asked to join the movement will bring the total membership represented by the council to 223,605 residents of the state.

Many Groups Invited.

Included in the forty-eight organizations to which invitations are being sent are groups of veterans of wars, auxiliaries to veterans' groups, descendants of soldiers, reserve and National Guard officer groups and groups classed as supporters of armed forces.

The national defense act of 1920, which the council will urge congress to enforce, provides for a regular army of 12,000 officers and 165,000 men; a National Guard of 210,000 men and proportionate officers; a reserve of 120,000 officers with training every year for a sufficient number to maintain a standard of reasonable efficiency; R. O. T. C. in each school and college that desires it; C. M. T. C. for not less than 37,500 youths per year for one month, and adequate peace time supplies and planning for procurement in time of emergency. The council also favors a navy of treaty size, with men sufficient to man it.

Want Funds Appropriated.

"The council believes that these standards should be met by the appropriation of sufficient funds for the purpose, when the financial condition of the nation will permit; and that, once established, these standards should be adhered to until world conditions permit a change, the council believing that the amount of armed forces necessary for safety should not be varied to meet political exigencies or economic fluctuations," Lieut. Col. Matheny pointed out.

In addition to the forty-eight groups now being invited to join the council, general patriotic societies, social, commercial, industrial, and women's clubs, fraternal orders and men's clubs in churches are to be invited to join the move to provide adequate national defense later, he said.

NEW SOUTH WALES RADICALS LOSE 34 SEATS IN DIET

SYDNEY, Australia, June 12.—(AP)—Supporters of the newly formed government of Premier B. S. B. Stevens will command a nearly three to one majority in the legislature of New South Wales as a result of yesterday's state election. Socialist supporters of J. T. Lang, premier of the state from November, 1930, until his dismissal from office by the governor last month, were overwhelmingly defeated.

The United Australia party, a combination of all anti-Socialist candidates, won 64 seats. The Lang supporters secured 21 and five remained doubtful. At the dissolution of parliament three weeks ago the party standing was: Labor party [Lang supporters], 55; United Australia party, 23; country party, 12.

Labor Wins in Queensland.

Moore, leader of the Nationalist-Country party coalition government since 1929. Results of yesterday's state election indicated tonight that after election of a speaker the Labor party would have a majority of one seat.

MANCHURIAN RAIL CHIEF MAY JOIN JAPAN'S CABINET

[Copyright: 1932: By the New York Times.]

TOKIO, June 12.—Count Yasuya Uchida, president of the South Manchuria railway, arrived here today and was invited by Premier Saito to take the post of foreign minister, which is now held temporarily by the chief of the cabinet.

Before he decides to accept the office, according to the Japanese newspapers, Count Uchida intends to reach a definite understanding with the army authorities regarding their policies. Should he take the office his action will apparently bring to the foreground the problem of the treatment of Manchuokuo, the new state of Manchuria. Count Uchida has declared himself in favor of early extension by Japan of recognition to the government of Henry Pu Yi. He said today recognition would not conflict with the obligations of Japan under the nine-power Pacific treaty, which binds its signatories to respect the territorial and administrative integrity of China.

Turkey Has Bread Shortage as Bakers Refuse to Bake

ISTANBUL, June 12.—Widespread rains in Turkey have removed fears of a shortage of grain, but the price of wheat has almost doubled. The bakers, whose request to increase the price of bread has been refused, have greatly reduced their output. The bakers are besieged by large crowds clamoring for bread, and the municipalities are threatening to inflict heavy fines on the bakers.

RESCUED OCEAN FLYER TOO ILL TO TELL HIS STORY

British Tanker Abandons His Derelict Plane.

S. S. CIRCE SHELL, 600 Miles Off Portugal, June 12.—(AP)—This small British tanker was en route tonight to New Orleans with Stanislaus Felix Hausner, young New York to Warsaw flyer, aboard, after picking him up yesterday in an exhausted condition. Hausner had been tossed about by the waves for eight days in his derelict plane.

Master Wilson of the Circe Shell said his unexpected passenger was too ill, apparently from exposure and starvation, to give a coherent account of his experiences.

Capt. Wilson, however, allayed any fears that Hausner was in a critical condition with the statement that with treatment he was progressing favorably.

Abandon Red Monoplane.

The Circe Shell, three weeks out of Hamburg on a leisurely trip to New Orleans, decided last night to abandon Hausner's red monoplane in approximately 42.41.18 north latitude and 20:04 west longitude because darkness soon closed in after the pilot had been taken aboard.

The plane was drifting southeastward at about a knot, and any vessel whose position was convenient was asked to salvage it. When last seen her tail was sticking high out of the waves, about 500 miles off the coast of Portugal.

Through the master of the Polish-American flyer thanked the Associated Press for its messages of congratulation on his rescue and asked to send his love to his relatives.

HARROWING EXPERIENCE.

The brief, sketchy account of the rescue of Stanislaus F. Hausner by the British tanker Circe Shell left much to the imagination Sunday night, 24 hours after the first word of his safety was pounded out by the radio operator aboard the vessel.

It was apparent, however, that Hausner had undergone trying experiences during the eight days he was supposed to have drifted aboard his 22? horsepower Bellanca monoplane. The statement of Capt. Wilson of the Circe Shell that Hausner was unable to give a coherent account of his battle against the sea made it apparent the 32 year old Newark, N. J., motion picture operator and amateur pilot had been taxed to his wit's end to remain aboard his plane. The fact that only the tail of the plane was above water when last seen indicated Hausner had clung to that alone.

Had Sufficient Food.

The foresight he showed in taking more than the usual supply of food when he lifted the plane, loaded with 525 gallons of gasoline and 25 gallons of oil, from the runway of Floyd Bennett field nine days ago, probably saved the pilot from even more hazardous experiences.

In his cockpit, on June 3, Hausner stored four chicken sandwiches, two ham sandwiches, several bars of chocolate, two apples, and two oranges, as well as a gallon of water and a container of black coffee.

Some doubt that he was able to do that was occasioned, however, by the fact that Capt. Wilson emphasized his exhausted condition. Whether that was due largely to lack of food or to the fight to keep from yielding to a desire to sleep could only be surmised.

Drifted About 200 Miles.

It is probable, however, that Hausner kept a constant watch for passing steamships during the many days his plane drifted to the southeast. If the one knot speed the monoplane was floating when abandoned by the Circe Shell was maintained during the several days preceding Hausner's rescue, it is probable Hausner drifted aboard the plane for close to 200 miles.

In that case, it is unlikely he was far off his course when forced to alight on the ocean surface.

An intimation that Hausner's exhaustion when picked up was so complete that he could not identify himself at once was seen in the fact that the first radio message sent out by the Circe Shell and intercepted by the liner Leviathan made no mention of the flyer's name.

The Circe Shell, a vessel of about 7,000 gross tonnage and 4,817 net tonnage, is expected to arrive in New Orleans within the next two weeks.

FALL ON SIDEWALK FATAL.

Paul Herman, 46 years old, 1520 North Monticello avenue, a sheet metal worker, died yesterday in the county hospital of a fractured skull received earlier in the day when he fell on the sidewalk in front of 2412 West North avenue.

COFFIN AGAIN ASKS FEDERAL ACTION TO SEEK TRADE REVIVAL

Washington, D. C., June 12.—[Special.]—In a letter sent to the White House today, Howard E. Coffin of Detroit replied to criticism by President Hoover to the proposal last week by 86 leaders in finance, industry and labor for revival of the council of national defense as a means of getting the country out of the economic depression.

Answering the President's objection that the duties of the council were of an "absolutely war" character, Mr. Coffin, a former member of the council, declares that the "body was not created during the war or as a war agency solely, but to serve the needed function of nonpartisan economic planning for the nation's immediate and future good."

Mr. Coffin made a counter proposal that the chief executive utilize through the Reconstruction Finance corporation the mechanism of the council known as the "states council organization," under which some 100,000 community organizations were developed during the war.

FINANCE OFFICES URGED TO GUARD AGAINST BANDITS

Police Offer Advice for Protection.

Personal finance and other companies keeping large sums of money in their offices were advised yesterday by Chief of Detectives William Schoemaker to adopt methods of combating robberies similar to those already in use in downstate and suburban banks.

The Illinois Association of Finance Companies, according to the detective chief, is arranging to hire guards. He added that they also should install bullet proof glass in the offices. Members of the Illinois Bankers' association have recommended such glass to their members.

Glass Alone Inadequate.

However, it was pointed out that other precautions must be obeyed, as the glass is useful only while the money stays on one side of it while the bandits stay on the other.

Recently the safety glass equipped First Trust and Savings bank of Riverdale was robbed. Officials of the J. H. Wise company, protection engineers, asserted the robbery would have been prevented if bank employes had followed rules to keep the robbers outside the tellers' cages.

Among these rules the protection engineers suggested:

1. That strangers not be allowed behind the enclosure, nor known customers if a stranger is loitering nearby.
2. Do not allow one man to open or close the bank.
3. Have the porter do cleaning work in the late afternoon.

Urge Two to Open Office.

This last rule was suggested because, it was said, robbers can overpower a porter shortly before time-locks are ready to be opened and can force him to behave naturally when other bank employes arrive.

Where no porter is on duty in the morning it was suggested that two employes approach the bank together, that only one enter and that the other stand some distance away. The first should look over the bank quarters, see that there are no robbers about and then signal the outside watcher.

SOUTH GERMANS ARE URGED TO QUIT FATHERLAND

Catholics of Austria Plan New State.

BY WILLIAM SHIRER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

VIENNA, Austria, June 12.—The dissatisfaction of the states of southern Germany with the government of Chancellor Franz von Papen and the visit of their premiers to President Paul von Hindenburg in Berlin has aroused keen interest in Austria where a strong group is working under cover towards the eventual union of all southern Germans, including Austrians, into an independent Catholic federal state.

Cleric Has Dreams of Union.

It has long been the dream of Msgr. Ignaz Seipel, Austrian cleric, politician and ex-chancellor, to unite all southern German Catholic states with Austria, which is predominately Catholic, too. Later Hungary and Slovenia, which also are strongly Catholic, would be added, according to his plan.

Dr. Seipel is too clever a politician to allow himself to be quoted on the subject today, but it was learned that other Austrian leaders recently have doubled their activities and are keeping in close touch with Bavarian statesmen.

The situation in Germany also has spurred Hungarian monarchists in their efforts to bring the Hapsburgs back.

Count George Palfavinci, one of the legitimist leaders, told parliament that Germany is on the eve of monarchical restoration and that Hungary ought to be too.

"With Germany ready to restore the monarchy and the new left government of France abandoning its 'little entente' charges, the time has come for us to be active and not passive," the count said. "The active policy is to put the crown of St. Stephen on the head of the rightful heir. The correct thing now is to bring back the Hungarian monarchy."

The count's words are reported to have created a stir in Czechoslovakia which is bitterly opposed to the return of the Hapsburgs to Budapest.

Polish Consul in Chicago Sends Greeting to Hausner

T. Buynowski, acting consul general of Poland in Chicago, last night dispatched the following radiogram to Stanislaus Felix Hausner, rescued ocean flyer, on board the S. S. Circe Shell: "Extremely happy at the news of your miraculous rescue by the S. S. Circe Shell. I am extending my sincere wishes and words of appreciation for your wonderful achievement in behalf of Poland."

DETROIT LOAN TO BE RENEWED BY BANK GROUP

Detroit, Mich., June 12.—[Special.]—G. Hall Roosevelt, city controller, today announced an agreement by a group of Chicago, New York and Detroit banks to renew $29,000,000 in Detroit's short term notes which fall due this month. Concern was expressed, however, over the tax delinquencies of approximately $19,500,000 which is greater by $1,500,000 than was expected.

Of the $29,000,000 notes which are to be renewed beginning Monday, $12,132,000 will be taken by the Chase National and National City banks and Guaranty Trust of New York and the Continental Illinois Trust Company of Chicago. The remainder will be provided by Detroit banks.

HERE IS COLLEGE WHOSE ECONOMY BALKED DEFICIT

Jacksonville, Ill., June 12.—[Special.]—In contrast with the financial troubles of sundry reported institutions of learning, Illinois college finished the year without a deficit. At the meeting of the trustees of the college, Walter Bellatti, chairman of the finance committee, presented the report of Arthur Anderson & Co., auditors.

It shows that despite an $8,000 reduction in income, economies have been effected which resulted in a $2,000 operating surplus this year, as compared with a deficit of $3,000 last year. The result was accomplished without a reduction in the number of the faculty or of the character of the education supplied.

The enrollment of the college this year was 412 as compared with 413 last year. The graduating class—77—was the largest in 103 years.

Ask Us How You Can Save 3% Sales Tax

Why dodge the issue?

70% of your refrigerator investment is in the mechanism

● Talk mechanics when buying your refrigerator and be money ahead later. General Electric urges you to learn the truth about refrigerator mechanism and save needless disappointment and expense. Complicated machinery has no place in the modern home. It requires attention and service and is subject to failure.

General Electric insured against failure of its refrigerator by building the Monitor Top. This unique unit cools by natural laws and does away with the need for fans, belts, pulleys and other exposed moving parts which wear out and break down—meanwhile demanding attention and frequent service.

No matter how many sales talks you may hear, this dramatic fact stands out: "The mechanism is the heart of the refrigerator and it cannot be ignored without someone paying the penalty." If the mechanism fails, your refrigerator is only a box. Thousands of people who have experimented with other "nationally known" refrigerators have learned that the service cost soon "eats them up." As a result these experienced owners have had their other "nationally known" electric refrigerators taken out and replaced with General Electric Refrigerators.

The Monitor Top is the answer to this trouble-free performance. It is built by the leading manufacturer in the electrical field—General Electric. It is tested and sealed at the factory; guaranteed against failure; guarded against the curious hands of children; armored against the tools of amateur mechanics. Apartment-house owners recognize it as the surest guarantee against costly upkeep and frequent complaint. Home owners know it as the "Lowest Cost Refrigeration."

LEWIS ATOP CAB AT BONUS CAMP; SPEECH CHEERED

'Can't Insult Me, by God,' and Jeers Cease.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., June 12.—[Special.]—Senator James Hamilton Lewis [Dem., Ill.], who started a private war with the bonus marchers a few days ago by consigning "to hell" a delegation which threatened to "get his job," made his peace with the veterans today.

Taking advantage of a slight lull in the Sunday downpour, the courtly Illinois senator arrayed himself in his most immaculate attire, invaded the main camp of the bonus expeditionary forces, received a few boos, answered them with a snappy "You can't insult me, by God," and then delivered an hour's speech which left his hearers hanging on the ropes.

Recognizes Those Whiskers.

About a dozen of the veterans, their spirits dampened by the rain and a chill afternoon wind, were gathered around the main entrance to the camp about 4 o'clock when a taxicab drove up. Idly looking over the new arrival one of the veterans suddenly uttered an exclamation. He had glimpsed and recognized the most famous pink whiskers of this era.

"Hey," he shouted as Senator Lewis stepped in dignified fashion to the running board of the car and then climbed to the top. By the time the senator had lifted his hands for silence two score veterans were within sound of his voice. Before he had finished a short explanation of his recent fracas with the veteran's delegation in the capital the senator orator had an audience of 500, not a few of them being camp policemen who had rushed to the protection of Mr. Lewis when the crowd started in his direction.

Boos Drown Out Voice.

"You can't insult me, by God," he shouted. "I fought for my country before most of you were born. I was in the Spanish-American war and I was in France during the world war."

The crowd quieted down for a second.

"I wanted to tell you about that incident at the capitol," said the senator. "I found out later that those fellows who heckled me until I told them to 'go to hell' were not veterans at all. They were card sharps. They carried loaded dice. That's why I knew they did not come from my state. We do not have fellows like that out where I live."

The crowd laughed. All but one big fellow, who leaped on a box and shouted, "That's all right, but tell us about the bonus."

For an hour the senator told them. When he concluded the jeers had turned to cheers. With a galiant bow Mr Lewis rode away.

Drowned in Race

George Fitz Roy, 16 years old, 10357 South Sangamon street, a junior at the Tilden High school, and Virginia Post, 17 years old, of 9944 South May street, a senior at Calumet High school, tried racing for a little distance in swimming yesterday at the 76th street beach.

They got as far as 400 feet off 74th street and started to turn back. After a few moments Virginia noticed that her swimming mate had disappeared. She hurried ashore and summoned help. Capt. James Murphy of the beach guards and Cyril Nelson, 23 years old, 1234 East 44th street, a champion club swimmer and a volunteer guard for the day, recovered young Fitz Roy's body in 9 feet of water.

More than an hour's effort at resuscitation by guards, firemen and Dr. D. F. Scott, 7321 South Shore drive, failed, and the boy was pronounced dead. He had gone to the beach with Virginia, Clara Moore, 17, of 9840 South Morgan street, and Frank White, also 17, of 1023 West 103d place, both high school students.

Three other persons drowned during the day, two of them in the Chicago river. They were a woman, believed to be Elizabeth Best, 45 years old, formerly of 867 North State street; Paul Zriny, 8, of 1722 Burlington street; and Antoni Cimoch, 45, of 749 Girard avenue, a barber. Cimoch died in Forest lake, near Lake Zurich.

The Zriny boy slipped off an embankment at Lumber street and into the south branch. His body was recovered by Chief Mate Carl Howell and a crew from the central coast guard station. Returning to the station, Mate Howell spied the woman floating in the river at the Dearborn street bridge. She was still alive. Efforts to revive her at the coast guard station failed. Whether she fell or jumped into the river is not known.

TEST VOTE ON BONUS ARRIVES TODAY IN HOUSE

Veterans' Capital Plight Made Worse by Rain.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., June 12.—[Special.]—An old, old enemy—familiar sloughy mud—came to plague the embattled bonus army today as it awaited the zero hour tomorrow when the house takes a test vote on the proposition of paying off the two billion dollar handout fourteen years before it is due.

Tormented by untold legions of villainous mosquitoes, the disconsolate battalions of bonus marchers huddled in rude shacks, tattered tents, and parked automobiles through a night and day of incessant, driving rain. As they ventured forth for soup their feet sank ankle deep in sticky mud.

It had a more depressing effect in Washington's tented city than the barrage of rain and charges of mosquitoes combined.

There was considerable talk yesterday about the veterans marching on the capitol en masse tomorrow for a super-demonstration to impress congress before the house takes its vote. Little such talk was heard today.

Advise Against Clamor.

The leaders of the encamped army are anxious to prevent any demonstration around the capitol if they can help it. They realize that another drive on the capitol might turn the sentiment of the house against their cause. There is no doubt, however, that every veteran who can get there will be in the gallery.

The vote tomorrow will not be on adoption of the bonus bill. It will be on adoption of the petition to discharge the ways and means committee from further consideration of the bill, thereby bringing the measure out on the floor for a vote.

Opponents of the bill concede the adoption of the discharge petition by from 15 to 50 votes. If this proves true, all of Tuesday and possibly part of Wednesday will be occupied by debate before the roll is called on adoption of the bill. It is expected to pass the house by about the same majority.

Defeat of the bill in the senate is considered highly probable. In some quarters it was predicted that 65 of the 96 senators would vote against it. If it passes the senate, however, President Hoover has made it clear he will veto it.

Fear Contagion in Camp.

While the sea of mud that engulfed the Anacostia flats, where the bonus army is encamped, was just a depressing, annoying spectacle to the veterans, it represented something more to the worried health officials of Washington. Fear was expressed both by Washington health officers and marine corps medical units at the camp that it would result in widespread sickness in the tented city.

AIRSHIP AKRON OVER TEXAS ON JOURNEY HOME

Big Spring, Tex., June 12.—(AP)—Cruising against a southeast head wind, the U. S. S. Akron nosed its way across the plains of Texas late today on its way to the home hangar at Lakehurst, N. J., after a month's visit on the west coast.

Ground observers estimated the naval dirigible was moving between fifty and sixty miles an hour when it passed over this city at 4:25 p. m. [central standard time].

A radio message from Lieutenant Commander Charles E. Rosendahl, asking a report on weather conditions, said the Akron had experienced no difficulty in west Texas except at Pecos, where a strong northeast wind threatened to throw the ship off its course. It increased its altitude to 3,500 feet and rode out the squall.

A plane attached to the Akron landed at Pecos and established contact again as the dirigible flew over the city.

21,482,588 Votes for Hoover in '28

were 21,482,588 votes cast for Herbert Hoover in 1928? Why did Hoover's majority exceed by 6,471,473 the total votes cast for the Democratic candidate? PROHIBITION played a vital part in that result. The delegates to the Republican National Convention can well ponder that fact. In the forthcoming campaign, as in campaigns of the past, the voters of these United States will respond unfailingly to a real issue. Those twenty-one million votes that were cast for prohibition and law enforcement in 1928 will again be cast this year—if the issue is clean cut and unmistakable.

The country has not changed on prohibition. Mark you well that fact. The cry of the old-time booze crowd today again resounds from the hill-tops. But do not be misled. The brewers want prohibition abolished. The distillers want prohibition abolished. The privileged rich wets are intent on lifting the tax burden from their own shoulders and putting it on the masses as a beer tax. The booze politicians are talking loudly. And the wet press belches forth its biased sentiment. The booze dollars would have you believe that all America is hollering for beer. But the honest votes of honest citizens will, as always, be cast according to the dictates of honest convictions. 21,482,588 just cannot be laughed down!

The great argument of the wets today is based on extra-legal polls such as the Literary Digest poll. Let us study the Digest poll for just a moment. 20,000,000 ballots were distributed. Only 17.16% of this number came back in favor of repeal. Such a low percentage of votes for repeal proves beyond question that there is little real sentiment and action back of all the booze noise. Naturally, a ballot of this type meant little or nothing to the average person in favor of continuance. But to the repealist it was a golden opportunity for self expression. Despite the hip, hip, hooray of the booze advocates the masses will not be misled. That party which deserts the masses in favor of the loud speaking wets is doomed.

Let's have the TRUTH about Prohibition

Has Prohibition Increased Drinking?

22.43 gallons of liquor was the average for every man, woman and child in the United States yearly from 1910 to 1914.*

Can anybody believe that is true now?

One retail liquor dealer for every 74 families in 1908.

The government measured the amount of hops, corn sugar, rye, barley, etc., raised and imported, then subtracted the amounts used in known legal enterprises, and has reported that the amount of raw material left would make less than one-third of the liquor formerly consumed.—Col. Amos W. W. Woodcock.

The Chicago Tribune June, 1914, revealed the startling fact that "14,000 women and girls frequent the back rooms of the saloons on Madison, Clark and Cottage Grove Avenue."

Compare 1932 conditions with those of 1914 when 14,000 women were staggering through legalized saloons every day of the year in just one small section of one city.

*U. S. Department of Commerce Statistics.

How About Crime?

Crime is decreasing, even though the sensational press has made the world crime-conscious.

U. S. Bureau of Census records, 1910 to 1928, prove crime rate decline almost 40%, even with added arrests for "new laws" on drugs, liquor and motor traffic.

*New York crime figures show there were more arrests in pre-prohibition years than since, despite tremendous population increase since then; homicide rate was 31% greater, felonies were 11% greater, drunkenness was 129% greater in wet years.

Marked decrease in every one of the fifteen major offenses, 1921-1931: Survey under Chief Justice Sonsteby, Chicago Municipal Court.

Alexander G. Jamie, director Chicago's Secret Six: "Prohibition violation crimes in the last year or two have shrunk to a size that can no longer command the chief attention of the forces waging war on the underworld; several active criminal industries bring more revenue than bootlegging to the underworld. "Alcohol links the lowest elements of the underworld with the millionaires financing the fight to overthrow prohibition and lower their taxes . . . having the taxes come from the wives and children of the workingmen who would spend their wages in saloons as they did before prohibition.

"4% beer will not do away with the criminal use of the machine gun, bomb, acid vial, torch, and the quick getaway afforded by auto and airplane."

*World Almanac, 1932.

Liquor and Labor

Open up the breweries and you shut down the mills.

The money that goes to liquor cheats three men out of a job.

*For every million dollars invested, the brewer employed 78 wage earners, while the million dollars in other industries average 318 workers.

So it is to laugh when the wets send up their howl for beer on the basis that it will increase employment.

The money spent for booze can't buy shoes nor any other legitimate commodity and for every man that might be hired by beer, at least three would be fired from the industries that would lose the beer money.

The wet ruse of liquor to solve the unemployment problem is as frothy as the foam on the beer itself.

Beer and the Farmer

When beer went out milk came in.
The farmer gets more money for butter than for the grain in booze.

"Only three-fourths of one per cent of the country's grain" was used by the brewers before prohibition, according to the sworn testimony of Gustav Pabst of Milwaukee, 1917, when he represented the liquor interests in Washington.

Milk consumption, 1917 to 1929, has increased per capita from 754 pounds to 1,000 pounds.
Louis J. Taber, president of the National Grange, says:

"It takes vastly more grain for a million pork chops and a million glasses of milk than for a million glasses of beer and a million glasses of whiskey."

The farmer's best customer is the well-paid laboring man. Farmers are looking for relief but not from prohibition which is beneficial to them. They know it.

The National Grange, composed of 800,000 farmers, has voted overwhelmingly for support of prohibition.

FEDERAL RELIEF TO THE STATES.

Although the $300,000,000 relief bill giving aid to the states to meet emergencies is generically bad, it has been apparent that it would be passed. No alternative has been found. It is true, as Senators Bingham of Connecticut, Reed of Pennsylvania, and Gore of Oklahoma said, that the American form of government is in danger of being completely submerged. Senator Bingham added that his state would continue to rely on its own competence. It will not ask for a loan. That may be the senator's hope and not prove to be the fact, but if Connecticut is fortunate enough to take care of its own responsibilities it is indeed fortunate.

The senate in passing the relief bill tried to prevent it from being converted into a gift of alms. Interest is required and the loan is to be repaid, but one method of repayment is contingent upon the continuance of the indefensible federal subsidies to states for roadmaking. The loans may be deducted from these grants later. Inasmuch as the subsidies should not be continued, this provision for settlement merely carries on a bad system.

It must be conceded that the emergency loan from the federal government to states which cannot carry their own obligations is an alarming symptom of decay in the American Union. The reason for the decay, however, is transparent. Government has taken the fluid assets of the country. To prodigal local administration has been added the demands of the unnatural bureaucracy in Washington and the citizens are tax starved. They cannot meet their own responsibilities because their available cash has been taken from them by public authorities.

State competence has been broken down by the drains upon state resources to meet the requirements of the swollen and overreaching government in Washington. The states are in bankruptcy for this reason. Illinois, for instance, sends a quarter billion dollars to Washington in income taxes, most of it from Chicago. Precious little of this ever finds its way back in government services. In these days such taxation is taking the money with which the state might manage its own affairs.

A federal government reduced to its proper size, restricted to its proper functions, and conducted without extravagance or fraud would not need these great sums. There are subsidy states which have learned to depend upon Washington and do not pretend to pay their own way or want to, but now the self-sufficient states are being extinguished.

There can be no doubt that present day fiscal legislation in Washington is endangering the spirit, the form, and the substance of the American system of government. The people may recover their desire to return to their tried processes. The states may get back their self-respect and their desire to maintain their ancient responsibilities and liberties. The federal government may be compressed again into its original and proper form.

Meanwhile, the causes having flowed to consequences and the emergency of tax impoverished people being what it is, the government at Washington, finding no alternative, accepts the forced conclusion of federal aid to the indigent units of the Union.

CLEAN UP THE COAST GUARDS.

It is to be hoped the new commandant of the coast guard, Rear Admiral Hamlet, will put that service back where it belongs. During the régime of prohibition it has been exploited by reckless fanaticism and become through some of its membership a scandal and worse than a public nuisance. Coast guard men have shown a disregard of the rights of the law abiding citizens and a recklessness of their safety which has roused the indignation of the nation. Official zeal has passed the bounds of decency at the behest of bigotry and there ought to be a thorough change of policy. Citizens' lives have been repeatedly endangered and in some cases taken, merely on suspicion, and, as facts later demonstrated, without justification. It has been highly characteristic of the forces back of Volsteadism, but it has not written a chapter of which the coast guard will be proud. As head of the coast guard academy, Admiral Hamlet knows the honorable traditions of that service and the lawful limits of its powers and duties. We hope he will revive them, as the public, apart from ruthless zealots, demands. Irresponsibles in the service should be weeded out and a proper policy restored and strictly maintained.

TODAY AND TOMORROW.

In the sorry drama of the present congress there are not many actors upon whom a future generation will look back with respect. But happily there are a few, and certainly among them will be Senator David Reed of Pennsylvania. Though it has been his fate in this momentous period to have been one of an honorable minority and to have been forced to fall back upon the unsatisfying function of unavailing dissent, the soundness of his views and the force and courageous candor of their expression have made them notable in the records of public discussion. We are confident they have impressed the thinking people of the nation, however far short they have come of swaying the actions of our legislators in congress.

But Senator Reed and those of his colleagues who have joined in defense of the nation from the fallacies, the costly shortsightedness and unsoundness of thought and emotion which have alarmed and disheartened responsible citizenship have at any rate the satisfaction of knowing that wise dissent wins its way in the long run and will have its triumph tomorrow, if not now when it is so sorely needed.

It may be too much to hope that Senator Reed can by sheer force of intellect sway misguided colleagues, but the spectacle of legislative folly and irresponsibility, of political and economic quackery, of unscrupulous appeal to prejudice and special interests upon which the adjournment of this congress will drop the curtain has not been lost upon the American people. The signs are everywhere appearing of militant protest against political chicanery and irresponsibility, especially against the stubborn refusal of congress to meet the dire need of the nation for the retrenchment of public expenditure which we the people are beginning to realize is the overshadowing issue of national policy today. The power of this protest is growing swiftly and, though it has been and may be ignored by this congress, it will be heard in the next. Then the men who like Senator Reed have fought at this session against odds on behalf of sound measures and sound policies, conceived in the broad interest of the whole nation, will find that their service to their country has not been smothered in the folly of this session.

ON TO WASHINGTON.

The several thousand bonus boys who have drifted into Washington waiting to hear the congressional cry of "Come and get it" alarm the health authorities. Their camp at Anacostia is not a model of sanitation. The boys say they look for reinforcements which will raise their numbers to 50,000, and they're not going home until it's put over over here. The Washington chief of police, although as perturbed as Aunt Priscilla, has had no more luck than Henry Ford in getting the boys out of the trenches, Christmas or no Christmas. He probably will not have. The congressional carol singers have invited the incursion by their own demagogy.

There is no good reason why the boys should not be in Washington. There are many good reasons why they should be there. It is the place for every detachable unemployed male in the country. Any man out of a job who can get to Washington on Adam's ox or on freight car rods should go and make himself at home.

The chances are he will find the cause of his unemployment there. He will find the men who have drained the country of money. They have taken it out of the factory towns and drawn it into the capitol. Having taken it, they are responsible for its distribution. They have refused to cut appreciably the expenses of the town they run with the taxpayers' money. There is no unemployment in Washington. It feeds upon the rest of the country and feeds well.

The unemployed should go there and camp. It is their equitable privilege. Washington has put them in the condition in which they find themselves. It should take care of them.

Editorial of the Day

THE OPPORTUNITY AT CHICAGO.

[St. Louis Post-Dispatch]

When the Republican national convention meets at Chicago next Tuesday the party will be faced by a great opportunity. It can stand for repeal of the eighteenth amendment.

It can by so doing serve three excellent purposes: 1. It can force the Democratic convention, which follows, to do the same thing. 2. It can take the prohibition issue out of American politics. 3. It can set the excellent example of courage after 12 years of cowardice.

If the Republican convention dodges this issue the Democratic convention will be in position to profit by that error. In that situation, if the Democratic convention declares for repeal, the Republicans will be in grave danger in such states as New York, Pennsylvania, Illinois and Massachusetts.

They would also be in the dangerous position of not standing for anything at a time when the country needs leadership out of such a wilderness as few nations have ever found themselves in.

Few blessings could result to the country through party action comparable to that of having the liquor issue taken out of politics. The country has many serious problems to face. It has no time for the age-long and irreconcilable differences of opinion as to intoxicating liquors. That is a social question, and it is one which can be settled when the people are not engrossed with the problems of government.

It goes without saying that to submit the question through the state legislatures would only continue the political mess in which we find ourselves now. The legislatures meet to consider affairs of state. Prohibition is not an affair of state. The attempt to make it one is what has occasioned all the confusion.

The repeal of the eighteenth amendment must be passed upon by state conventions, called for the purpose of considering this question, and this question only. This is the key to the solution of the whole problem. It is useless to try anything less, as it will only further demoralize us to try anything else.

A REAL BOY.

A little boy went to school for the first time. When he returned home his father inquired how he liked it.

"It's all right, but they ask too many questions," said the lad. "First they asked me where you were born and I told them. Then they asked me where mother was born and I told them. But when they asked me where I was born I had to tell a lie."

"Why?" asked his father.

"I didn't want to say I was born in the Woman's hospital and have them think I was a sissy, so I told them it was in the Yankee stadium."—New York Sun.

MADE TO ORDER.

"I'm going to write my memoirs."

"Have you any memoirs?"

"O, that doesn't matter."—Exchange.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

How to the Line, let the quips fall where they may.

THE PROUD OLD COMMONWEALTH OF ILLINOY has got to make oath that it's a pauper in order to get coin from the government. Ah, and so now we must revise that glorious saga "Illinoy" so that it will end something like this:

On the record of the years,
You are busted, it appears,
Hence we weep these scalding tears,
Illinoy.
Hence we weep these scalding tears,
Illinoy.

Maybe after all we'd better sell the state back to the Indians. They probably wouldn't pay us any more for it than we paid them, eighty-seven dollars and thirty cents, two dozen bottles of whisky, and some glass beads. They could keep the beads, but the eighty-seven dollars and thirty cents and the bottled stuff would be much appreciated at this time.

THE ADVENTURER FRUSTRATE.

There are many things he'd like—a rabbit, a bike—
But he'd rather have a pistol like Dick Tracy's;
There are exploits not a few which are running overdue
While he waits to get a pistol like Dick Tracy's.
There are Indians red as rust who have never bitten dust,
And he needs to have a pistol like Dick's Tracy's;
There'd be redskins all around, fairly cluttering the ground,
If he only had a pistol like Dick Tracy's.
Ali Baba's forty thieves with their daggers in their sleeves
And all he really lacks to step out in Tracy's tracks
Is a small and shiny pistol like Dick Tracy's.
When the unsuspecting crooks that you read of in the books
Hear him coming with a pistol like Dick Tracy's,
There'll be panic, there'll be pains, there'll be bullet holes in brains,
And our hero will be smiling—like Dick Tracy.

THE STORY IN THE NEWSPAPERS that some of the far western delegates to the convention are bringing shingles to Chicago, which are used as money out along the Pacific, and which have been accepted as coin by merchants in Chicago, gave us a ray of hope. We hustled right up to the roof of our flat building, but—curses on the machine age—we came into the world too late; our flat building is roofed with tin, nary a shingle anywhere in sight. It's a tough world.

THE BACK SEAT DRIVER.

Courage, you back seat drivers! A Chicago gentleman laughed scornfully at his wife when she indulged in back seat driving, and just for that the court gave her a divorce. And anyhow in some states if a passenger in a car does not give warning of danger the passenger is held jointly liable if something happens. And besides the back seat driving thing has simply become a standard joke like the mother-in-law joke and the old church oyster wheeze. If the great white truth were known the back seat driver has kept many a gent or lady at the wheel from the county jail, the nearest hospital, and the pearly gates. If somebody riding with us sees a train whooping down on the crossing ahead at seventy miles an hour and we don't see the train and the other party says nothing whatever about it and we get hit by the train—well, now, honestly, we're going to give a well bred sneer at our passenger—as soon as our face gets well enough for sneering.

FINGER PRINTS.

THE Lindbergh baby was fingerprinted soon after birth. Some time after he was stolen racketeers came to one of the large New York newspapers, trying to "muscle in" on the reward it had promised for the return of the baby. They claimed that they were in position to turn over the kidnaped child and offered to do so for a sum of money. The publisher told them to bring in finger prints and if these matched those of the Lindbergh baby they would talk business, but no clothing or fabrics, pictures or descriptions of height, weight, and features would be accepted. In every case the applicants for funds made no further efforts to collect through that channel.

Dr. H. C. Scholer writes us making a good suggestion. It is that every newborn babe be finger printed on the birth certificate. This record would be filed with the local health department, county clerk, or state health department, in accordance with the law of the state where the birth occurred. If the certificate was photostated and a copy filed elsewhere, as some laws require, the copy would show the finger print. (One limitation of the proposal is that not all registration offices have ready access to a photostat machine.)

Such a record would serve several useful purposes. It would prevent the mixing of babies in large hospitals. It should prevent the fraudulent use of birth certificates for the purpose of entering school, leaving school to go to work, securing passports, serving in the army or navy, taking up residence where effort is being made to deport aliens, inheriting property, and establishing family relationships.

It is generally understood that there is some fraudulent use of birth certificates at present. The law requiring registration is valuable for health purposes and still more valuable from the legal standpoint. But it has serious limitations. The certificate as at present recorded establishes that certain people, identified by several items of information found on the certificate, were the parents of a child of a given sex born at a certain place on a certain day, and that this fact was certified to soon after the occurrence by persons presumed to know the facts. The informant is generally in a position to know the truth of all the statements made except as to the father of the child. On that point he or she accepts hearsay evidence. The weakness of the certificate lies in its description of the child. Dr. Scholer's proposal is that, to the statement that the child was of a certain sex, was given a name appropriate thereto, and was born at a particular time and place, there be added a record of the other stable characteristic.

The pattern of the ridges of the skin on the fingers, hands, and feet is peculiar to the individual and is permanent. It is a characteristic with which the child is born, but which he does not inherit—thus giving us about as good an illustration as we know of the difference between things congenital and things inherited. Furthermore, the pattern remains in spite of everything that can be done to remove it short of deep scarring. The bricklayer does not wear it off when he works at his job; the criminal cannot polish it off with an emery wheel, and the ridges on the fingers of the gloved dandy are not influenced by the protection his hands have had. So far as we know, the pattern of the ridges persists from the cradle to the grave.

BLOOD PRESSURE.

H. G. writes: 1. My blood pressure registers: Systolic, 110 to 115; diastolic, about 50 points lower. I am 37, weigh 213 pounds—quite fat but heavy boned and muscled. No irregularity has ever been found with my heart, though it beats rather slowly—60 normally and when I feel particularly low, 46 to 48. Upon walking briskly it jumps to 110 to 115. What will be the result of this?

2. Are the heart symptoms serious and what is the possible cause?

3. Do you think very heavy smoking, coupled with a sedentary life, could bring about this condition?

4. I feel very low spirited and tired nearly all the time. Do you think a well planned course of physical culture would be effective?

REPLY:

1. You have low blood pressure. The effect will be that you will have many symptoms and but few diseases, and for a long time.

2. You should have your heart carefully examined. Your pulse pressure is not in proper relation to your other pressures, and the variation in your pulse rate is too great.

3. The evidence against smoking is not good in your case.

4. Low pressure persons generally feel low spirited. I judge there is no doubt but that you need to change your habits.

DEEP BREATHING.

F. M. P. writes: What are some of the benefits derived from deep breathing? Is the morning the best time, or is it beneficial any time of the day? During periods of inflation and deflation, is it wise to hold the breath and count?

REPLY:

Deep breathing is fine exercise for the muscles of the chest, back, and neck. It is a good way of warming cold feet. Beyond that it is not of any particular service. It overloads the blood with oxygen, but that does no harm, since a period of deep breathing is always followed immediately by shallow breathing during which the blood gets rid of its overload of oxygen.

There are authorities who say that holding the breath while one counts throws too much strain on the heart. They are right if the heart is not well compensated.

Consult your convenience as to the time of deep breathing. Most persons do their breathing stunts before they dress in the morning. The time is convenient to most persons, and deep breathing at that time helps one to thoroughly waken, in this being of service to the w. k. cold face bath.

TRY BAREFOOT CURE.

Mrs. R. W. E. writes: My five year old girl has a terrible time with perspiring feet. Is it a bad habit to get the feet accustomed to a foot powder in the shoes?

REPLY:

I don't think foot powder would hurt her, but why not try the barefoot cure, or let her wear sandals but no stockings.

FROM THE TRIBUNE'S COLUMNS

16 YEARS AGO TODAY

JUNE 13, 1916.

ST. LOUIS, Mo.—President Wilson has issued his final instructions to the Democratic national convention, which he controls, which he will manage over the long distance telephone, and which will renominate him unanimously for reelection. This is the attitude of the President upon the major questions with which the convention, which assembles June 14, will deal: He desires the renomination of Vice President Thomas Riley Marshall of Indianapolis; he desires the adoption of the Democratic national platform which he has revised and in part written; he desires action by the party to attract the support of the Progressives by the advocacy of the principles for which they have contended; and expresses no opinion on the proposal that the convention condemn Mr. Hughes, the Republican candidate, for remaining a member of the Supreme court while the friends of the jurist were promoting his nomination for the presidency.

NEW YORK.—With a brand new smile, almost of Rooseveltian proportions, on his face, Charles Evans Hughes, Republican candidate for President, gathered a number of stanch supporters around him at the Hotel Astor to organize his presidential campaign. Indications were that the chief aim of the nominee's present mission here was to effect a reunion of the Republican and Progressive forces and end the feud started in 1912.

PETROGRAD.—The greatest battle of the war on the eastern front, a general engagement all along the 600 mile line from the Gulf of Riga to the Rumanian frontier, is in progress. With the complete rout of the Austrian armies in the south and the swift Russian advance, which again is threatening to overrun Galicia and Bukowina, the Germans have begun a general counter offensive on their northern half of the long line in an endeavor to draw off the Russians in their great drive against the Austro-Hungarians.

CHICAGO.—John Valentine Steger, piano manufacturer, came to his death accidentally through an attack of heart disease, according to the verdict reached yesterday at Steger by a coroner's jury. He was found dead in a large pond.

TODAY'S QUESTION.

Which is more important, heredity or environment?

YESTERDAY'S QUESTION.

What is the machinery of heredity?

ANSWER.

Within the nucleus of the living cell the microscope reveals darkly staining, sausage shaped bodies known as "chromosomes." Arranged in a single line upon each chromosome are many invisible units of heredity, the "genes." When the fertilized egg divides to form two cells every chromosome and every gene that it carries is very exactly divided, so that each of the daughter cells gets an identical hereditary equipment. In the development of the body these exact cell divisions occur repeatedly, so that every one of the billions of cells that at last compose the adult body has the same hereditary endowment. The hereditary characters shown by an organism are due to the influences of these genes which it contains.

Each egg that is formed carries just half the ordinary number of chromosomes and genes, and this is likewise true of each sperm. Union of sperm and egg in fertilization brings back the normal number of chromosomes to the fertilized egg, father and mother having contributed an equal number of hereditary units to its makeup.

The only real advantage in the sexual method of reproduction, as compared with other methods, is that it brings many new combinations of hereditary characters. Some of these combinations produce superior organisms.

CASHIER'S CHECK.

Chicago, June 5.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—A certain firm received a check from an individual drawn against his account. This firm was not a depositor of the bank on which the check was drawn. They were anxious to make collection as soon as possible, but did not want to certify the check in order not to show anxiety to the drawer, so they ask the bank on which the check is drawn for a cashier's check in favor of the same payees. They indorse the check. 1. Should the bank issue its cashier's check to the payees not knowing the payees' indorsements? 2. Is it necessary to indorse such a check? 3. Can the bank issue its cashier's check to the same payees and indorse the check "Paid by Cashier's Check No. —?" 4. Is the bank that issues a cashier's check for a check drawn on them by its client responsible for the indorsement, or is the bank that will ultimately cash the cashier's check responsible for the indorsement of the payee? H. E.

1. There is no law against their doing it, but they would be running a risk.

2. Which check? In general the person receiving a check is entitled to ask for an indorsement.

3. They can do anything that they please. If they wish to ask for the indorsement it is for their own protection.

4. It is not clear which check you are referring to, nor what you mean by the word responsible.

A PARADE OF COFFINS.

St. Paul, Minn., June 6.—In order to bring forcibly to the attention of the American people the rôle the fanatics play in the Anti-Saloon league and in the brutal enforcement of the 18th amendment, I suggest that a parade through the streets of Chicago, prior to the conventions, of two thousand or more coffins on trucks or autos with suitable signs or banners would bring home to all the thought that he or she may be the next innocent victim of the fanatics' insatiable lust for blood and suffering.

May I call your attention to the anti-prohibition cartoon that Mr. Orr used to run on Mondays in your paper? Quite a few times he used a background of crosses over graves. I cannot recall any one thing that has ever caused thinking people to stop and ponder over the brutalities of prohibition more than those cartoons have done. I hope they are resumed. JOHN E. DOLAN.

WHY THEY'RE WET.

Chicago, June 7.—The Women's Organization for National Prohibition Reform believes that prohibition is a great moral as well as economic failure. Its moral failure is so evident and indisputable that it needs no elaboration. From the economic point of view all taxpayers who are burdened with taxes should know of the tremendous sums of money being spent in attempting to enforce prohibition and also appreciate that this loss in revenue to our government is going to finance racketeering, crime, and corruption. Our membership cards state that we "believe that national prohibition has increased lawlessness, hypocrisy, and corruption and has retarded the cause of real temperance" and that we wish "to return to each state its power to regulate the manufacture, sale, and transportation of intoxicating beverages." We are unalterably opposed to the return of the saloon and have sufficient confidence in the judgment of the people after their experiences under prohibition to plan some form of state control which people will respect and obey.

We are continually being charged with being law breakers because we want the 18th amendment repealed. This, of course, is not true. Article 5 of the constitution provides for the right of individuals to work for a change in the law if it has not worked satisfactorily and provides the means of doing it. Even President Hoover with all his prohibition proclivities knows this to be true. In his inaugural address in 1928 he plainly said that if people did not like a law it was their privilege to work for its change in an orderly manner. That is what we are doing.

We regret very much that in such strenuous times as these we should be the object of such bitter feeling on the part of the drys merely because we do not agree with them. We respect the opinions of sincere drys and we feel that we are entitled to the same respect from them.

SOCIALISM IN THE SCHOOLS.

Chicago, June 9.—Why is it necessary for The Tribune to go to the University of Wisconsin to find the teaching of communistic, socialistic and other radical doctrines in the public schools? I am a student in one of the large public high schools here and I am taught the various socialistic doctrines and the essentials of communism. I am told that Debs was a martyr, that Marx was a genius, that Lenin was a master mind, etc., etc. I am told that our great conservative newspapers rarely, if ever, tell the truth. I am told that none of our textbooks are good because they are too conservative, that our school system is no good because it is controlled by downtown bankers, that the American Civil Liberties union is the savior of the oppressed, but that various other organizations, as the business men's associations and the American Legion, suppress free speech and cruelly mistreat persons who wish to change the present system.

If I had believed implicitly in what my teachers told me, I would be a full fledged Socialist and would be out campaigning for Norman Thomas in the coming election. I intend this not as a criticism of the teachers but of what they teach. Such teachers usually teach their subject well. GRADUATING SENIOR.

FRESH FISH.

Billings, Mont., June 4.—Millions of meals each day may be secured by the unemployed and needy if the rivers of the different states are thrown open for fishing without license. Free fishing for food in the rivers would give a certain measure of independence and would give our people thousands and thousands of tons of palatable, healthful food in the form of fresh fish. A man should not be branded a criminal for dragging a few fish out of the river to feed his starving wife and children. He has not stolen anything, but has simply tried to proudly keep himself above dependence and charity.

Game fish do not generally abound in the rivers, so this proposition, if acted on favorably, would not injure the sportsman, as the brooks, creeks and ponds and lakes could be reserved. There is a time when good sportsmen will be good sports and it is now.

ALBERT T. E. SMITH.

A BAD SMELL.

Chicago, June 8.—The foul condition of the air from Montrose avenue north along the lake, through uptown and Edgewater, is a disgrace to a civilized community and the public authorities have something to answer for that such a state of affairs can go on without a word as to what is being done to correct it. For the last two weeks it has been getting worse and any one that did not know would judge that this was a city of railroad roundhouses or situated in the oil fields. RALPH JACKSON.

MEDICAL TESTIMONY.

Chicago, June 7.—The Tribune reports from Paris that on June 6 a bibulous person, J. Henry Cochran, broke the world's beer drinking record by emptying a 2.1 beer mug in 11 seconds flat. The report explains that "Cochran used the German method of pouring the beer down his relaxed throat in an uninterrupted flow without swallowing once." This method of swallowing is a myth; it can't be done. JAMES M. WALKER, M. D.

2 BOYS SPEEDING IN STOLEN AUTO KILL PEDESTRIAN

Wreck Two Machines; Admit Other Arrests.

A stolen automobile, speeding 50 miles an hour, crashed into another car at Washington boulevard and Morgan street last night and swerved into a pedestrian, killing him. Two boys who were in the stolen car were arrested and admitted the theft. They are Sam Greco, 17 years old, of 724 Miller street, and Sam Amato, 16, of 721 Miller street.

The man killed was George Wilson, 60 years old, a former city employé. Wilson lived at the Arcade hotel, 1013 West Madison street. He was standing at the intersection when the stolen auto approached, moving south in Morgan street, and, according to witnesses, disregarding a stop signal. The car struck the east bound auto of Harry J. Hough, 47, of 2442 Schubert street, veered to one side and knocked down the pedestrian. Both machines were wrecked and Hough was slightly hurt.

Both Arrested Before.

Policeman Daniel Guinea of the Des Plaines street station arrested Greco and Amato. At the station they confessed that they stole the car a short time earlier from in front of the home of its owner, Harold Schradzki, 521 Roscoe street. It was a new car. Greco said he was freed in the Boys' court April 28 on an auto theft charge for want of prosecution. Amato said he was once held as an auto theft suspect.

Jacob Fifer, 42 years old, of 2905 Cortez street, was fatally injured yesterday and four other persons were hurt in a collision at North Campbell avenue and Altgeld street. The others hurt were Mrs. Mina Fifer, 72, his mother, and Mrs. Isadore Fifer, 42, his sister-in-law, both of 2600 Kimball avenue; Mrs. Esther Gordan, 42, 2557 Logan boulevard, and her daughter, Marcella, 8. The two Fifer women were seriously hurt.

Hit and Run Victim Dies.

Joseph Sandin, 32 years old, of 6022 Eddy street, died yesterday in the Oak Park hospital of injuries suffered Saturday when he was struck by a hit and run driver at Harlem avenue and Roscoe street.

William Lewis, 9 years old, of 7557 Cornell avenue, was killed yesterday in an accident near Gary. He was in the side car of a motorcycle driven by his brother, Robert, 17, when the vehicle left the road. Robert was seriously hurt.

MRS. PUTNAM IN BRUSSELS; WILL SEE KING ALBERT

BRUSSELS, Belgium, June 12.—(AP)—Mrs. Amelia Earhart Putnam, the transatlantic flier, arrived here today from Paris for a brief visit.

She was smiling happily when Vicomte de Sibour landed her ship at Haeren airdrome. The American charge d'affaires, Ferdinand Mayer, and high Belgian officials were on hand to greet her. After an uproarious welcome from members of the American colony, Mrs. Putnam was driven to the American embassy for a dinner and reception.

The American flier will be received by King Albert tomorrow. She was accompanied by her husband, George Palmer Putnam, the American publisher.

EXPECT PARLEY ON "L" REFUSAL OF PAY SLASH

A parley is expected to be called today by officials of the Chicago Rapid Transit lines and the "L" workers' union to consider the workers' rejection of a 10 per cent pay cut proposal Saturday night. The proposal was defeated by a vote of 1,325 to 1,201.

Formal notification of the men's action will be given to the company today by John Bruce, president of the local union. Similar word will be sent to officers of the international union in Detroit.

It is hoped to iron out the differences between the company and the men in meetings in which, probably, William Mahon, international union president, will participate. Should no settlement be effected arbitration would probably be resorted to.

No official explanation was given last night for the rejection vote, although one spokesman said it was a "misunderstanding." Nor was any comment forthcoming as to the possible consequence of the "L" employés' action on the street car workers who on Friday voted overwhelmingly for a 9 per cent wage decrease.

30,000 Farmers March on City to Aid Sugar Strike

TUCUMAN, Argentina, June 12.—(AP)—Farmers throughout Tucuman province were marching on this city tonight to aid in a strike of sugar refinery workers, after clashes in which six persons were killed. The newspaper Gaceta said 30,000 farmers, mostly cane growers, were approaching Tucuman to help the strikers obtain higher wages and an eight hour day.

ENGLAND, FRANCE AGREE ON DEBTS, BUT IT'S SECRET

Both Are Determined to Make Parley "Effective"

BY EDMOND TAYLOR.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, June 12.—A banquet at the British embassy tonight climaxed the conversations of Prime Minister MacDonald of Great Britain with Premier Herriot and other French ministers, which have been proceeding continuously since 6 o'clock Saturday evening, with time out only for sleep. The discussions will be resumed informally tomorrow morning when Herriot and MacDonald will leave by train for Geneva and then Lausanne for the conference on reparations, war debts, and other European problems.

Just before the banquet, an official communique was issued. It was brief and said that the unofficial conversations between the two premiers "have shown a community of views which permits envisaging just and effective solutions at the Lausanne conference as well as a reënforcement of confidence and the maintenance of peace among peoples."

Thinking Along Same Lines.

At the conclusion of the banquet tonight, MacDonald said.

"We have compared our views on the problems before the Lausanne conference. We have not tried to bargain and haven't sought to compromise. We have just been setting forth our ideas and I am glad to say we found that we have been thinking along much in the same lines and in the same direction.

"The two governments are determined to make the Lausanne conference effective and to reach decisions which will be both good and practical. Personally, we are determined to do everything we possibly can to come to decisions which will remove a good many economic troubles of Europe and will tend to put an end to the economic dislocations from which everybody has been suffering during the last few years."

Herriot went directly to Elysée palace after the banquet to report to President Lebrun the results of the day's conversations Upon leaving he echoed MacDonald's statement.

Cancel Debts! Again Chanted.

Despite the statemen's reticence, it is believed that they spent considerable time discussing means of overcoming the obstinacy of the United States in its refusal to cancel debts. This refusal, it is said here, has spiked most of the European schemes to wipe out all international obligations

Herriot today repeated the French determination not to relinquish reparations unless compensated by a concession of the United States.

The Franco-British project, which is now being shaped for the Lausanne conference, is believed to include a temporary renewal of the moratorium which expires on June 30, together with the appointment of a commission to study means of prolonging the moratorium indefinitely and the establishment of an equalizing system which eventually would annul both debts and reparations.

This temporizing solution, it is felt, would permit watching for a propitious moment to spring a new cancellation scheme on the United States.

HURLS BOMB FROM HOME; SAVES HERSELF AND TWO DAUGHTERS

New York, June 12.—[Special.]—Calmly throwing a bomb she found on the floor beneath a window of her Brooklyn home on to the porch, Mrs. Samuel Goldberg, wife of a lately resigned cleaners' union leader, probably saved herself and two sleeping daughters from serious injury or death early this morning.

As the bomb fell on the porch it exploded with great force, wrecking part of the front of the house and breaking windows in the neighborhood. Mrs. Goldberg was stunned and her daughters were hurled from their beds, but none of them was injured. Mrs. Goldberg's husband was not at home at the time.

Police believe the bomb was placed by either disgruntled union men or a business rival of Goldberg, since he resigned last month from the cleaners and dryers' union and opened a shop of his own. An investigation was started and Goldberg will be questioned.

GOTHAM BUDGET COMMISSION TO SAVE IT MILLIONS

Permanent Body to Eye Government Cost.

New York, June 12.—[Special.]—Representatives of a group of leading merchants, bankers, real estate interests and civic associations announced plans today for the formation of the Citizens' Budget commission, a permanent body designed to bring about reductions in the mounting costs of city government and study possible sources of new revenue.

The organization, sponsored by the chamber of commerce of the state of New York, the Merchants' association of New York, and the real estate board of New York, expects to begin to function within a week following a meeting next Wednesday or Thursday to elect officers and trustees.

Save 10 to 100 Millions.

The scope of its prospective activities was indicated in the estimate of the organzers that about $200,000 annually would be required to finance the program of municipal research already mapped out, with the aim of cutting anywhere from $20,000,000 to $100,000,000 yearly from the city expenses, which for 1932 are expected to exceed $700,000,000.

Listed among the sponsors of the movement are educators, lawyers, bankers, and large property owners, including Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, Henry Morgenthau, William Church Osborn, Vincent Astor, John W. Davis, and R. Fulton Cutting.

To Be Nonpartisan.

The chairman of the committee is to be a man who is "without partisan affiliation and qualified as a city manager of a large city."

The organizers of the Citizens' Budget commission already have been in touch with two men thus trained, but the choice will rest with the officers and trustees. Under the chairman will be an executive director, who will have four assistant directors, one trained in municipal finance, another handling matters of engineering and public utilities, a third dealing with welfare, education, and public safety, and the fourth directing administrative details, including a campaign of public education. Under each group will be a corps of trained investigators, municipal accounants, and engineers. Ample funds to organize the work have already been pledged.

CITY'S BUDGETS COME BEFORE COUNCIL TODAY

The 1932 budgets for the corporate, water, vehicle tax and other miscellaneous city funds will be called up for passage today at a meeting of the city council. The total of these budgets was $141,122,409 in the June 3 recommendation of the council finance committee but amendments offered by Mayor Cermak and adopted by the committee have reduced that total considerably.

Employés of the finance committee were compelled to work part of yesterday to revise the budget totals in conformity with the changes submitted by the mayor. His amendments cut in the neighborhood of $10,000,000 from the appropriations from some of the funds, and reduced the corporate fund budget somewhat. The exact figure for the corporate fund budget will not be known until today.

One of the important positions abolished by the mayor was that of Robert Knight, deputy building commissioner, at $6,300 a year. Knight stated yesterday that the elimination of his job came as a surprise, and that as the council has not yet acted, he is not ready to say what action he will take.

COUNTY BOARD TO FIX 1932 TAX RATE TOMORROW

Seeks Way to Cut Down to Kelly Estimates.

Tomorrow the county commissioners are faced with the problem of fixing the county tax levy for 1932. Most of the commissioners have said they are willing to endeavor to comply with the recommendations of the D. F. Kelly advisory committee in cutting the county expenditures to the bone.

M. J. O'CONNOR.

The county levy includes the bond and interest fund, the corporate fund, the highway, the forest preserve corporate, the zoölogical gardens, and both the county and forest preserve pension funds. The total of these amounted to $26,383,410 in 1930 and caused the county tax rate to amount to 56 cents for each $100 of assessed valuation for that year.

Urge 44 Cent Rate for 1932.

The Kelly committee has recommended for 1932 a reduction to a 44 cent rate, including 12 cents for the bond and interest levy which is fixed and cannot be reduced. The bonds and interest to be paid from the 1932 levy amount to $4,786,375.

Michael J. O'Connor, assistant controller, has prepared the following table of expenditures based on proposals of President Emmett Whealan and Maurice Kavanagh, chairman of the board finance committee. These are slightly higher than expenditures proposed by the Kelly committee.

Comparative rates for 1930 and 1932, under the present plans, exclusive of the bond and interest funds for each year, follow:

Corporate	$14,800,000	$12,800,000
Highway	5,600,000	1,000,000
Forest preserve corporate	677,000	388,000
Zoölogical gardens	677,000	.....
County pensions	720,000	.....
Forest preserve pensions	90,000	.....
Total	$22,564,000	$14,188,000

To this table he has added another showing the total bond and interest expenditures from 1930 through 1932. The table:

Year.	Total.
1931	6,094,275
1932	4,786,375

The reductions, O'Connor pointed out, cut the rate for the county from 56 cents in 1930 to 51 cents in 1931. Further reductions resulting from elimination of levies for the zoölogical gardens and the county and the forest preserve pension, the commissioners say, will bring the rate to 47½ cents for 1932.

Call for Greater Slashes.

The proposed reductions of the Kelly committee call for still greater slashes from the highway and from the forest preserve corporate levies than the tables show. The committee asked that the highway levy be cut to 1 cent for 1932, while the present proposals provide for a 2½ cent levy for the year. The committee also asked that the forest preserve corporate levy be eliminated, while the board proposals include 1 cent for this fund.

The county's corporate fund levy, which is shown in the table as $14,800,000 for 1930 and $12,800,000 for 1932, dipped to $11,200,000 for 1931.

Mr. O'Connor explained that $1,500,000 in election costs which the county must pay this year make up the bulk of the increase in the corporate fund over 1931. This item was not included in the 1931 appropriations.

PLAN $2,015,000 SAVING IN SCHOOL OPERATING COSTS

Survey Ordered; May Drop 250 Jobs.

Plans for a $2,015,000 reduction in the cost of the operating department of the public school system will be in the hands of the board of education before the opening of schools next fall, Col. Howard P. Savage, business manager, revealed yesterday.

John Howatt, chief engineer for the board, was asked by Col. Savage to prepare a program for the elimination of unnecessary jobs. It was estimated that 250 employés could be dispensed with, which would effect a saving of $415,000 a year on salaries.

Names Eleven for Survey.

Seven inspectors of school property and four men from the architect's office were appointed by Howatt yesterday to undertake the survey. The final report will be turned over to the school board rules committee, of which Trustee William D. McJunkin is chairman.

Dr. George D. Strayer of Columbia university, author of the $100,000 report on Chicago's schools, has recommended that the school board cut salaries to bring about a saving of $1,600,000 yearly. He suggested, for example, that the salaries of engineer custodians, which are now from $3,600 to $5,650 a year, be slashed 29 per cent.

The proposed cut in salary schedules will be up to the school board to decide. The pay roll of the 2,800 employés of the operating department is now $5,300,000 a year. The group includes 400 engineer custodians and 100 assistants, the latter for winter work; 1,300 janitors, 500 janitresses, 500 winter firemen, and 42 window washers.

Confer on Report Today.

Col. Savage and his department heads will hold a conference with President Lewis E. Myers of the school board today on the recommendations in the Strayer report.

Working plans decided on at this conference will be presented at the board meeting Wednesday afternoon. Col. Savage is expected to make a complete report on all phases of the Strayer findings which dealt with the business administration in the schools.

Dr. Strayer suggested that 502 employés of the operating department be discharged as unnecessary. Another plan suggested in the Strayer report was the consolidation of pay rolls to save time and expense.

Chilean Revolt Leader Quits Junta; New Plot Is Feared

SANTIAGO, Chile, June 12.—(AP)—Carlos G. Davila resigned today from the week old socialist government of Chile because of discord within the revolutionary junta.

Col. Marmaduke Grove, who helped him overthrow President Juan Esteban Montero on June 4, was believed by many to have forced the civilian leader out because his policies toward foreign interests, particularly the American controlled Cosach nitrate combine, were considered too moderate.

Ibanez Coup Reported.

Unofficial reports that an army group was attempting to bring former President Carlos Ibanez back from exile to form a new junta with Davila's aid immediately were circulated.

There was great activity in the Moneda palace, the government building, which was closed to outsiders.

Davila, ambassador to Washington, D. C., until his return to Chile last year, refused to comment, but a member of his family said that he resigned on account of a disagreement with others in the junta and their disagreement with him.

Extremist sentiment against Davila's continuance in the junta arose today as a result of attacks against him by the leftist newspaper Opinion, which has led efforts of certain elements in northern Chile to force dissolution of the $875,000,000 Cosach organization.

Davila's departure from the junta was looked upon in some quarters as an unfavorable augury to foreign interests. He had expressed a desire for moderation in the new government's plan for state operation of industry, while others, including Col. Grove, have expressed a belief that great sacrifices for capitalism were necessary to socialize the country.

Capt. Alejandro Lazo, an intimate associate of Davila and of former President Ibanez, was arrested by the government in what was understood to be the discovery of a plot to restore Ibanez to power. The arrest was made while Chileans were celebrating the rise of the new régime.

Reports were current that followers of Ibanez, who fled to Argentina last July after a popular uprising against him, were seeking to reorganize the junta, ejecting Col. Grove, who led the march on the presidential palace a week ago.

The junta denied reports current since noon that the navy had revolted.

State to Supervise Culture.

Meanwhile, the new government added to its plans culture for the masses by means of the radio, theater and printing press under state auspices.

GUAYAQUIL, Ecuador, June 12.—(AP)—An outbreak of banditry in which a band of liquor thieves wiped out a detachment of guards near Cuenca with a total of sixteen dead on both sides was reported in Ecuador today. The guards encountered twenty rum runners stealing liquor, dispatches said. In the battle all of the guards and six of the plunderers were killed. Police were sent in pursuit of the bandits.

SALVATION ARMY RELIEF GIFTS TOTAL $276,513

New York, June 12.—[Special.]—Gifts to the Salvation Army's united appeal for funds have reached a total of $276,513.91 at the beginning of tomorrow of the fifth week of active solicitation. It was announced today by James G. Blaine, executive chairman of the campaign. The appeal is for funds with which to continue emergency relief and institutional aid activities.

As an additional step towards raising funds for the emergency relief program, Mr. Blaine announced all officers of the Salvation Army in the United States, from Commander Evangeline Booth down to the newest cadet, have voluntarily agreed to accept a 10 per cent cut in allowance or salary. The average salary of officers with an average experience of more than 14 years in metrolopitan relief is only $16.40 a week.

To make as much of the funds at its disposal available for the emergency relief program, Mr. Blaine stated, the Army is decreasing activities not connected directly with the feeding and clothing of the needy. As a first step in this program the New York training college and similar institutions in Chicago, Atlanta, and San Francisco will be closed.

HAYES BOOMED FOR NATIONAL LEGION CHIEF

Galesburg, Ill., June 12.—[Special.]—Edward Hayes, Decatur, past commander of the Illinois department of the American Legion, was selected as a candidate for national commander of the Legion when his name was placed in nomination at the close of the business session of the third division and 15th district conventions held yesterday and today.

Hayes' name will be presented for formal nomination at the Danville state convention this year.

More than 1,000 Legionnaires attended the convention, which opened with a golf tourney. The program of Saturday night consisted of a Forty et Eight wreck at which "Goofs" from all over the district were inducted.

INTERNATIONAL TRUCKS are bound to be popular

The Chicago Motor Club came to International for this "Safety" truck for street sign and marker service. It is the 1½-ton, 6-cylinder Model A-3.

THE greater the need for economy, for cutting hauling costs at every turn, the better the demand for International Trucks. To prove it, look at International sales—greater this year to date than last year. Consider that fact and think twice before you take on any other truck. This is a year for essential qualities, and economy heads the list.

You don't have to go by the International sales record, but don't overlook the testimony of owners. One Chicago firm turned in 50 light trucks of another make, put Internationals on the job, and saved over $26,000 in twelve months. Read the column at the right, a handful of items among many, all backed by full and complete data on operating costs. Ask for names and figures if you like.

Low-cost hauling is reason aplenty for using Internationals, but just for good measure we throw in: handsome design to make a good impression for your business, full line from ¾-ton to 7½-ton at prices that are lower than ever, and unparalleled service through three Chicago branches. Come in and inspect the line without feeling obligated in the least.

Puppet Show Adventures by Wilkinson.

WALTER WILKINSON has written two other books that have received the high praise of critics, "The Peep-Show" and "Vagabonds and Puppets." Most readers are no doubt unfamiliar with this author, and it is high time for something to be done about it. Here is a talent that is neither flashing nor sensational, but a talent that is true, real, and irresistible. The spirit of the author is not unlike that of David Grayson, author of "Adventures in Contentment," in its delicacy, quietude and gentleness.

To savor "Puppets in Yorkshire" fully the reader should hie himself to some isolated spot, forget the cares and troubles of the world, and allow himself to be lured to far away places by the gentle, insistent charm of Walter Wilkinson.

From the inconspicuous beginning, "The time has come to pack up the traveling Punch and Judy show and begin the summer wanderings on the road," the author leads us through dirty, noisy, troubled London out into the country. He boards a train and leaves for Yorkshire, in the north of England. When he arrives he bids farewell to trains and such and dedicates his summer to traveling on foot through the towns, hills, plains, moors and mountains of Yorkshire. Every day or two he stops in a village, once or twice in a large city, and puts on his show. The price for admission [if it can be called that] is one penny, and with the collection he buys his simple food and repairs his puppets. He sleeps every night in his tent on the land of some kind farmer.

It is the life of a vagabond, but an unusual vagabond. Walter Wilkinson has curiosity. The people he meets up with, the adventures [common and uncommon] he has in and out of villages are all carefully observed. Somehow or other, even in this superficial way of studying a race or a people, he captures the essence of this Yorkshire countryside and its inhabitants.

The dialect is faithfully transcribed, the manners of farmers and village folk, their independence, good humor, simplicity, vitality and strange surliness are understood and presented in a way that only a thoughtful and genial mind could do.

It is only when he gets into the country that his spirit revives. Trees and stars, fields and hills, children and animals, even the oftentimes villainous climate of England constitute his loved world. People who love the soil, who eat golden Yorkshire pudding, who sleep well, who work hard, who bear children gladly, who have simple, wholesome thoughts and emotions, in other words, the great class of people who are natural and unsophisticated, and even godly in their way, are the people he wants to be with, and are to his mind those who keep the world sane and healthy and prosperous.

For those who know Yorkshire intimately this charming book of travel essays will be a rare treat. For those who don't it will still be, because it has the markings of authenticity, realness, and a sturdy beauty.

There should be more books like "Puppets in Yorkshire." They would never achieve immortality, nor would they stimulate the mind to profundities. They might, however, communicate a sort of peace to the modern spirit, an acceptance of things as they are and an eagerness to know the more essential beauties and pleasures of life.

Shops Offer Latest Styles to Tempt Feminine Visitors

BY RHEA SEEGER.

CLOTHES conscious conventioneers, meaning all the feminine shop hounds who would rather shop than eat, are going to have plenty of temptation to resist. What a time the excitement loving female politician is going to have trying to decide between her duty and the alluring displays of good looking clothes which fill every shop in town.

Clever devils, these shopkeepers, using their knowledge of the eternal feminine so sagaciously! Some of the smartest looking summer clothes that have ever been seen in this town are now unpacked and ready for the enthusiastic buying binges of natives and delegates alike.

Whether you wilt under the scathing remarks of the opposing orators, or because Chicago receives a brief hot spell, it is quite possible to keep cool, at least outwardly, in suits and frocks of the new "sheers."

And these thin things are surely and comfortably as thin as the law allows. You'll be able to find them in any color, in all plain shades for street wear such as navy, black and brown, and in some of the neatest and newest small printed designs imaginable.

"Shirred sheers" are something new again. Designing dressmakers have made suits and two piece outfits of thin, thin chiffons and georgette crêpes into creations that are something to write home about. They have literally shirred yards and yards of material, achieving an opaque effect that will be gratefully purchased by all modest souls who worry about strong sunshine, shadow effects and sufficient underlayers.

Most of these ensembles are severely simple, with a brief sleeved frock, that can be worn circumspectly without the coat on warm days.

The coats are usually hip length and rather full, with sleeves that are also loose and long. White piqué is the favored contrast—necklines, cuffs, and shoulder flowers are all of this crisp, delightful stuff.

Printed "sheers" are tremendously interesting in color combination and designs. Some of the newest models go in for daisies, small printed flowers that are colorfully contrasted against black, blue, brown and beige. Full length coats are available in many of these thin printed ensembles.

Dotted fabrics are always among the smartest collections. Nothing seems to stay as long or stay as good as these crisp, cool looking white dotted thin things. You will find practically every size of dot from the wee little pinheads up to circles that boast inch wide diameters.

Tailored sheers are plentiful with sleek, close fitting silhouettes—jackets with pockets, tailored collars and simple sleeves—more elaborate affairs have slender fitted frocks with pleated flares swirling out from the knees and jackets with huge puffed sleeves gathered into narrow wristband cuffs.

Black chiffon ensembles, lovely glamorous concoctions with long skirts that are made to flutter around the ankles, are ready for summer afternoon and city night life.

Topping most of these cool costumes will be found the new, cool headgear—tiny skull cap affairs of white or black cotton piqué with halolike brims of black or white net—the newest ideas for fevered brows and hot heads.

Farewell Recital of Jerome Siegan Is Well Received

One of the most recent of talented young pianists, Jerome Siegan, gave a recital in Kimball hall yesterday afternoon, and from the size and response of his audience there was reason to believe that he is as popular as he is talented. The event was something in the nature of a farewell party for him, since he beings university training next fall.

A good part of his program was of a kind that ordinarily calls for orchestral assistance. He began with the Beethoven Concerto in C major, closed with the Rubinstein Concerto in D minor, and in addition played the Arensky Fantasie in E minor. In these the accompaniments became second piano parts which were played by Alexander Aster. They, Scarlatti's Pastorale, two Chopin Preludes, and Liszt's Eighth Hungarian Rhapsody made up his program.

Young Mr. Siegan plays uncommonly well. He has developed his technic and his brain at the same time. He sounded capable of conquering any difficulties that came his way, but better, he played broadly, with a degree of intelligence and musical logic in addition to his brilliancy, and it all went to indicate that he is due to be an excellent musician as well as a trained pianist.

BY RUTH DE YOUNG.

THE 1932 summer edition of the Social Register—society's little black Bible striped and lettered in red—will make its appearance some time during the next fortnight. Predictions are that the omissions will be numerous, due, of course, to the many country houses that have gone on the block the last year or so as the result of these troublous times.

Close upon the heels of this warm weather roster order slips for the 1933 register will also arrive by mail. And if Mrs. Addington Winslow (fictitious, to be sure) doesn't reply shortly with a check for $7, $9, or $50 (depending on her order) she may find herself omitted from the new edition of the sacred almanac when it is published next November. For as a general rule a name is not continued, at least indefinitely, without a subscription to the register.

The summer roster, issued in only one volume, contains the names of the "accepted" residents of fashionable resorts and watering places throughout the country. As a matter of fact it is really a supplement to the year 'round register that presents itself every fall in twelve volumes, one of them listing Chicago's "accepted" (and that of its suburbs) for the convenience of hostesses, debutantes, society editors—and business men. The brother volumes take care of other cities.

At its peak the Social Register association in New York—as the publication organization calls itself—brought out issues concurrently for twenty-seven cities. But four years ago subscriptions dropped to such a low ebb that a number of cities were dropped.

As one writer has pointed out, the Social Register holds a place in this country comparable in some respects to that of the "Almanach de Gotha," "Burke's Peerage," and similar genealogical books in Europe—without, however, the foundations of hereditary nobility that are the basis of old world classification.

Still thousands—literally thousands—of persons have split their scheming brains and cracked their pride in an attempt to gain two lines relating to address, telephone number, clubs, and marriage data from the committee on admissions of the Social Register association. The members of this committee, to which all requests for entrance are addressed either directly or through the association's representative i neach city (in Chicago it is a popular Lake Forest matron), is a profound secret. The best informed circles report that it is a group consisting of ten or a dozen persons, both men and women.

In their hands rests the problem of "getting in" and "staying in"—problems governed by no hard and fast rules except six recommendations and acquaintance with the local representative of the association. Though axiomatic that family or personal participation in the affairs of society are necessary to achieve a place in the little book, the committee can reject regardless of ancestry or recommendations. Then, too, with withdrawals it need follow no precedent. Take, for example, the case of Katherine Harris, who on becoming Mrs. John Barrymore was dropped, while Antonio Moreno was admitted when he married Mrs. J. M. Danziger. Again there are persons who might well establish sounder claims than some of those already accepted but who have never made any effort to present or have their names presented.

In Chicago the names of most of the old families have been listed in the register since the first issue ap-

Good Morning!

I hope our convention visitors will take note of the fact that, while most of the "legit" shows have folded their tents like the Arabs and silently stolen away, the movie theaters are, so to speak, doubling.

Take a look at the Chicago. Now there's a bargain for the show addict, if ever there was one. Besides the picture, which features two players most people like, in "Merrily We Go to Hell" you'll find on tap, in the flesh, the five stars of George White's Scandals—Willie and Eugene Howard, Ray Bolger, the dancing comedian, Joan Abbott, blonde "blues" singer, and Rudy Vallee and his Connecticut Yankees.

The Oriental has—on the stage, Gene Dennis, who tells you where you should get off at—if you want her to—and the Mills Brothers, four colored boys with a guitar who sound like two or three jazz bands. Miss Dennis has been held over for a second week, so popular has she been. She came to call Friday afternoon and I'll be telling you about her visit some day soon—Sunday maybe.

Then—the Palace has an excellent bill featuring Irene Bordoni, Queenie Smith and Harry Puck. Hobart Bosworth is also making a personal appearance.

The picture from the novel "I, Jerry, Take Thee, Joan," by Cleo Lucas, at the Chicago has a poor story and a fine cast. I should think that any poor, weak sinner of a man, after seeing Sylvia Sidney as Joan, would want to dash right out and marry her. Such sympathy! Such understanding! Such a one track mind as re: the man she loves. My, my . . . ! Well, women are like that . . . ! [Sez one.]

Fredric March does all that's humanly possible with his role of a lovable drunken playwright husband. Adrienne Allen obliges well enough as the "other woman"—an actress. Skeets Gallagher gallantly carries on as a friend of Joan and Jerry. [He's been sitting at the feet of Charlie Ruggles, I feel.] Other roles have hardly enough meat on their bones to keep 'em alive. Sound, staging and costumes are pleasing. Direction is so so because, with such a yarn it couldn't be otherwise. Dialogue is pretty bad.

O, well, cheer up, there's a new season coming bye and bye—starting in July, to be exact. THEN we're scheduled to gaze on some fillums as are some fillums.

See you tomorrow!

Dunham Riding Club Is Opened in Beauty Spot

Bridle Paths Wind Through Woods in Wayne.

BY JUDITH CASS.

ONE could imagine one's self transported far away from Chicago, even as far as England some say, but I'll be more conservative and say New England, when one drives or rides around the countryside at Wayne, so rolling and lovely is the country and so large and lush the fields.

It's really a gorgeous spot, the most peaceful and quiet imaginable, out west of Chicago, a bit northeast of St. Charles, and the wonder is that so few Chicagoans know much about it.

Only those who have been fortunate enough to have been included in house parties given by the people who have summer farms there know much about this quiet spot, but probably more will become acquainted with it now, for a new club has been started, the Dunham Woods Riding club, which I'm sure will prove a favorite place for week-ending by those whom the founders, Mrs. John L. Dole (Barbara Dunham) and her aunt, Mrs. Charles C. West (Bernice Dunham) have invited to use the club.

The quaint old Dunham homestead, built in 1837, is in use as the clubhouse and bridle paths have been opened up through the woods and meadows of this 2,000 acre estate. The old homestead, built of hand molded bricks, is the most fascinating place imaginable, with all the old charm kept, but with modern conveniences added which make it comfortable for overnight guests.

Norman Castle of Dunhams.

Across the road from the clubhouse, set far back from the road, is the turreted Norman castle which the late Wirth S. Dunham's father, Ward Dunham, built in 1880, and where Mr. and Mrs. Dole and their 7 year old Peter are living this summer while Mrs. Dunham and her younger daughter, Jane, are abroad. Here there are tennis courts, a swimming pool, and all sorts of things to make country life enjoyable, and the Doles and their friends are enjoying it to the utmost.

The Doles lived in Winnetka until last fall, whe nthey rented their house to Mr. and Mrs. John I. Shaw (Barbara King) and Mrs. Dole and the children went for the winter to Warm Springs, Ga., where little Johnny still is with his nurse.

Not far from the Dunham Woods clubhouse are the trim white buildings of the William S. Monroes' place, White Gates Farm, and across the turnpike, a bit to the south, is the beautiful new house of the Henry Stantons. The junior Charles R. Lindsays have an attractive place at Wayne, too, and so have the George Moseleys, the George G. Woodruffs, the Nicholas Remsoffs, and a few others, but Wayne isn't a very populous township, which is its chief charm, probably.

Preview Tea of Thorne Rooms.

Mrs. James Ward Thorne and Mrs. Edward H. Bennett are giving a tea this afternoon from 4 to 6 o'clock for a preview of Mrs. Thorne's miniature period rooms which will be exhibited at Ackerman's galleries on South Michigan avenue from tomorrow to July 9 for the benefit of the architects' relief fund. The exhibition will be opened at 2 o'clock this afternoon to those whom Mrs. Thorne and Mrs. Bennett have invited to the preview.

Mrs. William E. Casselberry Jr. is to be hostess at the monthly meeting of the board of the Garden Club of Illinois this morning at her residence in Lake Forest. After the meeting Mrs. Casselberry will take her guests, many of whom came from distant parts of the state, for the Lake Forest flower show over the week-end, to luncheon at Onwentsia, and later on they will visit some of the Lake Forest gardens.

The Winnetka board of the Northwestern University settlement is giving a musical this afternoon at 3:30 o'clock at the residence of Mrs. Walter A. Strong on Tower road in Winnetka. The program will be given by Mrs. Ernst V. von Ammon of Evanston and Mrs. Edwin S. Fetcher of Winnetka, both pianists, and Mrs. Norman Parker of Geneva, violinist.

Pouring tea will be Miss Susan Badgerow, Miss Marjorie Street, Miss Lois Truesdale, Miss Mary Ellen Prindiville, Miss Helen Wolcott, Miss Virginia Lamson, and Miss Evelyn Bouscaren. On the committee in charge of the affair are Mrs. John Nash Ott, Mrs. Godfrey H. Atkin, Mrs. John Hooker, and Mrs. James W. Prindiville.

Luncheon for League Delegates.

The Lake Shore League of Women Voters is giving a luncheon today at the Casino for Miss Marguerite Wells, chairman of the delegations from the National League of Women Voters to the Republican and Democratic conventions. Miss Wells will speak on "A Platform for the Time." Mrs. Augustus A. Carpenter will preside. Tomorrow members of the organization from all parts of the country who have come as delegates, alternates or visitors to the convention will be the guests of the Illinois and Cook County Leagues of Women Voters at a reception to be held in the new headquarters, 225 North Michigan avenue.

Among the nationally known league women who will attend the reception are: Mrs. James W. Morrisson of Groton, Conn., formerly of Chicago; Mrs. Virgil Loeb of St. Louis, and Mrs. Frank P. Hixon of Lake Forest. These three women will constitute the committee representing the national league at the convention, and as such will attempt to interest the convention platform makers in the measures which are on the league's national program.

In the appointment of a biparty committee, composed of two Republicans and two Democrats, to make

Sudden Love

By
ELISABETH SANXAY HOLDING

SYNOPSIS.

Esmee Sully spends her forlorn young life between the office, where she is an inefficient typist, and a dismal home. The widowed Mrs. Sully loves her children blindly, but doesn't know how to direct their spiritual or physical needs. Lew, a year older than Esmee, is mingling in bad company. Cynthia, the oldest, has been deserted by her husband. Jimmy Consadine, a crook lawyer, forces Lew, whom he has in his power, to introduce his sister. Esmee, starved for beauty and change, is fascinated by Jimmy's grand manner, but finds him an unmanageable lover. Then she meets Michael Marriott, a dissipated young playwright. It's love at first sight. She feels his need of her is real. Returning home one evening, Esmee finds Michael waiting for her. He'd been drinking heavily. Esmee takes him home in a cab, but he has no key and can't get in. In desperation she takes him to a hotel and registers as his wife. Claire Cowley, Michael's sister, tells Esmee that Michael is engaged. But when Michael calls Esmee goes to see him. He tells her his engagement is broken; that he can't live without her, and wants to marry her. Esmee tries unsuccessfully to break with Jimmy. He accuses her of double-crossing him and threatens to have Lew sent to jail. Esmee drives out to the country with him on Sunday. He forces her to accompany him to a roadhouse, where his word is law. Michael, who has trailed Jimmy's car, breaks in and rescues her. Jimmy swears he'll have Michael killed. Michael takes Esmee to an inn and leaves her to rest up before dinner, while he dismisses his chauffeur.

INSTALLMENT XXV.

TERRIFYING FEARS.

Three-quarters of an hour gone now. . . . If one of those boys had been sent to follow Michael, had caught up with him alone . . . The wind, Esmee thought, had grown chill, terrible to hear as it rustled in the trees.

But if he did come, he must not find her like this, white, distraught, in agony. She washed and combed her hair, sitting before the toilet table.

"I've got to ring up mother and tell her I'm not coming home. O, if I marry Jimmy—he won't be nice to mother . . ."

Into her mind came a picture of her mother, moving about in the kitchen at home, preparing the dinner. . . . She forgot the disorder, the discom-

"Mother . . . !" she whispered, half aloud. "You wouldn't mind, darling—would you . . . ?

She forced back the tears that rose in her eyes. She made her lips scarlet, and tried putting her hair behind her ears, but shook it loose again. An hour gone . . . an hour . . . Michael would not stay away from her an hour. He was not coming. Not ever coming. He was dead, and it was she who had caused his death. She wanted to pray. . . .

She wanted to call, to scream Michael's name aloud. All the anguish and fear of this interminable nightmare day came in a monstrous torrent upon her and overwhelmed her. When some one knocked at the door she tried to rise, and fell to the floor in a faint.

When she opened her eyes, and looked up into Michael's face, she could not believe this.

"Michael . . . ! It's not—really you?"

She was lying on the bed, and he was sitting beside her, with a glass of water in his unsteady hand and a look of dismay and shocked horror on his lean face.

"Don't talk, darling!" he said. "Lie still! Don't move, darling."

He did not quite know what to do with the glass of water. Dubiously he slipped a clean handkerchief into it, and moistened her forehead.

"Lie still, darling, and I'll call a doctor."

"No, Michael! I'm all right now . . . It was just—because you were gone—so long."

"I don't think you'd better talk, darling . . ."

But, to his astonishment, this beloved creature whom he had found, only a moment ago, on the floor, in ghastly limpness and pallor, sat up now and flung her arms about his neck, holding him so tight that he could scarcely breathe.

"Esmee, darling!" he cried. "Here . . . !"

He unclasped her clinging hands and made her lie down again. Then as he looked at her he saw the color had come back to her sweet lips, and he saw in her eyes a most wonderful light.

"Look here, Esmee, heart's darling . . . I really think you ought to take a little nip. You needn't worry, you know, dear. I shan't take any."

"I want you to," said she.

"All right, Esmee," he said promptly. "I won't be extreme any more. I don't have to be either a bum or a teetotaler. I'll be just what you want. Lie still, won't you Esmee, just an instant?"

To please him, she lay almost motionless until he brought her some whisky in the glass and a little for himself in a toothbrush glass. She sipped her drink slowly and a warm current ran through her, an immense and uncontainable happiness filled her because he was here safe, because he had come back.

"Esmee," he said, seriously, "you must be run down or something, to pass out like that. You looked . . . my God, I'll never forget it! You'll have to see a doctor."

"Michael, you're silly!" she said, and laid her fingers across his eyes, stroked down his eyelashes that fluttered, trying to open so that he could see her again. He caught her hand and looked at it.

"Your hands . . ." he said. "I think that'd be the last thing I thought of, if I were dying, your little, fragile . . ."

"Michael, don't!" she cried.

"You see," he said, "how excitable you are."

"You were gone so long, Michael. So awfully long . . ."

"I know. I nearly went mad. In the first place, the station's quite a long way, and then when we got there that impeccable Pyne would buy me a ticket to New York. And he evidently considered it a part of his servile, cringing duty to stick around until the train came. Esmee, if we have a chauffeur, let's have the most disrespectful one we can find."

"Yes! A fresh guy!" said Esmee.

He laughed and kissed her.

"Well, I told him not to wait, so he went. I stood on the platform, watching for him to get out of sight, and the damned pest stopped at a stationer's across the road, and got out! And I heard a train whistle . . . I thought, if that blasted martinet came out and saw me not on the train, he'd come dashing over with smelling salts, or something . . . I was in a cold sweat. The train was coming; I could see it, and there was the car just across the road. I went into the waiting room—not that I had any real hope of hiding from Pyne . . . the train came—and, by heaven, it was an express and went on past. And Pyne came out—actually smoking a cigaret, and drove away. Then I went to get a taxi and an old goat with a beard came bleating after me, to tell me my train would be along in five minutes. I said, with superb nonchalance, that I'd changed my mind. And you know, Esmee, any one who had Pyne buying a ticket for him could get by with anything. The old goat simply considered me an erratic millionaire. So I got a taxi and came along. And now you're going to eat, heavily and grossly. Are you ready, darling?"

The dining room of the inn was almost empty, but the waiter led them through it to a tiny room containing only a built-in settle and a table.

"It's cooler here . . ." he remarked, pulling out the chair that faced the settle.

"I shall like it, Michael."

A soft breeze blew in at the open window, stirring her hair.

"I hear church bells, Michael. And they always make me think of sheep and darling little lambs in a meadow."

"I don't believe in sheep," said Michael. "I never see them around."

"I have. Once when I was a little girl."

"You're only a little girl now. You're only a kid," said Michael, and as he looked at her he fell silent.

"O, my dear, darling, dearest Michael!"

"But, look here!" he said. "I want you to go on eating."

"I am!"

"Nothing like enough. Look at your little wrists! No, my girl, there are going to be drastic changes in your life. Sunshine, fresh air, enormous quantities of food . . . Esmee, you—you terrify me. You're so—dam' fragile."

"Your own face is too thin," she said. "Why, look! Hollows under your cheek bones . . ."

With one finger she touched his cheek, and then, leaning forward, took both his hands and made his lips curl up into a smile, so artificial, so unwilling, that she laughed. And he laughed, too.

"Now, look here!" he said. "I can hire a car, here, and we'll drive——"

"O, no!" she cried. "No, thank you, Michael, dear."

All the laughter, all the light, had gone out of her face. Her specter had returned. Her heart sank, felt like a leaden weight within her.

Nothing was settled, nothing was finished. She had not freed her Michael from danger; she had not helped Lew. Perhaps Jimmy would not get either of her telegrams. And perhaps even if he did it would make no difference. She had left him, wounded, in pain, and gone off with Michael. He was not likely to forgive that. He forgave nothing, he forgot nothing, those were the conditions upon which he held his place in his world.

Beauty Isn't Prime Item in Girl's Charm

BY DORIS BLAKE.

"What do you think of the matrimonial chances of two girls who are not beautiful, but reasonably good looking, dress smartly, have brains, as opposed to two girls unusually attractive of face and figure?"

Why oppose them, we ask of the first two girls? Why think of oneself in competitive beauty terms? If one hasn't beauty, why not scout around among one's other assets and rig up a good array of charms not dependent on nature's handout? Why not remove oneself entirely from the field of beauty competition? That is, seek boy groups that are not persuaded wholly and solely by a pretty face? Or, better still, set up an opposing camp where boys will find amiable dispositions, jolly good times, belief in their importance, a jar of blarney standing around for spooning out at the right and psychological moments.

We're not trying to minimize the natural advantages of honey hair, violet, yes, sweeping long lashes, and a Diana silhouette in a boy interest winning campaign. It's a walkaway for most of these girls. But, comparatively speaking, this beauty supply is limited. There is not nearly enough to go around.

Should you reach a discouraging moment when you cry out about pretty girls only getting the breaks, just look over both the engaged and married girl situation. You'll recognize the trite fact that men, theoretically, may be beauty worshipers, as aren't we all, but that they can be persuaded into steady company before, and after marriage on other terms.

And the comical part of it is when it comes to his matrimonial choice a man can endow the plainest Jane with beauty assets her own mother would never claim for her. That's the magic of love, sisters. The magic of a charming disposition. Of a kind, sympathetic nature. Indeed, the magic sometimes works where there aren't the gifts of sweet companionship, provided the man is sufficiently in love.

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS.—[Special.]—Part and parcel of the rustic mode of Paris are the new tennis ensembles with sweater jackets of rough, natural colored peasant wool, and the skirts of a burlap-like cotton. Vera Borea created a sensation with these ensembles, and everybody said, "Nobody will wear them." Everybody was, as is usual with such dogmatic statements, wrong.

The Borea peasant burlap tennis ensemble has another feature that is new and exciting, and that is the knitted natural cotton bodice built like the upper part of a swimming suit. You can see it in the background of the accompanying sketch. This bodice is, in fact, joined to short knitted culottes of the same cotton, so that when the plaited skirt of burlap woven cotton is unbuttoned and removed a new type of shorts becomes an active sports ensemble.

The sweater jacket of this ensemble is knitted of unrefined, creamy colored peasant wool, in the stitch that is used for men's turtle necked pull over sweaters. The wide ribbed band at the bottom holds it close to the body at the waistline, and white porcelain buttons serve to fasten it. The short sleeves are loose. The collar and revers are lined with royal blue knitted stuff, and supply the necessary bit of vivid color.

Call it pieplant—call it rhubarb—but whatever you name it, be sure to call it often into your menus these warm June days, for no matter how versatile and inspired a cook you are, you can't afford to overlook even one pleasant taste sensation which can entice languid appetites and shoot zest into life in general.

Rhubarb [my apologies if you're standing by "pieplant"] has been coming out of the family garden for several weeks now, but it's still very much in season; and if you're not lucky enough to have even a tabloid gardenette, the stores all over town are offering its long, luscious rosiness at tempting prices.

First of all, since to be modern we must be, O, most dietetically correct, how about rhubarb after it goes the way of all deliciousness, into our systems? Most excellent, say those who know. While it is about 95 per cent water, the remaining 5 per cent of food gives us valuable minerals and a rich flavor which are decidedly stimulating to the appetite. And one certainly couldn't ask for a more pleasant reducer, if reduce we must.

As you know, if you ever made the horrible mistake of forgetting to sweeten a rhubarb dish, rhubarb is extremely acid. So much the better, for it therefore can get together most successfully in conserves, jellies, sauces, drinks, and puddings with fruits which are less tart. Or, with proper sweetening, it can hold the fort by itself.

But if rhubarb so far has meant only pie and sauce at your house, you haven't done it half justice. These several ideas that follow are only a few of the ones I've found floating around among fellow homemakers. If you would like more—or if you have one I haven't suggested—won't you tell us about it? You'll be doing a real favor.

RHUBARB UPSIDE DOWN CAKE.

Wash and, if necessary, peel rhubarb, and cut into one inch pieces. Turn into a generous baking dish enough to make one and one-half inches in the bottom of the pan. Add one cup of sugar for each two cups of rhubarb. Pour over this a batter made of one cup of rich sour cream, one-half teaspoon soda, three teaspoons baking powder, and one-half teaspoon salt, two and one-half cups flour, one-half cup sugar, and one teaspoon vanilla. Bake in a moderate oven [350 degrees F.] for forty minutes or steam for fifty. Turn out while hot upside down on a large platter and serve hot with hard sauce.

RHUBARB CUSTARD PIE.

1 cup sugar.
1 tablespoon butter.
1 tablespoon flour.
1 egg, separated.
Boiling water.

Cover the rhubarb with boiling water and let stand five minutes. Pour off the water and add the mixture of melted butter, sugar, flour, beaten egg yolk and water, blending well with the fruit. Turn into a pie pan lined with paste and bake in a moderate oven [325 degrees F.] until firm. Pile on the beaten egg white which has been mixed with three tablespoons of sugar. Brown in the oven and serve hot or cold.

Another rhubarb pie calls for two cups of finely cut rhubarb mixed with a cup of sugar, two level tablespoons of flour, a beaten egg, and a sprinkling of cinnamon or nutmeg. This goes into a plain pie crust, is covered with another, and baked half an hour in a moderate oven.

PIEPLANT BETTY.

This last tip takes equal weights of cut pieplant and sugar, and plenty of large buttered bread crumbs. A layer of the crumbs goes into the baking pan first, butter side down. Then comes a layer of mixed pieplant and sugar, then more crumbs. Alternate till the pan is full, topping off with crumbs, a sprinkling of nutmeg, and added bits of butter. Bake in a moderate oven [350 degrees F.] about thirty-five minutes.

Predict Drop in Listings of Social Register

peared in 1897. Previous to this time they had been listed in the Chicago Society Directory and Ladies' Visiting and Shopping Guide of 1867, the Boston, and the Blue Book of Chicago's Elite—rosters that served the same purpose as the register in a similar but more general way.

Nine years previous to the publication of the first Chicago Social Register, however, this idea of "cataloguing" society was born in New York. Here is the story:

Washington square, as the downtown terminus of Fifth avenue, was in its heyday 60 years ago, the center of New York's old Knickerbocker families—among them the Charles A. Mintons. Mr. Minton was one of the editors of the New York Herald. In line with the development of the city, however, business began to encroach on the fashionable district in the late '70s and early '80s and the residents started northward.

So much confusion resulted in keeping the new addresses that Mrs. Minton conceived the idea of listing those who comprised Knickerbocker society with the numbers of their new residences. Almost immediately the list gained local fame. One hostess after another asked to borrow it until Maurice Minton, a son, and himself an editor of the Herald staff, printed it in book form and sold it under the name of "The List." This was about 1879 or 1380.

Soon another man had the same idea, bringing out a roster called "Society," but Mr. Minton succeeded in combining this with "The List" under the title "Society List." Still the united strength of the two was not enough to cope with the Social Register which appeared on the horizon in 1888. Louis Keller, active in New York social affairs at the time, was responsible for it.

When he saw the Minton list he was struck with the idea to improve on it by the addition of a list of clubs and facts relating to marriages. He also realized that such a roster would be valuable only if it became recognized as an authority in its field. By the simple process of keeping people out, he made them anxious to get in.

In 1888 the first edition of Keller's New York Social Register was ready —100 pages with 38 names to a page —approximately 3,800 names in all, an interesting commentary on the spectacular Ward McAllister's edict that New York society numbered "400." Glance through Chicago's register today and you will find that it lists approximately 3,000—but families, not persons.

Years from 28 to 30 Ten Best in Gal's Life

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

"The ten best years of a girl's life are between 28 and 30!"

So slammed my favorite radio comedian, Ed Wynn. [May his tribe increase for more good, clean radio fun.] Not so we'll be slammed some more, but so hearty laughter will work its tonic charms. Some of the radio humor we could shut off but, being optimists, do not, is sour as stale cabbage; nowise helpful to digestion or expression.

BUT that wisecrack of Ed Wynn's has a swell little beauty sermon in it. If women have put over the idea that they can live ten calendar years between 28 and 30 they're doing exactly what beauty preachers, reducers, and cosmetic instructors hoped.

You might check up on that idea. Are you cramming ten years into the named two birthdays? The 28-30 era in a woman's life is the period, if ever there is one, when the eye of man can be most easily deceived. We say the eye of man. We're not so sure about the female eye on scrutiny bent. At this age, as it is being practiced today by our clever women, 35 can easily look 30.

But what we honestly started out to say was a word of high cheer for the girl or woman [take your choice] who is turning the 30 bend, a harrowing turn if you'd believe some of our short story writers. There was a beauty contest held, news of which just reached my ears, though the event must have occurred a while back. Anyway, the ten most beautiful were chosen. Not one among the number, so the report goes, was under 30.

The principle is that until 30 begins casting sheep's eyes at you you can't be more than pretty. It takes about thirty years of good living to round out a candidate for "the most beautiful." Maybe there's more to that than greets the eye at first glance.

Prizes Announced at Flower Show of Men's Garden Club

Robert A. Napier of Blue Island was awarded the August Koch medal yesterday for the best exhibit of flowers shown at the exposition of the Men's Garden club of the Chicago region held in the Garfield park conservatory. The show was concluded last night. Napier also won the award for the finest peony display. J. H. Burdett of Homewood was second in the sweepstakes display and Arthur Wyld of Winnetka was third. More than 3,000 exhibits were entered. O. V. Morgan of Elmhurst is president of the club and A. F. Bronwell of Riverside, vice president, was chairman of the exposition.

arrangements for the affair tomorrow, the league has maintained its tradition as an unpartisan or all-party organization. Mrs. William G. Hibbard of Winnetka, Mrs. Frank P. Hixon and Miss Martha Sarver of Lake Forest and Mrs. George S. Packard of Chicago are serving on this committee.

Mr. and Mrs. George Henry High, who usually go abroad every summer to visit their son-in-law and daughter, Sir Charles and Lady Burney [Gladys High] in England, are to be at Osterville on Cape Cod this year instead. They went east last Thursday, after spending a few weeks at the Deerpath inn in Lake Forest.

Farwells Are Ready to Move.

The Arthur L. Farwells, who have remained in town for the marriage of their daughter, Elinor, to Ogden Ketting, will be moving out to their farm near Libertyville very soon to spend the summer there, as usual. The wedding couple embark Wednesday for a honeymoon in Europe.

Miss Dorothy Schmidt, ex-president, and Miss Margot Atkin, president of the Chicago Junior league, are expected home the middle of this week from the west where they went several weeks ago for the national conference of Junior Leagues. Since the conference ended in Los Angeles the young women have visited all along the California coast and they event went down into Mexico for a short stay.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Schuttler have moved out to "Westgate" at Wheaton for the summer. Miss Anne Schuttler departed last Sunday for a month's visit with friends on Long Island, and Miss Jane Schuttler will leave soon for Cleveland to be in the wedding party of her cousin, Barbara Nick, on June 29.

Pretty Eleanor Sherman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roger Sherman of Winnetka, is among the 113 students being graduated from Connecticut college today. She and her mother and elder sister, Louise, who went east to see Eleanor graduate, will arrive in Winnetka the end of this week.

Miss Margaret Mary Wells, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John E. Wells of 421 Barry avenue, is receiving her bachelor's degree at Vassar today. Mrs. Wells is in the east for the commencement exercises and she and Miss Wells and John, who attends the Storm King school at Cornwall, N. Y., will return to Chicago tomorrow. The Wells family will go to Scarborough Beach in Maine in July.

Lovely Weather for Flower Show.

Members of the Lake Forest flower show committee who remember working in other years when rainy weather spoiled the effect of the carefully grouped blossoms in the courtyard of Mrs. Rockefeller McCormick's estate thanked their lucky stars for the cool, sunny weather that helped to make their show such a success this weekend.

Visitors who made the trip out to the north shore on Saturday or Sunday saw Lake Forest at its loveliest, and a flower show which excelled in beauty even those other remarkable shows which the Garden club has been holding for so many years.

Among the new classes this year, the arrangement of flowers in a miniature container probably revealed more ingenuity than any of the other groups. There were a great many entries in this class, and the crowds lingered long to observe each tiny container and its dainty mass of blossoms. Nobody disputed Miss Martha Sarver's claim to the blue ribbon which the judges gave to her entry of pansies, bleeding hearts and forget-me-nots in an antique white and gold porcelain vase not more than three inches high.

The geranium arrangements, too, were popular, probably because the hardy flowers are so commonly grown by city as well as suburban dwellers. Mrs. Robert H. Ripley's rose geraniums in a blue pitcher of heavy studded glass took first prize in this division; Mrs. Lionel Frank won second honors for an old earthen bowl of red and white geraniums; and Mrs. Harry B. Clow was given third prize for a mass of white blossoms in a low copper bowl.

PARIS, June 13.—Lots of red hot Russian cusswords, not written by Alexander Pushkin, were added to the libretto of the Russian opera, "Mozart and Salieri," at the Opera Comique last night when Feodor Challapin and Conductor Michel Steimann tiffed loudly during the performance. Russian ladies who understood the language, finding the atmosphere too hot, left the theater hurriedly. Steimann, launching a final short ugly word, shattered his baton against the music stand, continuing to conduct the opera with the short end of the stick.

The temperamental basso, playing Salieri, started the trouble when Mozart, played by Pezemkovsky, started a tirade several measures late. Challapin, blaming Steimann, sang his opinion of the conductor in a loud and deep delivering voice. The ladies then left. Challapin, disappointed that only Russian speaking auditors understood, made his attitude clear to all by taking personal charge of the direction of the orchestra. It was then that Steimann uttered the unrevealed Russian word said to consist of but three letters and smashed the stick.

The conductor resigned his job immediately after the final curtain. He threatens to sue Challapin and to write a pamphlet explaining his ideas of the relations between conductors and stars.

BY CHARLES COLLINS.

Mr. Kettering, manager and custodian of the Adelphi theater, deserves to be hailed this morning as a resourceful executive and a showman with a civic point of view. Finding that the Broadway impresarios had no goods to ship to this market for the entertainment of the Republican convention, he snapped his fingers over his typewriter and the synopsis of a revue emerged upon a sheet of manuscript paper. Then he stamped his foot and a troop of Negro entertainers came pouring out of the cabarets of the south side to enlist on his pay roll.

The results of Mr. Kettering's ingenuity were exhibited for the first time at the Adelphi last night under the title of "Do Your Stuff." This show is an all-colored frolic in characteristic style, and good enough to take a delegate's mind off his duties to the nation for an evening. It is not another "Rhapsody in Black," nor yet another "Shuffle Along," but at this fag-end of an exhausted theatrical season it will serve as a song-and-dance amusement.

Mr. Kettering's idea was to start his revue in the jungles of Africa, when the black man was a primitive article, and to march with the children of Ham, in their more festive moments, until he arrived at the modernism of Harlem, where joy would be completely sophisticated and more or less unrefined. So the program began with some devil-dancing in the jungle which led to a gorilla's elopement with the beige complexioned heroine.

Then it dealt with the slave trade as a comic forerunner of the bootlegging business. Southern plantation stuff was next in order, and the sweet folksongs of Stephen C. Foster were caroled merrily. Harlem was the next stop in Mr. Kettering's jaunt through Negro sociology, and there the show lingered through the twelve episodes of its second act.

"Do Your Stuff" is a fairly copious pastime. It is rich in principals; its chorus is numerous and well trained, and its program runs to twenty-six labeled items. Its chief asset, I suspect, is its adolescent girls—slender, pale brown votaries of the dance according to their racial tradition, most of whom deserve to be described by quotations from the luscious pages of Lafcadio Hearn's "Two Years in the French West Indies." This is the best looking chorus of any all-Negro musical show that I can remember.

Earl Edwards and Willie Robins are the comedians who work in the sketches, and they are fairly whimsical fellows, although their material is standardized and soggy. Eva Waters might be called the prima donna of the proceedings, although her voice adds no new glory to the Negro gift for song. She is, at any rate, the prettiest girl of the troupe, and makes a pleasant impression as a dancing soubrette.

Among the specialists are three carefree and jaunty lads who call themselves the Rhythm Ramblers. They pick mandolins in an engaging manner, and then throw their instruments away and turn themselves into dancing demons. They created the uproar of the opening.

"Do Your Stuff" contains the robed choir without which no Negro musical show would be orthodox. It is directed by Blanche Walton, who waves a stern baton over the complicated chanting. Tiny Parhan's Granada club orchestra mans the music racks with dignity, and produces some furious and bewildering effects in its jazzy ritual.

BY EDWARD BURNS.

A victory is a victory regardless of the scenery, so rejoice that the White Sox were able to beat the miserable Boston Red Sox, 4 to 1, yesterday in the second game of the series between the majors' two losingest ball teams.

If we seem a bit niggardly in our hosannas for the brave White Sox the reason may be found in the fact that they made only one earned run and only five hits, all singles, against such long suffering performers as Pete Jablonowski and associate Red Sox. We just can't cheer in our best voice for an outfit that makes one earned run and twelve hits in three successive American league games in mid-June, and that's the record of the Chicago entry in the last game with the Senators and the first two contests with Boston.

Frasier Does Right Well.

Vic Frasier deserved all the laurels he won in the eight scoreless innings he worked before retiring with an injured wrist, received from a line drive by McManus. Vic allowed only four hits, all singles, and walked only one man. Three of the Sox's four errors were made behind him, but he wasn't annoyed, having become accustomed to the boys' funny fielding. Frasier now has won two games, both from the Red Sox.

There has been so much said about the alumni recently that it is just as well to mention that the first White Sox run was started on its way by an error by that illustrious and large alumnus, Smead Jolley. Sullivan lined one at J. Smead and it popped right out of his paws. Fothergill then put Campus Will on third with a single. There was a lull while Seeds flied to Rhyne, but Sullivan scored while Grube was forcing Fothergill.

Boys, Boys! Is This Baseball?

In the third inning the Sox got two more runs because the Red Sox threw the ball hither and thither in a sensationally characteristic manner. Funk reached first on an error by McManus and then Hayes fanned. Selph singled to right, putting Funk on third. As soon as he got the ball, Right Fielder Webb threw it to Third Baseman Pickering, and the latter took the heave as a challenge for a long distance throwing contest. Pickering threw the ball back to Webb and Webb threw it back to Pickering, and before Manager Collins could get the attention of the two boys to tell them it was no place for such a tournament, both Funk and Selph had scored and retired to the dugout.

And now for the big news flash: In the seventh the Sox scored their first earned run in three days. Grube opened with a single off Jablonowski and moved to second on Frasier's sacrifice. Funk flied to Jolley, but Hayes walked. Selph knocked his second single, scoring Grube and putting Hayes on third. Carey took second on the throw in. Nothing happened because Kress, the hitless cleanup hitter, again failed to hit.

The Red Sox had the bases full in the seventh and they got a man on second in the eighth, but they couldn't get around to ducking a shutout until the ninth after Faber had come in more or less cold because of the injury to Frasier on the last putout in the eighth. Webb walked to start the ninth and reached second when Jolley was safe on Kress' fumble. Rhyne fanned for the second successive time with two men on base, but Webb got to third on Pickering's fly to Funk. Tate then came through with his second hit, scoring Webb with Boston's only run.

The White Sox made three hits Friday, four Saturday and five yesterday. Hopes are running high that they will pile up six off Bob Weiland this afternoon.

State's Best Golfers Open Meet Today

Champaign, Ill., June 12.—[Special.]—Nationally known professional and amateur golfers will participate in the annual Illinois professional and amateur golf tournament which opens tomorrow at the Champaign County Country club. Professional play will be held tomorrow and Tuesday and amateur play the remaining four days of the week.

Horton Smith, one of the most popular of professionals, will compete for the first time in the Illinois meet. He is pro at the Oak Park Country club. Among other professionals entered will be Lighthorse Harry Cooper, Jock Hutchison, Gunnar Nelson, George Smith, and Eddie Loos. Thirty-six holes will determine the championship by medal play.

The Champaign club course is considered difficult for even the most finished shooters. Nearly all the greens are trapped and several on all sides. To put a further premium on accuracy, front and rear elevations have been made use of in many instances. The course with its par of 72 is 6,403 yards long. Bill Percival of Champaign holds the course record with a 68.

MACCABEES AND BRICKIES TIE, 0-0, IN SECOND GAME

The Brickies and Maccabee All Stars fought an 0 to 0 tie yesterday in the second playoff to determine second place in the Professional Soccer league. Sparta leads the league.

Yesterday's battle marked the end of the Brickies' playing schedule, while the Maccabees have one game remaining.

The Swedes, International league leaders, defeated the Vienna team yesterday, 3 to 2, while the Norwegians and Linnea played to a 2 to 2 tie in an unsuccessful effort to determine second place. At Winnemac park the Ravenswood club beat the Vikings, 2 to 2.

Delegates to the annual convention of the United States Football association, which will be held at Baltimore, will leave for the conference tomorrow.

Cleveland, O., June 12.—(AP)—As a record attendance for the season, 22,923, jammed League park today. Babe Ruth hit his 19th and 20th home runs of the season to keep pace with his banner year, 1927, and help the New York Yankees trounce the Cleveland Indians, 13 to 5. Playing his fifty-second game this year, Babe is maintaining the same clip he did five years ago when he hit 60 home runs.

2 GOAL HANDICAP DECIDES GAME FOR HORSEMEN

A two point handicap was the margin of victory in the Four Horsemen 14 to 12 triumph over the Freebooters yesterday at the Oak Brook Polo club. The two points were too much for the Freebooters to overcome.

The Horsemen started out as though they didn't need the two point handicap when they scored three times in the first chukker. The lead didn't last long as the Freebooters, led by Balding, who scored seven goals, came back with three in the next chukker.

Four Horsemen...3 0 1 2 1 0 0 5—12*
*Two point handicap.

The South Shore Polo and Hunt club defeated the 124th Field Artillery Remount association, 10 to 7½, yesterday at White City.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Boston, Mass., June 12.—Art the Great Shires got loose today, but the Cubs refused to let him beat them single handed. He merely slowed them down. Shires exploded a homer to tie the score in the seventh and made the Chicagoans start all over again in a fight that was waged through thirteen 24 karat innings before the boy scout members of the Hornsby troupe wielded their bats to flatten the Braves for the day. The score was 5 to 3, and the Cubs now are leading the league by one and one-half games.

If any pitcher profited by a brilliant defense it was Guy Bush on this occasion. He pitched beautifully enough, barring the first inning when the Braves leaped on him for a brief two run lead, but it was stop after stop of potential wallops by Woody English, Billy Herman and Bill Jurges that carried him along to his successful finish. English at third, where chances ordinarily are few, handled no fewer than eleven and the eyes of 25,000 fairly popped out over the performance.

Cantwell Applies Brakes.

Until Shires' homer tied the score at three apiece in the seventh the Cubs were headed straight for victory by virtue of an assault which produced three runs off Ben Cantwell in the second inning. Then the slatlike pitcher suddenly snapped into a pace which bowled over the Chicagoans so consistently that the process became monotonous. From the start of the third to the finish of the twelfth there were only four singles and none of the authors of these even reached second base. But all this went for naught in the thirteenth when the bats of Jurges, Moore and Herman crowded Cantwell to the ropes.

Here's how the finishing touch was applied by the league leaders. Jurges was the first man up and he doubled to left for his third safety. Bush tried to sacrifice, but was thrown out. Jurges wisely remained at second. Then J. Moore, hitless all afternoon, singled to center and went to second on the return throw which didn't come close to keeping Jurges from scoring. Herman followed with a two bagger which ripped past third like a bullet, and Moore ran home. Frankhouse was called in to finish the inning, and a few minutes later Bush, with a great fielding play of his own, yanked down the curtain.

Bush's First Inning Jolt.

The jolt suffered by Bush in the first inning started with Knothe's tall fly falling just inside the right field line for a double. He was flagged trying to get third on Urbanski's bunt. A drive by Berger went through English for a single, putting Urbanski on

OPEN SEASON ON AMERICAN DERBY YARNS ARRIVES

BY FRENCH LANE.

This is the week when old timers will spin the best racing yarns of the year, for it brings with it the renewal of the American Derby on Saturday at Washington Park. More romance has been woven into this horse race than into 'most any other turf fixture in the country.

If you will lend a willing ear you will hear many times of how Corrigan's mare Modesty won the first American Derby. You will hear tales about Lucky Baldwin, White Hat McCarthy, "Bet You a Million" Gates, Jockey Isaac Murphy, and of Snapper Garrison's ride on Boundless.

100 to 1, and He Wins!

You can listen all day and all night to the story of the Derby of 1903, which was won by The Picket. Of the enormous fortunes which were won and lost when, as a 100 to 1 shot in the future books, he triumphed. You might hear about Bookmaker Jim O'Leary in connection with this race. For he didn't like The Picket and you could bet all you wanted in his book and get 100 to 1 for your money.

These historic characters were all actors in the drama of the American Derby and there were scores of others almost as famous. So the old timers—those who are left—have come to expect romance or tragedy or comedy with every renewal of this race which was first run in 1884. By a coincidence that was the last time the Republicans and Democrats convened in Chicago to nominate their candidates for President.

From a field of 125 nominated last winter for the Derby there are about 20 survivors left which are ready to carry on in the 1932 presentation on next Saturday afternoon.

Tragedy has already stalked across the stage. It has removed such leading characters as Burgoo King, Tick On, and Burning Blaze, but it has been such a year of uncertainties in the series of rich specials arranged for the leading 3 year olds that there is a great possibility the chapter devoted to this year's Derby will be just as interesting as those chapters which have preceded it.

At the beginning of Derby week a field of some 20 starters is in prospect, but even with the race only six days away some of these candidates will fall by the wayside. But the field will not be depleted to any great extent, and 16 or more are likely to be in line when Starter Morrissey gives them the word.

Here They Are—Pick One.

Horse—	Owner—
Osculator	W. R. Coe
Faireno	William Woodward
Stepenfetchit	Mrs. J. H. Whitney
Mad Pursuit	Walter J. Salmon
Marmion	C. B. Shafer
Adobe Post	Richard Morris
Our Fancy	Rome Respass
Top Flight	C. V. Whitney
Cathop	R. M. Eastman
Economic	J. H. Louchelm
Boatswain	W. M. Jeffords
On Post	Mrs. L. G. Kaufman
Gusto	M. L. Schwartz
Summelus	W. S. Kilmer
Evening	George D. Widener
Big Beau	H. P. Headley
Minton	Nash Brothers
Prince Hotspur	Joseph Leiter Estate
I Say	Albert Sabath
Springsteel	S. W. Labrot

With the exception of the champion filly Top Flight and Faireno, winner of the Belmont Stakes in New York a few days ago, all these candidates are either at Washington Park or are en route there. Top Flight stacks up as the most doubtful starter. Her victory in the American Coaching Club Oaks at Belmont Park last week was not impressive. She doesn't seem to be ready to tackle the colts of her age in such a grueling battle as the American Derby. There are reports from New York that her next start will be in the Arlington Oaks early in July.

Six Candidates Go Today.

Six of these candidates are an ambitious lot and they will see action in the Niles Center purse which will be the feature at Washington Park today. Two easterners—Mad Pursuit and Sunmelus—are in this struggle, and the westerners nominated are Adobe Post, Big Beau, Prince Hotspur and Our Fancy. The race is at a mile and seventy yards and promises to be a right merry battle.

Other Derby candidates will see action on tomorrow's and Wednesday's program. But regardless of what happens in the preliminary skirmishes the Derby is to be a wide open affair—so open that the favorite is likely to be quoted at 4 or 5 to 1. Economic may be that favorite.

CLARITA NEHER FAILS TO WIN 3D OLYMPIC BERTH

Los Angeles, Cal., June 12.—(AP)—Clarita Huntsberger Neher, member of the American women's Olympic team in 1924 and 1928, failed in her bid for a third team position in the Southern California swimming and diving tryouts today when she went unplaced in the high diving event.

The feature test of the final day's performances was won by Dorothy Poynton, Pasadena, Cal., girl, who is seeking a place on her second Olympic team. Georgia Coleman of Los Angeles was second and Marion Dale Roper of Los Angeles third.

Clarence [Buster] Crabbe of Los Angeles, who last night won the 1,500 meter free style race in 20 minutes 24 seconds, shattering half a dozen American records at trick distances along the way, failed in his attempt to break the world's 1,000 yards free style mark this afternoon. His time was 12 minutes 19 seconds, 2.2 seconds over the world record. Josephine McKim, winner of the 100 meters for women last night in 1 minute 10 seconds, won the 400 meters free style race today in 5 minutes 49.5 seconds.

Women Golfers Play West Side Matches Today

BY BETTY ECKERSALL.

The second Chicago Women's District Golf association's sectional matches for the west side teams will be held today at Glen Oak and the Edgewood Valley Country club.

The first division La Grange team will meet Edgewood Valley, the second division Oak Park team plays Brookwood, and the third division Edgewood Valley team opposes Brookwood at Glen Oak.

The three matches at the Edgewood Valley Country club are: Second division Medinah team vs. Maywood; third division Medinah vs. Glen Oak, and Mohawk vs. River Forest.

The last matches between west side teams resulted as follows: First division—La Grange, 5½; Glen Oak, 6½. Second division—La Grange, 4½; Maywood, 7½. Third division—Brookwood, 7½; Glen Oak, 4½.

The results of the play at the Mohawk Country club was: Second division—Oak Park, 1; Medinah, 11. Third division—Oak Park, 4; Medinah, 8. Finals of the competition at the La Grange Country club were: First division—Mohawk, 5½; Edgewood Valley, 6½. Third division—Mohawk, 3; Edgewood Valley, 9.

Under the new plan authorized by the Chicago Women's District Golf association first, second, and third teams will be eligible and matches will be held weekly instead of semi-weekly. All contests will be decided on a handicap basis. By enlarging the team match competition to include first, second, and third teams the association hopes to broaden the competition and encourage more women to take up competitive golf.

The next western team match will be held June 20 at the Medinah Country club, with the first division La Grange team meeting Mohawk, second division La Grange opposing River Forest, and the third division Glen Oak playing River Forest.

Fight Battery: Schmeling and Four Catchers

Kingston, N. Y., June 12.—[Special.]—Max Schmeling battled four sparring mates for seven rounds in his workout today. Maxie stopped a few blows but they did not appear to bother him.

The champion went out after Dick Onken in the opening bout. Dick came here with the reputation of being a fellow who couldn't be knocked down. Schmeling put a lot in his punches and before one round was finished he had Onken about ready for the carpet, but he refused to fall.

The next two sparring mates, Lou Barba and Chester Matan, gave the champion plenty of opposition; both landing some solid right handers to the chin. Eddie Gunboat Williams was on the receiving end for two rounds.

SHARKEY MEETS SEKYRA

Orangeburg, N. Y., June 12.—[Special.]—Jack Sharkey and Joe Sekyra, Dayton, O., heavyweight, put on a two round exhibition today that had all the fire that sparring sessions usually lack.

Sekyra drew Sharkey's fire with a sharp left jab to the mouth just after they squared off. The American challenger for Max Schmeling's heavyweight title responded with a similar punch and from then on the wraps were off. Sharkey displayed speedy footwork in evading Sekyra's attack. Once Sharkey slipped under one of Sekyra's straight lefts and countered with a short right uppercut to the chin, which made the Dayton lad give ground.

Sharkey relaxed a bit after his two round bout with Sekyra and did not appear quite as anxious to play the rôle of the star performer against Lou Flowers, colored heavyweight from Harlem, in their two round bout. He plodded after Flowers, sliding punches and countering with short straight rights to the body. This punch is the best in his extensive repertoire. Jack's one round windup with Charley Anderson found him backing up.

CANZONERI OPENS OWN CONVENTION ON RIALTO TODAY

He'll Select Good K. O. Punch for Dublinsky.

Tony Canzoneri, lightweight champion, and Harry Dublinsky enter the final stages of their drill today for their 10 round bout at Sparta stadium, 21st and Kostner, Thursday night.

The semi-windup on Thursday's card brings together Paul Dazzo, Chicago featherweight, who beat Sammy Levine, and Mickey Cohen of Los Angeles. Eddie Shea has been promised the winner by Matchmaker Al Miller. Cohen and Dazzo are matched at six rounds.

The other three supporting six round bouts include Mickey Patrick of East Chicago against Nick Taft, north side heavyweight. Harry Schuman meets Joe Meyers, a nephew of the famous Billy Meyers, the Streator Cyclone of thirty years ago. Harry is a brother of Solly Schuman and recently returned from Florida where he scored 11 knockouts in 14 starts.

Charley Retzlaff and Les Marriner have been matched for a ten round bout at White City Tuesday, June 28. An effort was made to sign Ernie Schaaf for Marriner, but Schaaf declined. Marriner has started training. Retzlaff will appear in the semi-windup to the Sharkey-Schmeling fight in New York before the White City bout.

Jackie Fields, welterweight champion, left Michael Reese hospital yesterday after a stay of several weeks. He will rest about a month before returning to the ring. The champion may leave for California this week to visit his mother in Los Angeles.

Nate Lewis said last night that if the Chicago Stadium promotes boxing shows this summer they will be held in the west side building. The weather is too uncertain outdoors, Lewis said, and with its cooling system the big building can be held at 75 degrees. The next Stadium date is June 24. If Lewis can obtain a ten round match, which is better than three already made, a show will be held. Mickey Walker turned down an offer to meet Tuff y Griffith on the card.

Benny Leonard, former lightweight champion, has wired Chicago friends that a match against Jimmy McLarnin at New York this summer has been practically made. Leonard is in Philadelphia, where he boxes Billy Angelo Thursday. Kid Chocolate, junior lightweight champion, meets Roger Bernard on the same card.

Guns Silent, but Hunters Talk Ducks

BY BOB BECKER.

Fishermen, campers and canoeists are pushing the hunters out of the recreational picture, but the latter are making a bid for attention now that a federal duck stamp bill has been introduced in congress. Waterfowl hunters, who have been seriously disturbed by the developments in their sport during the last few years, should know about this bill, which is designed to raise money to aid the declining duck population.

According to the reports from Washington, this bill proposing the sale of $1 federal stamps, which all migratory waterfowl hunters would have

McNair and Foxx Get Home Run Each.

Detroit, Mich., June 12.—(AP)—Jimmy Foxx bagged his 22d home run of the season today but even with another four bagger by McNair thrown in, it wasn't enough and the Detroit Tigers defeated the Philadelphia Athletics, 8 to 6, to even the series.

A pair of rallies by the Tigers, in which Heinie Schuble and Gerald Walker, the young batting sensations, figured, won the game for the Tigers at the expense of big George Earnshaw, who lasted six and one-third innings. The Tigers' reventh inning attack netted four runs.

CORNELL, PENN CREWS ARRIVE AT POUGHKEEPSIE

Poughkeepsie, N. Y., June 12.—(AP)—Cornell and Pennsylvania crews arrived here today to enter training for the Intercollegiate Rowing association regatta June 20. Only Washington and Massachusetts Tech now are absent and both are expected Tuesday.

Of the squads assembled only Syracuse was idle today. All the others had short workouts morning and afternoon. With only a week of training remaining, the crews are awaiting opportunities for time trials. So far only Columbia and Navy admitteddly have negotiated the course against the watch. Syracuse, however, is believed to have covered the distance, if not the course, with Coach Ten Eyck holding the watch.

Coach Ky Ebright's California crews have developed into the river's principal mystery. Since their arrival here a week ago the Golden Bears, so far as could be observed, have had only the lightest of practice. Ebright says, however, they are at their peak and need only enough work to keep them there. He plans a time trial "any day now."

MOON MULLINS—A TASTE OF HIS OWN MEDICINE

third. Both men scored on a triple to right center by Worthington. This annoyed Bush to such extent that he inadvertently thumped Schulmerich on the trousers with a pitched ball. Nothing further happened, however, because Shires' tap to Herman was concerted into a double play.

The three runs for the Cubs in the second began with Gudat's single over short. Grimm's fly was taken by Berger, but Hartnett hit one that couldn't be touched until after it had bounced off the left field tin sign for a double. Gudat scored easily. Jurges also doubled against the same wall and Hartnett registered. Bush helped his own cause with a looping single behind first, Jurges going to third. J. Moore forced Bush and Jurges scored on the play.

Braves Quiet Until Sixth.

After their sortie in the first and until the end of the fifth the Braves found the going pretty tough against Bush. During this stretch only two batters survived. Urbanski did it on Herman's boot in the third, but was promptly gobbled up in a double play. Shires was the other to enjoy this distinction. He singled to center after two were out in the fourth.

Things perked up a bit for the Braves after two were deposed in the sixth, but they suffered an attack of blind staggers or something. The mischief began with Worthington slapping a double to the fence in center. Bush didn't like the looks of Hackenschmidt Schulmerich and walked him. Then he could not get the ball over to Shires. Bush threw three wide to the gentleman from Texas. The next was a strike. So was the next, but Shires spurned it and, both runners being on the move, it was a simple matter for Hartnett to peg to English to catch Worthington at third.

Shires' Big Deed.

The way the sixth ended provided Shires with another chance when the seventh opened, and this was where he did things in a big way. He boosted a drive toward right and the ball caromed off the foul line pole which juts up in front of the bleacher. The ball was recovered in time to hold Shires at second, but the umpires later waved him around for a homer on the theory that if the pole hadn't been there the ball would have gone into the seats. After Shires had bowed to the applause, Maranville was thrown out by Jurges and Hargrave singled. But Bush set down the next pair.

Shires' third hit cooked up quite a mess for Bush to squirm through in the twelfth. He hit the first pitch for a long single to right. Maranville's sacrifice put him on second. Spohrer was purposely walked. Cantwell's infield out sent Shires to third and Spohrer to second. Bush couldn't get the ball over, so Knothe walked and the bags were jammed. Then Urbanski slugged the first ball and it bounced to Grimm to end the agony.

Braves' Threat Halted.

After the Cubs had picked off their winning runs the Braves weren't content to fold up without staging an uprising in their half of the thirteenth. Berger boosted to Stephenson, but Worthington doubled in the same direction. It took the last of a series of dizzy fielding plays to check Leach, who batted for Schulmerich. He bounced a drive past Grimm, but Herman tore back onto the grass, grabbed the ball and whipped it to Bush, who had run over to cover the bag. Shires lined to Moore in deep center and that was all.

FANS STORM AS GIANT OFFICIALS CALL OFF GAME

New York, June 12.—[Special.]—A thousand or more baseball fans staged a mild riot at the Polo grounds today in protest against the calling off of the Giants-Pirates game after they had paid their admission fees.

The decision to postpone the game came before the rain, which in the later afternoon turned into a downpour, amounted to much. The New York club's switchboard operators had continued telling inquirers by telephone that the game was on right up to 3 o'clock, the hour of the scheduled start.

In the Giant offices on the floor atop the club dressing rooms were Charley Stoneham, president, and Jim Tierney, secretary, and outside, on the field and in the adjacent bleacher sections, the fans howled derisively and every time a club official showed his face at a window a dozen or more half eaten slabs of brick ice cream hurled by fans splattered against the pane and the surrounding masonry.

Police finally drove the demonstrators from the park, many of them still clamoring for return of their admission money. All, however, had to be content with their rain checks.

Olympic Ticket Salesmen Must Know Their Events

Los Angeles, Cal., June 12.—(AP)—With so many events scheduled to take place at the same time during the tenth Olympiad, July 30 to Aug. 14, the selling of tickets is carried on much like the railroad business during tourist season. Purchasers are asked first what events most interest them, and then tickets are sold on a plan which permits the patron to attend these performances and others which do not conflict.

Boston, Mass., June 12.—Pat Malone is due to pitch in the third of the series between the Cubs and the Braves tomorrow. Bob Brown will appear in a similar capacity for Boston.

William Veeck, the Cub president, and Judge Emil Fuchs, the Braves' executive, have been in each other's company so much the last couple of days that some of the Chicago athletes are worrying lest they be picked to spend the remainder of the summer here. President Veeck insists there is nothing afoot.

Jakie May was greatly distressed this evening when he went to the clubhouse and discovered that some of his playful mates had hidden his undergarments. Jakie said he didn't mind the loss of the shorts, but would like to have back the $18 sewed therein.

The Brooklyn park once had the distinction of having the most dilapidated press box in the league. Braves' field now has the honor by about one ton of dirt and a few dozen antiquated chairs, one or two of which are usable.

It wasn't Stephenson's fault that the Cubs didn't dent Cantwell with a run or two in the first inning. A pass to J. Moore and a single by English put two on, with one out. Stephenson lined high toward third, but Knothe made a leap and grabbed it for a double play.

It is getting so that the Cubs put on a row of some kind every day. Today Charley Grimm furnished the sideshow. When two were on base and Knothe was at bat in the twelfth the Cubs thought he had taken a swing at a pitch which Reardon ruled a ball. Grimm raced up to the plate, waved his hands, talked lustily right in the umpire's ear and kicked dirt all over his shoes. Reardon accepted it as harmless fun.

Feed Weiland and Red Sox to Lyons Today

Bob Weiland, Chicago boy and former member of the White Sox, is due to pitch for the Red Sox in the third game of the series at Comiskey park this afternoon. Of the ten Red Sox victories Weiland has presided at three. He has decisions over Washington, Philadelphia and Chicago. Lyons is to go for the Sox.

Lu Blue yesterday was out of the lineup for the first time this year. It was the second game Lu has missed since joining the Sox at the start of 1931. He is suffering from a sore side, but has no busted rib, the X-ray man says.

The Sox season reached the one-third mark yesterday with the Chicagoans winners of 18 games out of 51 played. As the political seers figure, this "indicates" a finish with 54 victories, two fewer than the Sox won last year. The Sox still have 21 games each to play with the Yankees and the A's, however.

Red Kress, obtained at great expense to give the Sox some batting punch, has made one hit, an infield scratch, in 19 trips to the plate. He has played three games since he was restored to the cleanup spot and in the three games he had made nary a hit. He made three errors in the three games, however.

Today will be ladies' day, on account of the Friday gap in the Yankee series.

2 Teams Tie in One Hour Bicycle Race

The team of Wilerd Mann and Al Klingbiel, representing the South Chicago Wheelmen, and that of Fred Guth and Morris Giller of the Henry Playground, each scored 32 points at Humboldt park yesterday to tie for first place in the second of eight one hour team races sponsored by the Amateur Bicycle League of America.

Jerry Rodman and Jerry Havaere of the Barrett Athletic club, were tied with 25 points. Guth and Giller appeared the winners until the last sprint, when Guth fell, enabling Klingbiel to pass him.

Andy Englehardt of Humboldt park, state and tri-state champion in 1929, sustained a probable fracture of the shoulder in another fall. Art Cumming, whose team won the last race, was injured in training and did not compete.

In the three mile open event, Leo Ligman of Berwyn defeated his brother, Ray, for first place. Oscar Parson of Chicago was second. Fred Erhardt, Kansas City, won the pursuit race, defeating Frank Bauer and R. Goosens, both of Chicago.

SURVEY SHOWS DOWNSTATE HAS ENOUGH PAVING

Week-End Traffic Fails to Crowd Roads.

BY HAL FOUST.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., June 12.—[Special.]—A survey of week-end traffic on downstate roads yesterday and today exposed extravagancies of the state highway department in the past and indicated economies which might be effected by a change of policy for the future.

In a drive of 650 miles THE TRIBUNE roadster found the existing through routes adequate for travel at the peak load of Saturday and Sunday. In addition, many miles of state bond issue pavement were found free of oil stains, the traffic failing to justify the expenditure, half of which was borne by Chicago automobile owners through their payments of gasoline tax and state license fees.

Local Roads in Ruts.

Off the pavements local roads serving farms and small villages were very dirty with deep ruts telling of their virtually impassable condition in wet weather. There were exceptions to this general statement, and these exceptions may point the way for a future economical development of a secondary road system.

East from Chatham, a local road of graded, drained and oiled dirt afforded forty-five or fifty mile an hour travel free from dust and without the risk of being closed by a rain. According to the Chicago Motor club, such type of construction costs approximately $3,000 per mile, exclusive of any heavy grading or large bridge construction.

Downstate farmers, under the leadership of their local politicians, are seeking to add approximately 10,000 miles to the state highway system. To pave this mileage with concrete would cost a quarter of a million dollars.

New Concrete Not Needed.

The busiest of the downstate routes, such as U. S. 66 north and south, and U. S. 40 east and west, were able to handle the traffic of Saturday shoppers and Sunday pleasure drivers. George Barton, engineer for the Chicago Motor club, was of the opinion that the present slab highways are adequate to care for the needs of the motorists, at least until public finances are bettered.

Other state pavements were virtually idle, examples of these were Ill. 49 north of Willow Hill and Ill. 160 west of Greenville with only an occasional car. The state's own figures, based on a traffic survey last August, show that it has built 100 miles of pavement at a cost of $32,000,000 in excess of the type of construction justified by the volume of travel on the roads.

THE TRIBUNE roadster also covered some of the expensive brick resurfacing of last year and part of the fifty-three miles on which the state is about to award contracts for brick to cost approximately $1,650,000, based on last year's bills.

Expensive Brick Breaking Up.

On Ill. 11, east of Marshall, the brick resurfacing, costing more than new road, showed cracks tenderly nursed by maintenance crews to preserve the pavement less than a year old. Apparently the old concrete slabs, the foundation for the present surface, is shifting on the subsoil.

A state highway policeman told of patches of brick that had to be lifted and replaced after foundation repairs. There were several small areas where the bricks are loose. The asphalt coat on the bricks showed stripes where maintenance men were trying to keep fresh cracks filled with bituminuous mixture.

A similar condition was found on Ill. 4 south of Staunton, another resurfacing job less than a year old. The bricks are not breaking, but the old concrete foundation is failing. A new concrete road hereabouts costs $19,000 a mile, according to the Chicago Motor club, while the average cost of brick resurfacing has been $31,500.

On Ill. 11 east of Greenville is 8.24 miles on the state program for resurfacing this summer. Two sharp turns, in the opinion of the motor club engineer, should call for a new pavement on a new alignment, while some of the 8.24 miles is in good condition for continued use without the expensive resurfacing.

PREMIER AND FOE CLAIM VICTORY IN NEWFOUNDLAND

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ST. JOHN'S N. F., June 12.—Both the government party of Premier Sir Richard Squires and the opposition of F. C. Alderdice claimed victory when the polls of Newfoundland's parliamentary general election closed last night. The island's ballot counting system is slow and the full results will not be known for several days.

It was predicted tonight that the fishermen's vote had gone heavily in favor of the Alderdice party, and that Premier Squires lacked sufficient votes in the outlying districts to give him a majority.

The election was ordered after a mob on April 5 stormed the colonial building, seized Premier Squires and threatened to drown him in the harbor. An act of the recent legislature reduced the number of members from 40 to 27. The premier found it hard to fill the ticket with candidates partial to him. Sir William Coacker, leader of the fishermen's union; W. W. Halfyard, postmaster general; Arthur Barnes, secretary of state; J. Bindon, finance minister, and R. Hibbs, public works minister, declined to seek reelection.

The Alderdice opposition supplied candidates in 26 districts. The government's actions, particularly the increased taxation on gasoline, kerosene and oil, and the drastic cuts in the education and civil lists, postal and marine services, were attacked. The failure to raise an $8,000,000 loan last May, unemployment and the low price of fish, Newfoundland's sustaining industry, were the issues.

SUSPECT SEIZED IN AFRICA SAYS HE IS KIDNAPER

Held as Abductor of Missouri Woman.

Philadelphia, Pa., June 12.—(AP)—Martin Depew was brought back from South Africa today to answer a charge of kidnaping Mrs. Nell Donnelly, wealthy Kansas City dress manufacturer, for $75,000 ransom last December, and detectives who questioned him in a taxicab on the way from the pier to the police station quoted him as saying:

"Well, fellows, I did it."

[Assoc. Press Photo.]

The prisoner, also known as Marshall Depew and Marshall Deputy, was sought as the leader of a gang of eight who abducted Mrs. Donnelly Dec. 16 and released her a week later without obtaining ransom after the intercession of former Senator James Reed, a friend of Mrs. Donnelly and her husband.

Plans Not Guilty Plea.

Sergt. T. J. Higgins and R. K. Cole of the Kansas City police, who took Depew into custody as soon as the steamer West Cawthon docked, said that despite his alleged confession, Depew announced he would plead not guilty.

Depew asserted he had been drawn into the kidnaping plot unwillingly and named Lacy Browning as the leader. Browning is one of four persons under arrest in Kansas City in connection with the case, the others being Depew's second wife, Ethel; Paul Scheidt and Charles Mele.

Browning, upon his arrest, said Depew planned the kidnaping, and authorities felt this version was strengthened by the fact that Mrs. Depew was employed by Mrs. Donnelly.

Names Browning Only.

Sergt. Higgins said Depew admitted several persons were involved in the abduction, but declined to name any except Browning. Three others are being sought, two of them understood to be Philadelphians, but authorities declined to disclose their identity.

Depew was held in jail tonight and will be taken to Kansas City tomorrow. County Prosecutor James R. Page of Kansas City said he waived extradition. He had nothing to say after his statement in the taxicab except that he was not afraid.

Traced to South Africa.

Depew disappeared after the kidnaping, worked his way to Johannesburg and deserted ship there. Meanwhile authorities succeeded in tracing his movements and Johannesburg officials, learning he was wanted here, dropped the desertion charge against him and deported him as an alien. He came here in the custody of two guards.

He formerly was employed as a steam shovel operator at Downingtown, Pa., and is alleged to have deserted his first wife and two children there.

WARRANT TO BE ASKED TODAY FOR BANK FUGITIVE

A warrant charging Charles L. Pennell, assistant cashier of the Peoples Trust and Savings bank, 32 North Michigan avenue, with the embezzlement of $32,040, is to be taken out today, it was said at the detective bureau yesterday.

Pennell, who lived at 6621 North Ashland avenue, disappeared Thursday. Earle H. Reynolds, president of the bank, said Saturday that the loss of the money was not discovered until Friday afternoon. The shortage was covered by an insurance bond, and it was said the insuring company would be the complainant against the fugitive.

The flight of Pennell occurred after the bank had announced it was going out of business and would pay all the depositors in full.

COST OF N. Y. RELIEF FOR NEEDY REACHES $65,000,000 A YEAR

New York, June 11.—[Special.]—An analysis prepared by the research bureau of the welfare council and made public today revealed that the public and private relief agencies of New York City have for several months been spending at the rate of $65,000,000 a year for direct aid to the destitute unemployed.

This expenditure, it was stated, "is New York City," and is exclusive of municipal and state aid to the destitute blind, to widows, and to needy aged persons living outside of institutions, the combined expenditures for which at present are at the rate of $20,000,000 a year.

It was estimated that the army of unemployed out of town men now in New York City is more than six times as large as "the bonus army" now besieging Washington. Strangers seeking work are pouring into the city at the rate of more than 2,000 a day.

MOSCOW, June 12.—The discovery of vast oil fields in the Ural mountain district, said to be the richest oil reserves in the world, was announced today at a meeting of the Academy of Science in Sverdlovsk. The oil fields are centered in three regions—Bashkiria, where the deposits are estimated at hundreds of millions of tons; the Emba river region, further north, where the deposits are estimated at 400 million tons, and the Uhktinsk region.

Members of the academy said each of the three fields is larger than the oil fields in the Baku district and Grozny, which produce enough oil to place the soviet union second only to the United States in world oil production.

The new fields are located in a district where the soviets are building up gigantic factories and industrial centers. Exploitation will be started immediately. The output will be devoted entirely to internal needs and is expected to free the entire output of the Baku region for export.

ABBE, LOSER IN ELECTION, PLANS TO SUE BISHOP

Blames Prelate for His Defeat.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, June 12.—An abbé who was beaten out of a seat in the chamber of deputies by a vigorous campaign conducted against him by his bishop is now appealing to temporal authorities for redress.

He is Abbé Elie Buchon at Fontenay-le-Comte in the Vendée district of France. Already he has appealed to the chamber of deputies to which he sought election, alleging unwarranted interference of the church in political matters, which is forbidden by French law. The chamber refused to consider his protest and he now threatens to take the matter to court.

Meets Bishop's Refusal.

Last March Abbé Bouchon, who had never had any political experience before, decided suddenly to enter the race for deputy from his district. He went to see his superior, the bishop of Lucon, first, to obtain permission. The bishop replied that he "could not give authorization."

The abbé assumed that, since he had not been formally forbidden, he was justified in going ahead. He plunged into his campaign. Presently along came the formal refusal of authorization from the bishop. It is said that the veteran representative, Monsieur de Tinguy du Pouët, called on his old friend, the bishop, and gave him an earful on the advisability of the abbé's not running.

Stages Counter Campaign.

Whether that is true or not, it is a fact that the bishop launched a strong campaign against the rebellious abbé, mobilizing against him all the priests in the district.

The abbé was beaten. He got only 2,639 votes, for which he blames the bishop. To cap his chagrin he has been ordered to appear before an ecclesiastical court and defend his mutinous behavior.

2 BURNED ON SHIP; LIVES SAVED BY PLANE AND RADIO

Philadelphia, Pa., June 12.—(AP)—The scientific marvels of the twentieth century—radio, airplane, fast ambulances, and medical skill—were employed today to save the lives of two sailors seriously burned when a steam pipe burst on the Tidewater Oil company's tanker, Samuel Q. Brown of New York, about thirty-eight miles off Cape May, N. J.

The tanker radioed the Cape May coast guard base for assistance, and a seaplane piloted by Lieutenant Commander C. G. von Paulsen was sent to bring the victims. Von Paulsen landed on the choppy water near the tanker, and the two men, on stretchers, were transferred to the plane by a small boat.

When the plane landed at the coast guard base physicians found the sailors were burned so badly that their facilities were inadequate to attend them. Still in the airplane, they were flown to the Philadelphia navy yard and rushed to St. Agnes hospital here in ambulances.

Coast guard officials said the men arrived at the hospital just three hours after they received the tanker's call for help. The men are Leonard G. Ambros, Bayonne, N. J., first assistant engineer, and Hans Schwaiger, 27, of New York.

CAN'T EXPLAIN LEG WOUND.

Lawrence Lowry, 29 years old, 2800 Warsaw street, was taken to the Martha Washington hospital yesterday with a bullet wound in his leg. Lowry was intoxicated, police said, and was unable to explain the shooting.

WHEAT ERRATIC; DROP FOLLOWS EACH ADVANCE

Current Prices Are at Level of '90s.

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

Grains, live stock, securities, and commodity prices in general are the lowest known to traders of the present day, but with good leadership it is believed that better times with increased employment can be had. Farmers are losing money, because grain prices are at the lowest in years, liquidation the last week forcing them down to levels of 1897.

Under ordinary conditions a bullish report on winter wheat like that given by the government on Thursday, being 411,000,000 bu, a drop of 30,000,000 bu from the May returns and compared with 787,000,000 bu last year, a record yield, would have started a buying furor and advanced prices.

Suffer 9 Days' Decline.

A peculiar feature of the present situation is that wheat prices have had a continuous decline for nine days, with a loss of about 10c bu and only a small reaction. This should mean a great deal to the constructive side of the market where there is a large volume of speculative buying. The report, however, only sent prices up a cent or two, but with an absence of follow-up buying support there was a reaction.

The sharp decline in Winnipeg owing to increased receipts was offset by sales of around 10,000,000 bu of Canadian wheat for export, part to China and to the continent, and that market recovered most of its loss, the close being only ¼@½c lower than a week ago, while Kansas City had a net decline of 2½@3c, with Chicago 2¾@3c lower than the previous week, the close in the latter on July being 51⅛@51½c, September 53⅝@53¾c, and December 56½@56⅝c.

Failure of the wheat market to advance sharply and to hold its gains was attributed to an indisposition on the part of local and outside operators who, although regarding prices low enough, lack confidence to buy heavily and hold their grain off the market because of fears that congress might enact unfavorable legislation which would retard business.

Export Business Fair.

Export business in American hard winters was fair as also were milling sales. The big handicap is continued fear of the farm board unloading on any sharp advance. The latter is said to have about 30,000,000 bu of futures and 75,000,000 to 100,000,00 bu cash wheat. Were this wheat in the hands of the regular export trade it is believed that the market would do materially better. Prices for the week follow:

Corn Traders Unsettled.

Crop reports on corn are generally favorable, good rains having prevailed over a large part of the belt within the last week. The crop has a good stand and is being generally cultivated. Speculative trade in corn futures remains light and a feature in the market is the selling of December and buying of September, with the former delivery being at a premium while in most years it is at a discount. Farmers are not selling old corn very freely and deliveries from the country are not large.

Prices are down close to an export level for shipment via Montreal, but no important business has developed. Present prices are close to the low level of 1896. In that year corn sold in Chicago at 19½c. At the close futures were unchanged to ⅜c net higher for the week, with July at 29⅜@29⅝c, September 31⅝@31⅞c, and December 32¾c. Oats Under 20 Cents.

The near deliveries of oats sold at the lowest prices in years, July dropping below the 20c level. Liquidating and hedging sales were the depressing features. On the break short covering with a little new investment buying brought a fair rally. The close was at net losses of ⅜@⅞c for the week, July being 20½c; September, 20⅝c, and December, 22½c. Prices follow:

Rye Lowest in Years.

July rye in Chicago declined to 30¼; September, 33½c, and December, 36½c. The close was 1⅛@1¼c above the extreme low, with July, 31½c; September, 34¼c, and December, 37⅝c. Foreigners were bidding for fair sized lots of cash rye at the close.

Assert Von Papen Cabinet Will Maintain Reichsmark

BASEL, Switzerland, June 12.—(AP)—The authorities of the Reichsbank of Germany today stated that the cabinet of Franz von Papen intended to maintain the stability of the reichsmark. The statement was made to the governors of the central banks here for the monthly meeting of the Bank of International Settlements.

Bond Traders Develop "Show Me" Attitude

New York, June 12.—(AP)—Conflicting trends pervaded the bond market during the last week. Averages followed a narrow range. Traders and investors maintained a "you show me" attitude toward taking on any heavy commitments.

On the other hand, there was a mildly improved sentiment on reports that congress would adjourn this week. The treasury's $750,000,000 note and certificate offering was heavily oversubscribed and the American dollar picked up strength in the foreign exchange market. The banking consortium, headed by the Morgan firm, made moderate purchases.

Rail Bonds Still Suffer.

At the same time, the red side of the ledger still contained numerous items. Most of the railroad liens still had a shaky appearance; the effect of the new taxes was viewed with some apprehension and last, but not least, the forthcoming Lausanne conference cast a dark shadow on the international outlook. Financial optimists, however, were of the opinion that almost anything that may happen in Europe had already been discounted in this market.

The railway category was the weakest, while the utilities and industrials were only moderately lower. Application of the New York Central for a large loan from the Reconstruction Finance corporation, in addition to continued poor earnings reports, acted as a further depressant to the carrier group. Although there were wide swings in some of the low price speculative loans, daily trading volumes were small with offerings tending to diminish sharply on the decline.

Utilities Are Mixed.

The utilities and industrials were mixed, but there was little urgent selling in either of these lists. Power and light company bonds were inclined to sag at times, and communications corporation loans were under some pressure. The oils displayed a firm tone.

British 5½s, recently the strongest of the foreign section, dropped under par for the first time in more than a month but later rallied. French loans were heavy, but the Germans recovered substantially. Japanese bonds eased. The Chileans were liquidated following the political upheaval in the South American country.

United States government issues were comparatively steady throughout, recording only daily fractional changes in somewhat light trading.

Another Kuomin dispatch today said the nationalist government had employed John Jouett, an American aviation expert, and his staff to come to China to establish a government flying school.

SUGGEST PLAN TO END FOREIGN EXCHANGE ILLS

Exporters Propose Clearing House.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, June 12.—Plans to eliminate foreign exchange difficulties now experienced by export associations through the creation of a bank to hold foreign currency deposits, under the Edge act of the federal reserve act, have now been completed and are being submitted to President Hoover and the various departmental heads at Washington, according to an announcement today made through the New York Board of Trade, Inc.

The plans represent the crystallization of several months of study and discussion by representatives of foreign trade associations. The organization of a voluntary association of importers and exporters to act as a clearing house for exchanges is planned as an adjunct to the bank. Under the plans the bank would have the active cooperation of the federal government.

Give Plan Approval.

Among the leading associations which have already given their approval of the plans are the following: American Manufacturers Export association, American Foreign Credit Underwriters, American Foreign Credit Interchange bureau, New York Board of Trade, Inc.; Proprietary association, Export Managers club, Drug and Chemical Export club, Newark Foreign Trade club, Foreign Trade Club of New Haven, Foreign Trade Club of Bridgeport.

The committee active in drafting details of the plan comprises George P. Reinberg of the Mennen company, chairman; Louis O. Berg of Marvin & Bergh, A. B. Ded of the Salem Glass works, John J. Doran of Parke, Davis & Co., and Georges St. Jean of the American Manufacturers Export association.

Two Big Difficulties.

"There are two major difficulties to be met, both in relation to foreign exchange," the committee explained. "There is the problem of frozen currency deposits. In some countries the restrictions prevent withdrawal of local currency from the country. This is, for example, in Germany, Austria, Chile and Brazil. In these countries many American companies and business houses have large sums an deposit in the local currencies.

"Such a deposit constitutes an asset which has only local values. It has been deprived of its character of currency in that it has no value in international trade and the owner may only use it in buying raw materials to be consumed domestically or in payment of domestic operating expenses of a branch of his business. The result is a heavy loss to the owners of such frozen assets.

Foreign Exchange Problem.

"The other problem relates to the difficulty of securing foreign exchange for the settlement of current transactions. There are restrictive regulations now in effect in some 23 foreign countries and these regulations make it exceedingly difficult for American exporters to collect for goods currently sold in these countries. In all of these countries there are serious delays in obtaining payment, and in some cases the exchange control restrictions are so drastic and call for a spread of installment payments over such a long period as to have the practical effect of forcing violent price reductions of imported good by governmental fiat.

"A frank analysis indicates that there is little difference between this process and one of outright confiscation. The problem is one which not only calls for concerted action by our foreign trade associations but also for the support of the federal government."

LAMONT VISIONS FOREIGN TRADE AT '29 PEAK AGAIN

New York, June 12.—(AP)—Confidence that international trade once again will reach the seventy billion dollar peak it attained in 1929 was expressed by Robert P. Lamont, secretary of commerce, in a telegram made public here today.

The telegram was sent to the Federal Shipbuilding and Drydock company in connection with the launching yesterday of its new steamer, the Santa Paula. Mr. Lamont expressed the belief "the exchange of goods between nations will again be as free and great as ever before."

He cited figures of combined exports and imports of all nations as totaling $70,000,000,000 in 1929 and $40,000,000,000 in 1931, but added that the shrinkage had been "due in large measure to the severe decline in prices of goods entering foreign trade."

He pointed to the comparative figures as furnishing "forceful evidence of the interdependence of the nations of the world in this modern age."

April Shows Better Tire Shipments than March

New York, June 12.—Shipments of rubber tires during April amounted to 3,697,630 units, an increase of 25.2 per cent compared with March, but a decrease of 25 per cent from the total for April, 1931, the Rubber Manufacturers' Association, Inc., announced today. Production of tires in April totaled 3,615,861, a decrease of 4.2 per cent compared with March and of 28.9 per cent compared with April, 1931. Stocks of tires on April 30 amounted to 9,845,820, a decrease of less than 1 per cent compared with March 31 and of 1.9 per cent compared with April 30, 1931.

Tri-Continental Takes Over Investment Trust

The Tri-Continental corporation, a leading general management investment trust, has acquired control of the Capital Administration Co., Ltd., an investment trust of the general management type. Control was obtained through the purchase of the Broad Street Investment company. With the new holdings Tri-Continental's assets are increased to $40,000,000.

MIXED TREND NOTED IN CHICAGO REGION BUSINESS SITUATION

A continued improvement in wholesale and retail trade conditions, a slight recession in the former pickup in the building industry, and fairly unsatisfactory reports from the steel business characterized the past week in Chicago according to the trade observers of the Chicago Association of Commerce.

Wholesalers reported a greater number of buyers in the market, while in retail circles preparations were being made for special sales in view of the coming political conventions. Out of town buyers were in the field for summer goods which sold well during the week. Other lines tapered off, with furniture and millinery striking new lows. Retail levels, of the preceding week, were maintained with sales of seasonal goods bringing the levels up to those of last year.

Operations in Chicago steel circles continued to drag and reached the lowest point of the year with little improvement in sight. There was little tonnage placed in structural steel aside from a few placements for some of the 1933 World's Fair buildings. Railroads took moderate tonnages of track accessories, with no new business of consequence in rails, although there are expectations of an improvement later on.

Building permits for the first week in June failed to maintain the improvement in May and were sharply below those of a year ago. Employment was irregular with new wage cuts and outright curtailments reported.

Water Service Company Gross Revenue Eases Lower

The Pittsburgh Suburban Water Service company, a subsidiary of Federal Water Service corporation, reports gross revenues of $333,857 for the year ended April 30, 1932, as compared with $344,916 for the preceding twelve months. Operating expenses, maintenance, and taxes, other than federal income tax, totaled $137,364, as against $155,201. Gross corporate income amounted to $196,493, which compares with $189,715 for the year ended April 30, 1931.

American Trade with Orient Exhibits a Sharp Decline

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., June 12.—[Special.]—Largely due to trade difficulties growing out of the Japanese invasion of Manchuria and Shanghai, American trade in the orient suffered a sharp decline during April, 1932, compared with the corresponding month in 1931.

According to a report submitted to Secretary of Commerce Lamont today by Janet H. Nunn of the division of regional information of the commerce department, United States trade with the far east during April, 1932, amounted to $60,326,000, compared with $87,340,000 during April, 1931.

"While this loss of approximately 31 per cent affected imports and exports in almost equal ratios," the report stated, "the heaviest actual loss in value was in imports, which declined from the April, 1931, total of $51,886,000, to $35,767,000."

Blame Chinese Fighting.

This reduction of $16,119,000 was attributable not only to prevailing economic conditions and to declines in prices for crude rubber, raw silk, jute, tin, and sugar, which continued to change occasional anticipated gains into losses, but was also the direct result of trade difficulties arising from the Sino-Japanese activities. While untoward conditions affected every country in the far east adversely, the heaviest losses were connected with the trade of Malaya, China, Australia, and India.

On the export side, Australia was the only country which bought more from the United States during April, 1932, than for the corresponding period in 1931. As a result shipments of American products to the orient aggregated $24,559,000, compared with $35,454,000 in the 1931 period, a reduction of $10,895,000, or slightly less than 31 per cent. Exports of wheat, flour and gasoline increased, while sales of raw cotton, lumber, leaf tobacco, iron and steel, cigarets, machinery and kerosene decreased.

Exports 30 Per Cent Off.

"Compared with United States exports to the far east from March, 1932, valued at $35,338,000, shipments showed a reduction of $10,779,000, or 30.5 per cent. During April New Zealand bought 93 per cent more American products than for the preceding month and Australia 63 per cent more, while Malaya increased her share by 23 per cent. In contrast, Japan bought 52 per cent less, while the remaining countries decreased their relative shares from 2 per cent in the case of Siam to 31 per cent for India. Although the far east absorbed only 18.5 per cent of the United States total exports for April, 1932, against 22 per cent for March, this relative ratio compared favorably with that of 16.5 per cent for April, 1931.

"Exports to Japan during April, 1932, totaled $7,873,000, compared with $14,231,000 for the corresponding month of 1931, a loss of more than 44 per cent. Japan bought more hemlock and cedar lumber, crude petroleum, fuel and lubricating oil, wheat, kerosene, and canned milk, but less raw cotton, automobiles and trucks, rubber tires, Douglas fir, iron and steel, tobacco, and machinery. United States shipments to the whole of China for April, 1932, amounted to $4,523,000, compared with $6,461,000 for April, 1931. This loss of $1,938,000, or 30 per cent, resulted largely from a reduction in sales of lumber, mineral oils, iron and steel, copper, and dyes, which more than outbalanced increased exports of raw cotton, flour, wheat, and automobiles.

Wheat Purchases Greater.

"Preliminary returns show that during April, 1932, the far eastern countries bought 201,000 bushels of American wheat, more than four times the amount for the 1931 period, and 254,000 barrels of flour, an increase of 100 per cent, while exports of gasoline, totaling 662,000 barrels, represented an advance of 15 per cent.

"Exports from Japan into the United States during April, 1932, aggregated $11,275,000, compared with $12,186,000 in 1931, while purchases from the whole of China receded from the 1931 total of $6,998,000 to $3,524,000. Compared with March, 1932, the April exports from Japan showed a decline of 14 per cent. In contrast, imports from China for the same period increased by 26 per cent."

ASSERTS OUTPUT OF RUBBER WILL BE BEHIND NEED

New York, June 12.—Production of crude rubber in 1932 will fall at least 30,000 tons short of estimated consumption, according to a survey report made public today by F. R. Henderson, former president of the Rubber Exchange of New York and now manager of the rubber department of Clark, Childs & Co. While there is plenty of rubber in reserve to take care of this shortage, Mr. Henderson says, the steady decline in production due to the continuous fall in the price of the commodity is a cause for grave concern for the future.

"Manufacturers today have about 300,000 tons, against a normal of 115,000 tons," Mr. Henderson reports. "There is afloat or en route 135,000 tons, against a normal of 115,000 tons; 40,000 tons on estates, against a normal of 55,000 tons; and 220,000 tons in the secondary trading markets, against a normal of 125,000 tons. The 30,000 tons at present in the primary trading markets is about normal. There is, therefore, 285,000 tons excess at present, and this is either in manufacturers' hands or dealers' in Europe and New York."

FINANCE WORLD CAUTIOUS; SEEKS TO READ FUTURE

Stock Advances Stir Some Optimism.

BY FRED HARVEY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, June 12.—Wall street will enter the new week cautiously and stock market traders will peel weather eyes and hold financial feathers up to the wind before they do much buying or selling if the sentiment of the week-end remains unchanged. There was a rising note of optimism in the financial district after the several spurts of the market, but it was optimism tempered with a spirit of let's feel our way.

The rapid advances in several of the market leaders last week, notably Auburn automobile, were hailed as evidences of the precariousness of the short position, and not many of the brokerage houses were urging general buying of securities.

Traders Are Confused.

The general advance throughout the list on Thursday and Friday, following weakness and declines earlier in the week, and the up and down character of the market in the half-session Saturday left traders perplexed and confused.

With the Republicans meeting for a national convention in Chicago, the President issuing fresh warnings to congress that expenses still need pruning if the budget actually is to be balanced and legislative leaders declaring congress cannot adjourn before July 4 or later, there is nothing of a political nature to warrant rapid advances. The news from Washington tends rather to be disquieting in its contents.

Position of Market.

A glance at the statistics last week indicates that the market was weaker than it appeared on the surface. Last Monday 159 stocks advanced and 221 declined, there were no new highs, but ten new lows were reached. Tuesday the ratio was 182 up and 269 down with 13 lows and no new highs. Wednesday only 50 stocks managed to get behind plus signs and 317 dropped, while 33 lows were registered and a lone high. Thursday was a better day, with 152 advances and 219 declines. There was one high and 35 lows. Friday 282 stocks went up and 72 down, one made a new high and 19 hit a new bottom. Saturday 156 climbed and 126 fell. There were six lows and no highs.

Thus, it is apparent, the market was erratic, easily influenced and likely to continue so until the tenor of the news itself becomes definitely reassuring.

Not hundreds and thousands, but already several hundred thousand residents of this community have borrowed money from this bank. They do not represent a class, nor a particular locality, for the credit yardstick of this bank is not occupational choice, social standing, creed, or residence. It is something else that counts—definite aim, determination to take life as it comes and a will to conquer its conditions as they come.

May it not be that the character of this bank itself is reflected through the choice of so many earnest and discriminating people who come to us from all over town.

DEPOSIT YOUR BONDS, SUGGESTS REAL ESTATOR

Samuel E. Erickson Gives Some Advice.

BY AL CHASE.

Go along with the authorized bondholders' protective committee in most cases was the advice given owners of defaulted bonds by Samuel E. Erickson, president of the Cook County Real Estate board, in a statement just made public by that organization. He declared that an individual bondholder can accomplish little, if anything, acting alone and that a group usually can effect a reorganization and realize something on the property.

S. E. ERICKSON.

"Unfortunate investors in bond issues call every day at the office of the Cook County Real Estate board, seeking information regarding the safety and protection of their bond investments and particularly wanting to know whether the bondholders' protective committees are composed of reliable men," said Mr. Erickson.

"The question usually asked is 'Should we deposit with the committee?' Most bondholders' committees, we have found, are composed of men of experience and good repute. Generally, the proper thing to do is to deposit your bond with the authorized committee, as a single bondholder can accomplish very little, but with united action there's always a possibility of developing the property and realizing on the security.

Knows of Few Frauds.

"It's true that in most cases the bondholders have had no voice in the reorganization of property in the case of defaulted bond issues, but on the other hand there have been only a few instances where bondholders have been defrauded of their rights."

Frank J. Murnighan, receiver for the St. Clair hotel, reports cash on hand March 31, 1932, as $28,644. For the period from Oct. 1, 1931, to March 31, 1932, he states the gross receipts were $202,632. Disbursements for pay roll, operating expenses, etc., were $140,263, leaving a profit of $62,368.

Expenditures made by court order totaled $33,724. These included $3,000 receiver's fees, $2,500 attorney's fees, $16,231 for 1929 taxes, etc. Deducting these from the profit total leaves $28,644 cash on hand. During the six months of receivership the occupancy has been kept at an average of 74.3 per cent, as against an average of 60.7 per cent for all Chicago hotels. The receiver believes a surplus can be accumulated during the next twelve months to be applied to bond principal and interest. This was a $1,575,000 Greenebaum Sons Investment company bond issue.

Sunlight Coal Company.

New securities are soon to be distributed to holders of Sunlight Coal company first mortgage, series A, bonds under a reorganization plan just announced by the Garard Trust company bondholders' protective committee. The plan, O. K.'d by the bondholders, provides for $50 in new 5 per cent bonds and two shares of preferred stock, par $25, for each $100 in bonds held. The maturity of the bonds has been expended. The original issue was $1,201,200 at 6½ per cent.

Of the new issue of $670,000 bonds, $70,000 will be used, together with $70,000 of stock, for settling and funding obligations of the company. To provide for the retirement of bonds, the new trust deed provides for a deposit in a sinking fund of 10 cents for every ton of coal mined by the company from properties owned in fee.

There'll also be a new stock issue of 26,800 shares of $25 par preferred which will be held in trust for the bondholders. The trustees will elect the board of directors, who in turn will elect the officers, thus placing control of the company with the bondholders. Counsel for the committee is Walter C. Senne of Kirkland, Fleming, Green & Martin.

Nelson Apartments.

T. E. Williams, secretary of the bondholders' protective committee, has notified bondholders of the Nelson apartments, 8056-58 Luella avenue, that a foreclosure bill has been filed, but he hopes to avoid a receivership, as the owner is willing to coöperate by voluntarily turning over all net rentals to the trustee for the benefit of the first mortgage bond holders.

The committee is negotiating for a new first mortgage loan which Mr. Williams believes will enable it to reorganize the issue and put the property back on a paying basis provided all outstanding bonds are at once deposited with the Chicago Title and Trust company.

This was an Equitable Bond and Mortgage company issue of $45,000, at 6½ per cent. The building contains nine apartments, with a total of thirty-four rooms. Mr. Williams states it is 75 per cent rented.

PRICES OF COTTON HIT LOWEST MARK SINCE THE YEAR 1898

New York, June 12.—A further decline in cotton during the week has carried prices to the lowest levels ever touched since the beginning of business in the New York market. July contracts selling at 4.91c yesterday were 7 points below the previous low record for any position, which was 4.98c for November contracts, in November, 1898.

The unfavorable average of trade advices, reports of continued favorable crop progress in the south, and continued nervousness over various relief proposals still pending in congress appeared to stimulate liquidation of old long accounts, while some local, foreign, and southern selling has also been reported. Offerings have been absorbed by covering and trade buying on the decline, but the buyers have shown very little disposition to follow up advances, and except for spurts of liquidation, the market has been comparatively quiet.

According to the New York Cotton exchange service, domestic mill consumption for May amounted to only 342,000 bales, compared with 465,000 last year, and the same authority reports that English mill operations can hardly stay at the current level unless the volume of yarn and cloth sales increases, while continental mills are slightly reducing their operations on an average.

OUTLINES WORK OF ELECTRIC ICE BOX INDUSTRY

Atlantic City, N. J., June 12.—[Special.]—In an address before the fifty-fifth annual convention of the National Electric Light association here James E. Davidson of Omaha, executive chairman of the electric refrigeration bureau, predicted that the bureau idea of sales coöperation will spread from the electrical industry to other lines of business, bringing about a new era, in which all American business will be better and cleaner.

"When launching the electric refrigation bureau we were aware of the history of coöperative undertakings," said Mr. Davidson, who is president of the Nebraska Power company and a past president of the National Electric Light association. "The history of coöperative movements is littered with tragic shipwrecks—it has been a graveyard of fine ideals, of worthy principles brought to grief because the varied business interests which started to coöperate could not keep faith. Fortunately, some outstanding coöperative movements had survived these perils. This gave us courage to proceed.

"It is a simple matter, indeed, to determine whether the bureau has been successful, because a very definite goal was set right at the start. It was simply to sell one million electric refrigerators in 1931. Conservative counting indicated that approximately 950,000, or 95 per cent of the national quota, were sold. This year's goal is 'Another Million in 1932.' Sales for the first four months were 306,000, or nearly one-third of the year's quota. This grand total of more than $1,250,000 household electric refrigerators sold in the sixteen months of the bureau's existence represents more than a quarter of a billion dollars in sales to the electric refrigeration industry and nearly thirty millions of dollars of new annual revenue to central stations."

LONDON, June 12.—With one battery of six of her oil fired boilers supplied with a new "coal loaded" fuel oil, the Cunard liner Scythia left Liverpool yesterday for New York on an experimental voyage that may revolutionize fueling of ships.

The fuel consists of the crude oil normally used on Atlantic liners and coal pulverized so fine that the mixture runs freely through the nozzles of the fire jets, according to its inventor, R. A. Adam, the Cunard's assistant superintendent engineer. Adam evolved a secret process of mixing this colloidal fuel with F. C. Holmes, a chemist, and A. W. Perrins, a combustion engineer.

The proportions of crude oil and coal are said to be sixty and forty, respectively, by weight. It is claimed that it offers new hope to the declining coal industry, that it may cost $1 to $2 a ton less than oil even at present record low rates, and that it leaves no dust on deck fittings.

CONSUMERS BUY MEATS

Consumption of hog products is said to be at a fair average volume due to low prices. The south is buying dry salted bellies and hams and there is a general trade in sweet pickled meats in most sections of the country. Hogs and product are down to the lowest since 1897, and farmers are not rushing their hogs to market as rapidly as of late. Warehousemen are accumulating meats and lard in a fair way on breaks and pressure from holders of future deliveries was considered unusually light. At the close lard futures were 22½@25c higher and dry salted bellies were 7½@12½c lower than the previous week. Prices follow:

STEEL MAKERS GET NEW HOPE IN LAST WEEK

Structural Orders Are Somewhat Better.

Cleveland, O., June 12.—(AP)—Structural steel bookings, 50 per cent above the average rate of awards thus far in 1932, continued to give strength to the steel industry last week, although steel making operations declined four points to 17 per cent, the magazine Steel said today in its weekly trade review.

Structural bookings of 26,361 tons brought the aggregate up to 109,713 tons for the last four weeks and was the largest volume for any consecutive four weeks in almost a year.

Other than for structural material, the magazine said, demand for finished steel had subsided to a degree reminiscent of the summer lull of preceding years—a low point which producers had hoped to avoid because they did not ascend to the spring peak.

Expect Better Business.

"Sentiment, however," the magazine said, "has not sunk to a 17 per cent basis. Producers make no effort to gloss the situation over, yet remain convinced that June and July will prove the low point and that the extreme recession in operations only hastens the upturn."

Operations of the industry as a whole was 20.11 per cent of capacity in May, when daily production of ingots was 42,593 gross tons.

Last week a slight decrease was indicated, and the magazine said that June may break through the previous low of modern steel making—the 36,713-ton rate of July, 1921.

"Only an adjustment of financial details, assured through a Reconstruction Finance corporation loan, stands between fabricators and the release of 50,000 tons for the Pennsylvania railroad's eastern electrification.

"Railroads are taking figures on some scattering second-half year requirements. Automobile manufacturers other than Ford are curtailing rapidly and are close to the point of offsetting Ford expansion. Ford orders for steel are the largest in practically a year, but the rest of the country leaves a void that is becoming more noticeable."

Operations by Districts.

Operations for the last week were reported as follows: Buffalo, 10 per cent; eastern Pennsylvania, 12½ per cent; Pittsburgh, 17 per cent; Chicago, 13 per cent; Youngstown, 19 per cent; Birmingham, 23 per cent; and Cleveland, 29 per cent.

Staggered schedules are said to prompt hope for a slight rise at Buffalo this week, but Cleveland and Pittsburgh will be definitely lower. The steel corporation late this month is to put some Great Lakes ore carriers into service.

The steelwork scrap composite of steel is off four cents this week to $6.71, but the iron and steel composite is unchanged at $29.56 and the finished steel composite at $47.62.

NEW YORK CURB PRICES FIRMER AS WEEK CLOSES

New York, June 12.—(AP)—The curb market has fluctuated fitfully in recent sessions. Rallying tendencies, however, finally asserted themselves after a rather sharp decline had virtually cancelled average gains made on the previous rally.

Prices weakened early last week when buying interests suddenly waned. There was a better tone to many preferred stocks, in sympathy with the firmer bond market, but common equities had a substantial reaction during the first three days. Selling was well distributed.

Some of the utility preferred shares which have had very sharp losses rallied appreciably, although Bond and Share issues were prominently weak until the market turned. Northern States Power 7 per cent and New York Power 7 per cent were among the stronger preference stocks. On the other hand, Metropolitan Edison 6 per cent slumped severely. United Light passed its preferred dividend on Wednesday and the stock broke more than a dozen points.

Industrials and specialties made some wide moves. Swift shares were supplied liberally for a time, but encountered strong support later. Great Atlantic and Pacific strengthened with Aluminum of America and a few others. Cord was helped by Auburn's advance. On the down side Quaker Oats dropped heavily.

American Gas and Electric profited especially by the Friday and Saturday upturn. Consolidated Gas of Baltimore broke under 40 before hardening, while Bond and Share common sagged below 6 while the decline lasted.

STOCK TRADERS FEAR PUBLICITY FEATURE OF NEW TAX STATUTE

New York, June 12.—Stock market operators, whose success depends in no small measure upon keeping their movements concealed until they are ready to reveal them, are somewhat apprehensive over a provision in the new federal revenue act.

Under it managers of all pool, syndicate, and joint investors' accounts must file with their income tax reports a supplementary information return containing the names of all participants in the market operation. The stocks bought and sold by these participants, the prices paid, and a statement of each individual's profit or losses must be furnished.

Its effect, some Wall street observers believe, will be to make public officials and persons engaged in occupations which converge closely on the field of public service exceedingly chary about participating in syndicate operations—assuming that they might otherwise do so.

A debatable point arises among tax experts as to whether the income tax bureau could make this information available to congress or to government investigators. Ever since the furore arose when income tax returns were published several years ago Washington has kept the returns inviolate from outside scrutiny.

SEEKING WIDER MARKETS FOR TRUST SHARES

Mergers May Absorb 14 Companies.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, June 12.—The trend towards a broader distribution of shares of fewer general management investment trusts became more pronounced last week. Two of the largest trusts in the business announced plans which, if completed, will reduce by fourteen the number of existing investment trusts.

Market Remains Dull.

The trust business has suffered substantially during the depression, largely because trust stocks have not enjoyed a broad enough market. Although in practically all cases the net underlying value of these shares has been shown several times a year to be substantially above the market value, the market price never has closed up on the asset value, or has stood still waiting for the asset value to fall to its level.

The market crash in 1929 came when investment trust stocks had not had time to be digested by the general public. Little of it had found its way into the hands of investors, and a great deal of the stock held by speculative interests came, and is still coming, into the market to depress the value of most of the trust shares.

At the same time the market for those shares has become so narrow that in many cases the sale of 100 or 200 shares was sufficient to break it badly.

For two and one-half years it has been virtually impossible for most of these smaller companies to distribute their stock widely enough.

Larger Trusts More Active.

In the case of the larger trusts, however, there has been a constantly increasing number of stockholders, and consequently an increasing stability in the stock market action. With these larger trusts taking over the smaller ones, holders of small trust shares are given shares in the larger and more widely distributed ones. The amount on shelves of brokerage offices or in other weak hands becomes proportionately less, while that in the hands of investors becomes larger.

June Hide Options Dip to Record Low Quotation

All of the active options on the New York Hide exchange established new low records the last week, and June sold at the lowest price in the history of the exchange. The turnover reached close to 10,000,000 pounds.

Bon Ami.

Please give me as full information as possible, together with your opinion, on stock of Bon Ami.—C. O.

Bon Ami company was established in 1886. It specializes in the manufacture of a cleaning and polishing soap and powder sold under the name of the company. Distribution is effected in the United States and 52 foreign countries. Much of the feldspar used, one of the principal raw materials, comes from the company's own mines in New Hampshire, North Carolina, and Quebec.

For the first quarter of 1932 net income was $231,000, or 65 cents per class B share, against net of $295,000, or 80 cents per class B share, for the corresponding 1931 period.

Net income for 1931 was $1,273,000, or $3.43 per class B share, against net of $1,556,000, or $3.64 per class B share, for 1930. Net for 1929 was $1,455,000, against $1,284,000 for 1928 and $1,158,000 for 1927.

During 1928 and 1929 the company placed between $800,000 and $1,200,000 in call loans and enjoyed the benefit of high interest rates which were prevalent during the two years.

On Dec. 31, 1931, current assets were $2,075,000 and current liabilities were $206,000. Cash was $416,000, and marketable securities with a cost of $887,000 had a market value of $780,000. Working capital was $1,869,000, against $1,759,000 the year before.

There were outstanding 106,000 shares of no par class A and 200,000 shares of no par class B stock. The class A is entitled to preferential, noncumulative dividends of $4 per year. After the class B receives $2.50 in any one year, all further disbursements shall be distributed equally, class for class, between the class A and class B.

Commercial Instrument.

Can you give me a report on Commercial Instrument corporation? I shall greatly appreciate any information you can give.—Mrs. J. J. A.

Commercial Instrument corporation was incorporated in 1929 to take over a number of companies manufacturing instruments for automobiles, airplanes, steamships, etc.

Operations have been unprofitable since organization. Net loss for the first eight months of 1931 was $99,000. Loss for 1930 was $586,000, against loss of $251,000 for 1929.

On Aug. 31, 1931, current assets were $698,000 and current liabilities were $293,000. Cash was only $13,000. Working capital was $405,000. Funded debt was $301,000.

Profit and loss deficit was $152,000. There were outstanding 99,882 class A and 675,572 class B shares. They are both highly speculative.

FINANCE WORLD CAUTIOUS; SEEKS TO READ FUTURE

its toll in common stock prices in most of America's largest corporations. Common stocks of more than 300 companies listed on the stock exchange have declined to prices which are lower than their per share earnings in 1929. Some of the securities are quoted at what appears on the surface to be ridiculous levels. Nevertheless, the bargain hunters remain almost entirely absent from the customers' rooms of the brokerage houses. They are waiting hopefully for better political and business news.

Dollar Strength Gains.

One of the major points in last week's developments was the growing strength of the dollar. Nevertheless, the outward flow of gold appeared to continue unabated. Many observers believe that this flow of gold is nearing its end. Optimists in banking circles are even predicting the gold will be flowing back into this country by fall.

It is not easy to predict the condition of the financial mind abroad, however, and the bankers may be entirely wrong in the moment of optimism. They have been before.

At the present time the stock market business is predominantly professional and indications are that the professionals will have the field to themselves for some time to come. Some of the observers believe that the recent spectacle of fireworks in Auburn automobile trading will have an exciting influence on outsiders and draw public interest to the market. The market believes it needs the public interest and longs to get back on page one.

Men-Something Unusual

THERE IS ALWAYS AN OUTSTANDING SUCCESS THAT DOES NOT NEED TO ASK WHAT THE MARKET IS TODAY OR THE STATE OF GENERAL INDUSTRY!

Under all conditions, in all times, there are some services and products in growing demand, and the unquestioned superiority of our invention is the basis of this offer of free instruction and immediate employment to men living in North Side or Lake County.

From the first idea back of this remarkable specialty, that had its origin in America, but which was developed in Europe, where there are now five large factories supplying these specialties that far exceed the sale of all others, and with an aggregation of corporations with unlimited resources to insure the abundant development of this work, this business has grown unbrokenly! World leadership has been established, and the greatest prediction is that our American factory will outstrip all others.

The founders did the first selling and the first training. Ever since then the most successful salesmen have been trainers of new men, who receive the same practical kind of help, plus the advantage of intensive merchandising research. With direct examples of successful methods to guide you it does not take long to master the tasks required, but genuine character must be applied. This work calls for manhood expressed in its best terms, for the assumption of responsibility and intelligent, sustained effort, a pace beyond the ordinary average of success! Our 1932 federal income tax report revealed one group of 65 men whose average cash income for 1931 was $7,259.35. These examples of individual earnings in this group are as follows: $7,885.00, $7,076.50, $7,509.00, $7,401.50, and $7,219.50. Many made more! Yet they began as a mold, with initial earnings of $125.00 to $200.00 per month, while practicing and learning, although some men qualify for the higher incomes right from the start.

Our successful men come from every trade and profession, therefore past experience is not so important as aptitude and adaptability. We prefer married men, between 28 and 45, and they must be neat, of good character and real workers! There will not be any layoffs. This is not a seasonal business.

A limited number will be selected at this time. But the first step must be an interview, so we can determine how we like you while you decide if you wish this work—there can be no understanding from the outset. For personal interview apply Monday morning, 9 to 12, 215 McGraban Bldg., 1046 Wilson-av.
